After Ten Years

BY MARION RUBINCAM

MILLIE

Chapter 102

Mrs. Darlington, true to her word, began to "take up" Patty in the most violently enthusiastic fashion.

She never gave a tea, during that early Winter, but what Patty was called up, and asked to attend. She never had a dinner or a dance except with Patty present.

She even gave her the name that the girl herself used but rarely.

"I want you to meet Miss Patricia Parke Munn," she would say, nyphonating the name. Patty, legally had taken her adopted mother's name thought somehow she never used it, and never felt it quite belonged to her.

Being a clever woman, Mrs. Darlington decided that Miriam and Patty must be friends, so Miriam MacKeen was always asked to these affairs too.

"She's really a most charming girl," she gushed once or twice to Miriam.

And that subtle minded little lady half closed her pretty dark eyes assumed an expression of debutante innocence, and said.

"Isn't she? Quite adorable."

She might have been resentful because Paty had enticed Paul away from her—for the friendship between herself and Paul was a long and close one, but she never showed ia. And during the Winter an exceedingly nice young man, with a great fortune and several other desirable qualities began paying attention to her.

All of which was consoling and helped her to smile upon Patty and to ask her to dinner parties.

As for Patty, in spite of this, she felt more at home among the older women, the friends of Mrs. Munn. She had met many of them when she was merely an ignored secretary, and she was amused now when she found that none of them ever referred to her past at the Committee, nor even to the Committee, which was functioning feebly at the same place. But she kept her eyes open, and learned as fast as possible the intricate details of a certain complicated state of society.

"I shouldn't doubt", Mrs. Darlington would confide to her best friends. "But what there is something between little Patty and my Paul."

Then she would add, after the exclamations died down,

"She's such a dear girl—I always liked her so much, you remember even before—at the Committee, you know. Yes, she comes from an excellent family—I met the sister. Paul knew them ages ago, Yes, I hope it does happen, just the girl for Paul."

Thus cleverly, she led up to the announcement. For the announcement did take place about the middle of December.

"We'll let her have her way," said the amused Mrs. Munn. "No harm in that. Patty dear, you become engaged next week. I'll give you a party for it."

And the local paper in Wissakeagan printed another excited paragraph lifted bodily from an Eastern paper.

"Friends of Mrs. Parke will be pleased to learn that her daughter, Miss Patricia Parke, now Miss Patricia Parke Munn, of New York, has become engaged to Mr. Paul Darlington of that city. Friends of the family here will not be so surprised. It was rumored sometime ago when Mr. Darlington came to play our local tennis club—".

And so it went on, the paragraph multiplying itself down the length of a column, with a picture of Patty to accompany it.

This was loaned by Millie, who had a large photo of Patty sitting on the mantel in her living room. And Basil, already married and expecting to be the father of a baby any day now, read this item with great interest to his wife. Basil had none but impersonal feelings, so fast does life really move in what Easterners are pleased to call a "slow" town.

And meantime—what with newspapers and magazines with pictures and stories about her, Patty's sister and mother found themselves very proud of all this publicity. Millie shone in its reflexion she gave a tea so all her old friends could see the clippings she had.

For Millie and Humphrey were living in their old house once more. They had been able to buy it back, at but little more than Millie sold it, they had even secured some of their old pieces of furniture. Mrs. Parke arranged to live with them in the Winter, and with her sister on her sister's country place in the Summer. She could not get back her home, nor her old maid, and a nelw house somehow was unthinkable.

So there they were.

"Just as though nothing had ever happened," Millie said cheerfully. And she was so impatient to furnish her house again, that she almost bought out the local furniture, well knowing that she would not like the things when she had lived with them for awhile.

Humphrey came home as usual for an early supper at six, cooked by a new Bridget. He lounged into smoking jackets and slippers, rummaged for in the living room closet. He drank much too much coffee at dinner and sat with his feet high on another chair, reading magazines.

"Gosh, this is the life," was his favorite expression.

Millie did not agree.

Monday—A Wedding

GOOD HUMOR.—Good humor is the spice of life. Its foundation is good nature and generosity of soul towards one's fellows and to all the events of life whether pleasant or otherwise. There is no such thing as good humor without good judgment and kindliness of feeling. Most of the trivial worries of life can, by a joke and a good laugh, be sent scurrying away to destruction. As long as one can laugh the spirit will not grow old. Good humor and good health walk hand in hand.

