SEASON OPENS— Hunters were out early Saturday morning in quest of the elusive wild ducks as the season was officially opened. Sportsmen reported that there is an abundance of birds this year but not many were bagged the opening day because of the difficulty in retrieving them. This was caused by the ponds being swollen with water during the extremely wet summer. However, the hunters returned to their homes Saturday with a few birds, most of them wet —all of them happy after a day of pleasant recreation. The ducks which were shot proved to be fat ones and appeared to have been well fed.

TUESDAY

A parachute with a bomb flare attached caused a great deal of excitement in Souris yesterday when it was dropped from a high-flying airplane passing over the Eastern King's town. It was later picked up in a field at Little Harbour, about four miles east of Souris, by 17-year-old Peter Creamer of Souris. Six carloads of citizens pursued the falling parachute and were rewarded for their efforts when it landed.

Mr. Stewart McAulay, Air Observer with the Aircraft Detection Corps, Souris, was one of the many citizens who happened to be watching two planes flying over the town about 4.20 p. m. One was a single-engined Harvard plane similar to those in use at the R. C. A. F. camp at Summerside while the other appeared to be an Anson, twin-engine plane, the type used at the R. A. F. camp in Charlottetown. The latter was flying very high but as the watchers faced west it was difficult to get a clear picture because the sun was in their eyes. "The first thing I noticed was a puff of smoke," Mr. McAulay said. "We thought something had gone wrong with the plane. Then we saw a parachute opening and followed it to Little Harbour where it fell in a field," he added.

Group Captain E. A. Blake, Officer Commanding the No. 31 General Reconnaissance School, R. A. F. when informed of the strange happening last evening, said that no report of any flares dropped had been received from any of his men. However, the possibility of one of these having accidentally dropped from a plane was suggested.

OUTLOOK FOR POTATOES BETTER — "The fine weather and sunshine, which has prevailed in the province this week, has a tendency to dry up any blight spores that cause rot in potatoes," was the rather optimistic statement made last night by Mr. S. G. Peppin, in charge of the seed potato inspection. Although the frost last Friday night undoubtedly did a lot of damage to the green vines, on the other hand it also killed any blight spores on the leaves or surface of the ground that it reached, he added. Very few tubers have been dug yet and it will be about 10 days before the inspectors will be on their rounds again.

The Egmont Bay and Mont Carmel exhibition was held yesterday afternoon and was as usual, a great success. The beautiful weather brought a record attendance and the exhibits were up to their usual standard, although in some sections down a little in quantity. This was particularly noticeable in the grain and roots. The poor summer was chiefly to blame for this as the land in that part of the country is very low lying and the farmers could not get on the land very early. Dr. J. A. Clark, Superintendent of the Experimental Farm, who judged the grain and seeds, was very pleased with these exhibits. He said considering the year the timothy seed was excellent. There was also some very high grade turnip seed and some very good wheat.

His Honor Lieutenant Governor B. W. LePage officially opened the exhibition with a few highly complimentary remarks on the excellent showing of farm produce. He had a special word of praise for the women, who had excelled in their arts and crafts.
