anything interfere with these es,—let them be interrupted or rly carried on, and sickness kind follows.

digestion and assimila- sans failure to derive rishment from food and turn often means im- ed blood, weakness, etc. Poor elimination n accumulation of waste which poisons the body, lowers decreases the power of re- to disease and leads to the ent of many serious ills.

atism,—due to some interfer- h the process of elimination, to get rid of certain body —cannot be expected to yield medicine that fails to correct ition responsible for it. Could sonable person expect to rid of rheumatic pain as long as rheumatic poison is allowed to remain in the body.

Think of this. It explains the success of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) in so many cases where other medicines have failed. Thousands are using NR Tablets every day and getting relief. Why pay five or ten times as much for uncertain things? A 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), containing enough to last twenty-five days,—must help you, must give you prompt relief and satisfactory benefit or cost you nothing.

And Nature's Remedy is not only for the relief of rheumatism. It improves digestion, tones the liver, regulates kidney and bowel action, improves the blood and cleanses the whole system. You'll feel like a new person when you've taken NR Tablets a week. You've tried the expensive medicines and doctors, now make the real test. You'll get results this time. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

A HUSBAND TO MARCIA

By CAROLYN BEECHER

Chapter XLII

Muriel Doran had come close to John Adrich's life, its longing, its every fustration. She had sensed this and it had touched understanding in her, and sympathy, which they tell us is akin to love, and which we know often precedes love.

Muriel was about thirty years old, yet she looked younger than Marcia, who was now about twenty-seven. Marcia's lines of discontent, a certain peevishness which had developed about her mouth, had in a way aged her, without making her lose her prettiness appreciably. In appositio Muriel's face was always reposeful and her smiling eyes gave a look of youth in spite of her usual seriousness.

John wondered why Muriel never had married. He could not imagine a man, free, knowing her, and passing her by. While in the same moment, Marcia, young, arrogant, making her exorbitant demands so easily and selfishly swayed by her desires, would appear before him, making the comparision odious, regardess of the effort John made to refrain from criticising his wife or comparing her with another.

At times Marcia's selfishnes... her inherent love of ease and luxury even, when she knew it was beyond their means to gratify, annoyed him so that he would speak sharply to her, or leave her without a word, fearing that if he spoke he would say too much.

At such times Marcia would weep and wail with nearly the ame abandon as when they were first married. But with a far opposite effect upon John.

It was noticeabe at such times that John's thoughts flew to Muriel. She was the one woman in the world for him, and the fates had ordained they never could be anything more than friends. She could, from the sheer depth of her nature, influence him to tell her that he loved her, almost sure that she cared. But his very love held him back. He could give her nothing, be nothing to her. It would be cruel to disturb her, and another thing, if he confessed his love he would not be able to see her, be with her even as he now was. So he strangled the impulse and they met as friends, pothing more.

There was within him, had been for a long time, the crying need for companionship, for the understanding Muriel Doran gave him. He could not afford now to lose that companionship, to break the frail bond between them by showing the craving he had for something more.

John would remain away from Muriel until the longing to see her became overpowering. Then, making excuse that he wanted to add something to his collection, he would steal away from the office for an hour, choosing the time of day when she was liable to be not too busy, and talk with her of the merits of this or that piece of china, while he feasted himself upon her sweet face and gloated over the tones of her voice.

Occasionally now he would buy some small bit of china, always with the feeling of doing something he could not afford. But he could not keep on going to the shop without buying. It would make the reason for his visits too plain.

Marcia resented this occasional buying of china, just as she had resented it from the first. Even more so perhaps. Because with [illegible] had developed withing her a feeling that he owed her, [illegible] her enjoyment of rytime he [illegible]. And she took no pleasure in his china. Indeed it was an ever present thorn in her flesh.

This was exaggerated after a brother collector had spent some time with John one evening and Marcia had overheard much of their conversation, including the value of the small collection John had made.

She was astounded. All that money for a lot of old china, when she wanted so many things; needed them in fact. By the time the collector left, she had worked herself up into a perfect passion of self pity because she was denied what she wished for, so that John might tie up a lot of money in that useless china.

"I am astonished at you, John Aldrich"! she commenced when the door closed after their guest.

"What have I done?" good-naturedly asked John.

"I heard what Mr. Norton said. The idea of your spending all that money on china."

"You heard him give the value of my collection, not what I paid for it."

"You could sell it for the figure he named, couldn't you?"

"I could, yes. But I never shall."

"And I have to scrimp and save in all sorts of ways while you have a lot of junk that would give me things I need. Suppose the house should burn or something."

"My collection is insured."

"Another silly expense. Don't you dare talk economy to me, John Aldrich, now that I know what that junk would bring. I am through economizing so you can waste money on things like that. Money that belongs to me, because I am your wife!"