The Champion Heifer of All Ages And All Breeds

LADY ROBERTS COLANTHA, NO 53967, PRODUCED 26,433 lbs MILK AND 1175 lbs FAT IN ONE YEAR FRESHENING BEFORE SHE WAS FOUR YEARS OLD.

The Holstein heifer, Lady Roberts Colautha, No. 53967, has set a new mark for any cow of any breed under five years of age to aim at. She is the fourth highest producer of any age. Her record has just been completed in the Canadian Record of Performance. Ten supervisors have vouched for the validity of the test and during 72 days had the cow on strictly official test which means that the cow and her feeder and milker were under constant observation.

A day's ration of such an animal consists of four feeds six hours apart, composed about as follows:

4 lbs. corn ensilage.
35 lbs. roots or 1 1-2 pails of beet pulp.
2 lbs. oats.
2 lbs. bran.
2 lbs. distillers dry grains.
1 lb. hominy.
1 lb. gluten
1-2 lb. oil cake meal.
1 lb. cottonseed meal.

All the clover, sweet clover and alfalfa hay she would eat and a little flax seed, salt and charcoal.

On such feed she gave 26433 lbs. of milk containing 1175 lbs. fat, which is a percentage of 4.4.

She is a sister of the world-renowned cow Fancy Maid, 2nd, and she herself has an excellent show ring record. Her sires progany are of the most famous family of show ing winners in Canada and she traces back to many of thet amous show ring beauties through both her sire and dam. Some of them are Prince Colanthus Abbekerk, Pauline Colantha Posch, Prince Abbekerk Mercena, Tidy Abbekerk Fancy 3rd, and Pontiac Henger-veld Dekol the famous daughter of Hengorveld Dakol Mercena's Sir Posch. Her dam's sire is also a brother of the sire of the greatest producer in the world for any age—namely Bella Pontiac. This latter cow is also Canadian.

The recent importations by the MacDonald Consolidated Breeders were fortunate in that a great deal of the above breeding is now located on the Island. No less than nine sisters of the champion cow are owned in herds near Charlottetown. The Bunbury Farm herd is founded on the basis of the bull Prince Colanthus Abbekerk and is being scientifically line-bred by the use of a double grand-son of the same bull out of the greatest show cow of them all—Fancy Maid 2nd. Some calves of 1922 at Bunbury contain as much blood of Prince Colanthus Abbekerk as the champion herself—Lady Roberts Colautha.

There is algo a heifer that has already made the highest junior two-year old in the Maritime Provinces which is sired by a full brother of Lady Roberts Colautha's dam. This heifer produced a bull calf from the Bunbury bull which contains 43 3-4 per cent the same blood as the new champion and is famous.

GOOD PRICE SECURED FOR OTTAWA DEBENTURES.— The civic authorities of the city of Hull are gratified at the success which has attended the sale of the last issue of city debentures of $130,700 for local improvements, tenders for which realized $102.31. The successful tenderers were Messrs. Greenshields and Co., and H. C. Monk and Co., who put in a joint tender. The debentures carry 6 per cent. interest over an average period of twenty years.

Eddy's is the safe match

—the head is on tight—can't fly off!

EDDY FACTS

Eddy's are the creative pioneers of the match industry in Canada. Over 70 years of constructive efforts have built a complete organization.

When the first SULPHUR match was made in Canada, EDDY MADE IT.

When the first SAFETY match was made in Canada, EDDY MADE IT.

When the first WAX match was made in Canada, EDDY MADE IT.

When the first SILENT match was made in Canada, EDDY MADE IT.

When the first NON-POISONOUS match was made in Canada, EDDY MADE IT.

Every invention in match-making and match-packing was first introduced into Canada by Eddy's.

May you never know the paralyzing fear of an unexpected blaze—from a match head flying off like a rocket!

To increase the margin of safety, the head of every Eddy match is glued to stay on tight—it can't fly off aflame!

A man strikes an Eddy match. There is a big hot flame that burns bright and steadily. If he shakes out the flame and drops the match on the wooden floor, among sawdust, paper or shavings, it falls dead—black—out—cold—entirely freed from fire risk, with the head still on it.

Every Eddy match now leaving the factory will do just that. It is treated with chemicals to prevent the dangerous "after-glow"—is made self-extinguishing.

First in Safety, first in Convenience, first in Economy, the Eddy ideal still prevails—"The most of the best for the money"—since 1851.

East or West, Eddy's Best.
