"There Is No Market For Those Securities"

Poor consolation to an investor who in good faith has bought them with surplus earnings, and with the idea that if he required the money at any time he could realize upon them. Thus it is well in selecting securities for investment to purchase those for which there is a ready market. Now it is nearly as difficult for the inexperienced investor to correctly decide such a matter as it is for the layman to argue his own case or to successfully carry through some engineering undertaking. He will attempt neither. He will engage a lawyer or an engineer to attend to such matters for him. Investing money successfully is a business in itself. Consult an investment house when you have funds available for this purpose.

Don't hesitate to talk over your investment with us, you will place yourself under no obligation in doing so.

THE FATE OF THE FISHER.

The July morning sun was calm and fair
No ripple on the river, sea or bay,
The fisher dons his suit of oils with care,
And boards his boat for labours of the day.

He turns his engine and his boat speeds on.
Graceful, like sea bird on the lake, she skims,
I hear him singing in the morning dawn
His favorite sea-song (When my ship comes in.)

When will she come, no doubt the fisher feels
At early eve he will return to shore,
But ah, ere set of sun twill be revealed,
His little craft will come with him no more.

Without a threat of storm in all the sky,
Without a sign to warn aim what is near
The sea accumulates to mountains high,
And fills his boat with water, him with fear.

She floats a moment on the ocean there,
As if his God is harkening to his shout,
A moment, just to speak the smothered prayer,
And then the spark in man and boat is out.

And since men wander on the surf worn shore,
They hear the sea-birds' solitary call,
And gaze o'er waves which rumbling tumbling roar,
And find a bit of wreckage, this is all.

He told me as I chatted with him oft,
He never wished to own great wealth or gold,
Now in the esteem of man be held aloft,
But "that my life be done, ere I am old."

Kind in his dealings, faithful, true and just,
This daring rover of the silvery sea,
Though in his fishers suit, like Hudson's bust,
Affectionate to all whoe'er they be.

Good bye dear friend, oft will I think of thee,
Buried by cruel fate beneath the surf,
But you will sleep as well below the sea,
As I, and thousands more will, under turf.

FOOLISH AFFECTIONS.

Some men of genius have undoubtedly believed with Thackeray that it is better to love foolishly than not at all; that they have practiced this philosophy is proved by their memoirs and biographies.

Leigh Hunt loved a good girl whose spelling was unconventional, and whose chirography could not be called her chief accomplishment, Keats was wildly, madly in love with a commonplace girl named Fanny Browne. He married her, but she was incapable of appreciating him.

Hazlitt, the brilliant essayist, loved the pert, coarse daughter of his landlady. He wrote her a letter which she never answered, and he said that "the rolling years of eternity would not fill up the blank that her failure to answer that letter caused."

A practical Scottish girl, Charlotte Carpenter, won Walter Scott's love She not only hated literature, but objected to writing to him. He wrote her, saying, "You must write me once a week." She replied, "You are quite out of your senses, and you geed not put in so many 'musts' in your letters. It is beginning too early."

ADVICE FOR BRIDES AND OTHERS.

When you marry love him.
After you marry him, study him.
If he be honest, honor him.
If he be generous appreciate him.
When he is sad cheer him.
When he is cross, amuse him.
When he is talkative, listen to him.
When he is quarrelsome, ignore him.
If he be confidential encourage him.
If he be slothful spur him.
If he be noble praise him.
If he is jealous cure him.
If he cares not for pleasure, coax him.
If he favors society, accompany him.
If he does you a favor, thank him.
When he deserves it kiss him.
Let him think how well you understand him.

THE HADDOCK'S MARKS.

Why do haddocks carry those peculiar black finger marks near the head? Some tell us that they are a memento of the pleasure of St. Peter's fingers when he went fishing for the tribute money. On the Yorkshire coast of England they saw the devil once determined to build a bridge at Filey. His Satanic majesty did not start the bridge for the convenience of the people, but for the destruction of ships and sailors and the annoyance of fishermen in general. In the progress of his work Old Nick dropped his hammer into the sea. Snatching at it hastily, he caught a haddock, and all haddocks carry the imprint of his black fingers today.

BOWEL TROUBLES

ARE CURABLE BY THE USE OF

DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY

Mrs. Shaw Lunn, Falmouth, N.S., writes. —"I am dropping you a line to let you know what Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has done for us. Last summer my little girl had diarrhœa so bad she passed blood. A friend told me of the Extract, so I sent and got a bottle of it, and six doses cured her. In December, 1911, my brother came home from the woods very bad with cramps and diarrhœa, and thought he would have to call the doctor. I thought of the bottle of "Dr. Fowler's" I had in the house, and gave it to him, and in three days he was as well as ever and went back to his work again. I would not be without it in the house if it cost twice as much."

See that you get Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry when you ask for it.