MARCHIONESS OF DONEGAL TO VISIT HER OLD HOME THE NOTABLES SAILING FROM ENGLAND TODAY FOR CANADA.

LONDON, Oct. 8—The Marchioness of Donegal, who before her marriage into British peerage was Miss Twining of of Halifax, is leaving London today on a visit to her old home and to other parts of the dominion, after an absence of ten years. Her reasons for visiting Canada are purely personal and she expects to return to Britain in time for Xmas. On the same boat is Priscella, Countess Anesley, as a passenger. It is her first visit to the dominion and she plans to spend a few days in Quebec, Montreal, Toronto and Niagara, thence going to the United States before returning home. Other passengers on the vessel are Pavlowa and company of fifty artists, who are to make a six months tour of the United States and Canada, opening at Quebec on October 15. New dresses have been designed by Soudakin for the Greek ballet in which Pavlowa and Novikoff are engaged. Among the company are Karavaeff famous on the Russian stage in the Czarist days and Kreger, former first ballerina, who escaped a few months ago from the clutches of the Bolcheviks at Moscow.

WHERE PARENTS ERRED

Gerge Ade said at a dinner, as he twirled the stem of his glass of sparkling sarsaparilla between thumb and finger: "Our parents taught us to lay up something for a rainy day. How much nicer it would have been if they had only taught us to lay up something for a dry one."

Salts If Backachy And Kidneys Hurt

STOP EATING MEAT FOR A WHILE IF YOUR BLADDER IS TROUBLING YOU

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

ABLE TO DO HER WORK

After Long Suffering Mrs. Peasey Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto, Ont.—"I suffered with irregular menstruation, was weak and run down, could not eat and had headaches. The worst symptoms were dragging down pains, so bad I sometimes thought I would go crazy and I seemed to be smothering. I was in this condition for two or three years and could not seem to work. I tried all kinds of medicines and had been treated by physicians but received no benefit. I found one of your booklets and felt inclined to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I received the best results from it and now I keep house and go out to work and am like a new woman. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound to my friends and if these facts will help some poor woman use them as you please."—Mrs. J. F. PEASEY, 387 King St., Toronto, Ontario.

If you are one of these women do not suffer for four or five years as Mrs. Peasey did, but profit by her experience and be restored to health.

DINNER FOR BLUSHING BRIDE MAY COST THE UNITED STATES $125,000.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 — One honeymoon dinner for a blushing bride may cost the United States government $125,000. Mrs. Dora B. King and her husband, Dr. D. B. King of Greensboro, North Carolina have filed suits in the supreme court district of Columbia or damages totalling this amount against the United States railroad administration. Mrs. King asks $75,000 damages for her injuries received while on her honeymoon trip, December 30, 1919. That was during the period of federal control of the roads. Mrs. King says the injuries received then have left her almost helpless and in constant pain. Dr. King asks an additional $50,000 for the destruction of his wife's health, loss of her services and for expense of medical experts in an attempt to restore her health.

CLERGYMEN HAD GLORIOUS SATURDAY NIGHTS AT THE CLUB.

LONDON, Oct. 8—Rev. Hugh Jenkins, Congregational Evangelist, preacher, has evolved a new if not energetic method for finding salvation backsliding parishioners. "Follow them into the saloons" he says. "When you do not find them at home, go after them into the public houses." Jenkins was speaking to the Congregational Union of Bristol. "Christ said: "Go into the highways and hedge roads." If he lived today he would say "go into the public houses and clubs" Don't be afraid. You'll get a kindly reception there. I have had some glorious Saturday nights in them"

INDICTMENTS TO BE VOTED AGAINST CHICAGO POLICE.

CHICAGA, Oct. 8— Federal grand jury indictments for violation of liquor laws may be voted against eight police officials and 12 subordinates in the investigation if federal authorities into alledged complicity of the department in boose sales, it was announced by dry officials tonight. Short ly after the grand jury probe was under way, chief Fitzmorris announced the transfer to other districts of four lieutenants, thirty three sergeants and seventy two patrilmen. Thirteen detective sergeants are replaced by uniformed sergeants and patrolmen by Fitzmorris. One transfer is said to be directly traceable to the federal liquor investigation.

Notice to Farmers

Don't Slaughter Thin Hogs

We note a tendency to sell hogs not properly fatted: in fact in very thin, poor condition. This is a serious mistake from the farmers' standpoint, as no matter wherher prices go up or down from present figures, no packer will continue to buy this unfinished, inferior stock. To persist in selling it farmers will ruin the reputation of Island Pork Products, to their own immediate and future loss.

Finish your hogs properly, sell when ready, and you will best serve your own interests, as well as those of the industry in general.
