TOOK COURSE IN MUSKETRY—Lieut. Leonard Gay of Summerside returned Saturday night from the Canadian Small Arms schools, Connaught Rifle Ranges, near Ottawa where he completed satisfactorily a six weeks course in musketry as musketry officer of the 1st P. E. I. Highlanders. Lieut. Gay is the first Island infantry officer to take this special course since the duration of the war and was the only Islander among the several hundred from Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes who attended this last course. He speaks in glowing terms of the valuable military instructions and information received at this permanent summer school and hopes a number of the N. C. O's will take advantage of the opportunity to attend next summer.

While not a militarist he considers it is necessary in peace to prepare for war, that we as a province can improve our standard of efficiency by having as many as possible take this course whereby the qualifications for instructors may be obtained without cost to themselves or province. Thus we will not be caught as we were in 1914. Mr. Gay will return to Sussex, N. B., and resume his duties with the Royal Bank after a short visit to his home here and in Charlottetown.

Teacher—How many days are there in each month? Johnny—Thirty days has September—the rest I can't remember. The calendar hangs on the wall—why bother me with this at all?

A True Philanthropist

The following is from the Toronto Globe of September 22, 1927: There are many ways of spending a million dollars, and most people, in imagination at least, have spent a few happy moments speculating how they would get rid of that sum should it ever come their way. But among the ways that people would choose it is safe to say that few or millions in the manner adopted by the genial philanthropist, Mr. J. D. O'Connell, who was in Toronto this week, and gave a picnic for orphan children last Saturday. It is estimated that Mr. O'Connell has given away some two million dollars in his free entertainment for children throughout the American Continent. While here he placed $10,000 in the hands of the city to be used for defraying the expenses of a children's picnic each year. There are many adults in the world who profess to love children, but those who love the children of other people to the extent of $2,000,000 are few and far between. It is a unique mission on which Mr. O'Connell is engaged for the rest of his life; that of bringing sunshine and cheer into the lives of tens of thousands of those tender years who have lost father and mother. It is a work that must bring its own reward. And what greater reward can there be than the satisfaction of knowing that one has made glad the heart of a child? John Massey field says that "he who gives a child a treat makes joy-bells ring in Heaven's street." And a greater than Masseyfield has said: "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, ye did it unto Me."

TO VISIT MOON

(By British United Press, PARIS, Oct. 3.—A French mother is training her baby to be the first man on the moon. By the time young Paul Granvauze, now six, grows to the stature of manhood, his mother, Madame Jeanne Granvauze, promises that he will be ready trained for the adventurous journey across nearly a quarter of a million miles of space. A few months ago Paul's airman father, M. Henri Granvauze, was engaged in an argument about the safety of parachutes and offered to stake not only his own life upon them but the lives of his wife and child. Six months before the earth he proposed to abandon his aeroplane and trust to a parachute, and with him would jump his wife, Madame Jeanne, and the child, Paul, each strapped to a parachute. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children stepped in, however, and the test was never made. Shortly afterwards, the father was killed while flying. Madame Granvauze has determined, however, to make her own child a man, and when he is old enough he will be taught the science of those new and still untried devices which will be necessary for a voyage outside our earth's atmosphere. Paul will be trained by exercises and food to withstand heat, cold and will be accustomed to breathe a little air as possible and to live in a rarified atmosphere. Will the way to get Paul Granvauze to the moon be available before the man himself is ready? No one can tell, but there are at least two engineers in France who are optimistic—H. M. Mas and Drouet. These men propose to use centrifugal force, and their idea is to build a wheel so big that its moving rim will hurl a projectile straight to the moon. The car which will carry Paul Granvauze must leave the earth's surface with a speed of eight miles a second. To obtain this enormous speed by means of a revolving wheel, for which the car and its human freight will be cast off like drops of water from a spinning motor-car tyre, the wheel itself will need to be nearly six miles high. If such a wheel revolved twenty-five times a minute, its rim would be whirling fast enough to reach the necessary speed of eight miles a second. A small airfloat car, fastened to the rim, would fly off into space the instant it was released. Enormous unsolved problems are involved in the project of building the necessary bearings on which it could rotate, but Messrs. Mas and Drouet declare that they are not insoluble. To remove the cloudiness which comes over highly polished furniture with a sponge and scrub with a wet chamois wrung out of cold water. A dry chamois breaks the surface and does not remove the blue.

FOOTBALL

The weather man put a damper on the football practice called by the boys on the P. V. College grounds. However the boys are going to make another attempt this evening at the same hour when all the boys are asked to come out and give the "old game" a boost along.

Any fellow who wants to get in the game and get some good outdoor exercise will be welcome on the field and will be given a try out to show his football ability. So come along and swell the sufficient football material ready for the heavy grind when the football games start in a couple of weeks time.

Babe Ruth and Yankees Both Hang Up Home Run Record

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Babe Ruth red short of their best season two and the Yankees both established years ago, when the "Jack Rabbit" ball was in use. The American League's new score was 60 below their best mark, also in 1925. Lou Gehrig, Ruth's team-mate, who led the Bambino for a great part of the season, was the American League runner-up, with 47. In the National League, Hack Wilson of the Cubs, and Cy Williams of the Phillies, ended the season in a tie. Wilson scored his thirtieth yesterday and Williams got his home runs, were more than a hundred.

World Series Springhill To Play Sidelights Here On Friday

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 4.—Rain washed out the range-finding of the Yankee artillery today shortly after it went into action at Forbes Field. The Huggins clouting circus twins, Ruth and Gehrig, sank two long home runs each into the peach-les of the right field stand. Men- sel and Lazerri tried to drop the ball into the temporary bleachers erected in the street back of the left field fence. The Babe remarked later that the Yankees ought to bat for all the fences and said it was a good hitting field. Art Fletcher, the old Phillies manager and now a Yankee coach, declared the talk that the Yankees can't hit curve ball pitching is all "hunk". The New Yorkers have looked over curves all season, said Fletcher. The four hundred visiting newspapermen will be accommodated at a press box that is three feet below "Seaveley" seats in a trench that has been dug 80 feet behind the catcher, will enable the scribe-ground up to pitch the game from the ground.

PREDICTION BASED UPON WEATHER OMEN GIVES PIRATES POSSIBLE EDGE ON YANKEES

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 4.—If there is anything in a weather omen, it means that the Pirates may have the edge on the Yankees in their battle for the world's baseball championship starting Wednesday. The swash buckling National Leaguers captured the world series of 1925 in the mud and mist of Forbes Field, and it appeared today, as a steady rain turned this battle ground into a quagmire, that the elements were again casting favorable signs towards the Corsairs. But the prospects for the opening day is for brighter and fairer weather.

Today was dark and gloomy as the rival clans gathered for baseball's classic and the game's white helms prevailed. Commissioner Landis, arrived to give the scene a preliminary survey. However, there was anything but a dark and gloomy touch to the spirits of the wallowing Yanks who reached the scene of the conflict this morning, or the attitude of the Pirates, re-assembled again after their great fight for the National League pennant.

However, there was anything but a dark and gloomy touch to the spirits of the wallowing Yanks who reached the scene of the conflict this morning, or the attitude of the Pirates, re-assembled again after their great fight for the National League pennant.

ably will start Hoyt, but he declines to commit himself definitely today, beyond saying that the first game would see either Hoyt or Wilcy Moore, the Oklahoma "Sink-er ball" artist on the mound. Huggins will make a positive selection after tomorrow's workout.

HOYT WARMS UP Hoyt, however, warmed up today during the brief drill the Yanks had around noon at Forbes Field before the rain chased them to shelter. He has been the mainstay of the Yankee corps this season and most right-hand flingers in the game.

The Yanks, led by the irresponsible Babe Ruth and Bustin's Lou Gehrig, were bubbling over with good spirits on their arrival, when a big crowd greeted them, as well as at the field later.

BABE SEEKS RECORDS Fresh from establishing his new major league record of 60 home runs, the Babe is keen to knock out a few more records in the series. He took a few healthy wallops at the ball today that indicated he won't have much difficulty finding Forbes Field range, even though the Pirate club, to minimize the outfield target, has built its extra stands above and beyond the fences instead of encroaching, as in the past, on any of the field's play. The home club frankly admitted it was actuated by a desire to make it just as difficult as possible for the siege guns of the Yanks to break up any ball games with long distance shots. Special permission to close the adjoining streets was obtained to put up extra stands.

BIG BAMBITO CHEERED Ruth, attired in an odd uniform

YANKS FAVORITES

The Yanks have been and seem likely to remain slight favorites in betting circles, at least until the first game. But in spite of the tremendous threat in the Yankee big guns, in the way they bombarded all American League opposition, the idea persists that the Pirates, with speed and pitching, as well as an effective punch to south on, will give their rivals a sensational fight.

Should the series go to seven games, or even six, world's series records for attendance and gate receipts seem certain to be shattered.

With so thorough a preparation at hand as Miller's Worm Powders the mother who allows her children to suffer from the ravages of worms is unwise and culpably careless. A child subject to the attacks of worms is always unhealthy, and will be stunted in its growth. It is a merciful act to rid it of these destructive parasites, especially when it can be done without difficulty.
