sooner or later are candidates for glasses. Only an expert optician can tell you just when that day has arrived. A sensible regard for one's eyesight dictates the use of spectacles the moment they are necessary. Show foresight and not hindsight in safeguarding your vision. NOT AFRAID TO ENDGRSE IT.

People have learned to have such confidence in Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for every form of piles that they do not hesitate to endorse it at every opportunity. As a result Dr. Chase's Ointment is probably recommended by more persons than any preparation on the market today. There is no guess-work about its effects—relief is prompt and cure certain.

The half may be better than the whole, but give a kid a pie and see when he stops.

AN UNKNOWN LAND.

Parts of the Old Roman Empire Unseen by Modern Eyes.

Few people appreciate the fact that today, at the dawn of the twentieth century, there are still parts of the old Roman empire where no traveler of modern times has been; that there are ancient towns which no tourist has seen, temples and towers that no lover of classic literature has delighted in, inscriptions in ancient Greek that no savant has as yet deciphered—whole regions, in fact, full of antiquities for which no Baedeker has been written and which are not shown upon the latest maps. There are regions within our temperate zone where no modern European foot has trod, so far as we are able to tell—regions where the civilization of Greece and Rome once flourished and where fine monuments of classic art and of an unfamiliar art that supplanted the classic waste their beauties upon the ignorant sight of half civilized nomads.

To realize the truth of this one needs only to cross the ranges of mountains that run parallel to the eastern coast of the Mediterranean and, avoiding all caravan routes, journey independently about the barren country that lies between these mountains and the Euphrates. Here is a territory which, though not wholly unexplored, is full of most wonderful surprises. Here are cities and towns long deserted, not so great or so imposing perhaps as Palmyra, but far better preserved than the city of Zenobia and giving a much truer picture of the life of the ancient inhabitants than one can draw from these famous ruins.

These towns are not buried, like the great cities of the Mesopotamian plains, nor have their sites been built upon in modern times, as those of the classic cities of Greece have been. They stand out against the sky upon high ridges or lie sheltered in sequestered valleys, presenting to the view of the traveler as he approaches them very much the same aspect as they did in the fourth century of our era when inhabited by prosperous, cultivated and happy people or when deserted by those inhabitants some 1,300 years ago.

A Queer Career.

The Paris papers record the death of the aged Mgr. Bauer, who was formerly father confessor to the Empress Eugenie and is known to have had a considerable influence over the unfortunate direction of her policy. He was a Jew by birth, and during the fourth decade of the last century he was a busy man upon the Paris bourse. In 1855 he astounded his kinsfolk and fellow financiers by turning Roman Catholic. He was no less successful as a Christian than he had been as a Hebrew. He was ordained priest, taken up by Napoleon III., became the religious counselor of the empress and was made a monseigneur by Pope Pius IX. A few years ago the old priest added to the list of surprises which characterized his life by taking to himself a wife.—Westminster Gazette.

Straw Hats Need Brushing.

"It's a strange thing," said the hat man after he had sold a three dollar panama, "that men who brush a derby or a soft hat every day never put a brush to a straw hat. There is no reason for the neglect. Straw hats need brushing more often than the others, for the dust clings to them and is more noticeable. If you brush your straw hat every day and scrub it with a stiff brush dipped in tepid water once or twice a season it will last two years with proper care."—New York Press.

The Source of an Epidemic.

The Swiss town of Hagendorf had a typhoid epidemic not long ago, and it was suspected that it was started in a house in the upper part of the village where there had been some cases prior to the general outbreak. To test this theory fluorescin was put into the drainage water from this house, coloring it green. Nine hours later the whole water supply of the town was colored green, thus proving the fatal connection.

Salt to Prevent Cancer.

In a long study of malignant cancers Captain Rost, a young medical officer in India, has found that the bacteria attending the disease develop only when the natural chlorine of the body falls below the normal. By adding to the chlorine of the food, especially by increasing the use of salt, he claims to have cured one patient in the eight treated and to have benefited the others.

The Yard Measure.

King Henry I. had an arm thirty-six inches long. That is why the English yard is its present length, a little fact which many students have learned and forgotten.

Box Shooks.

A box shook is a set of boards prepared for the making of a box and packed up for convenience of transport. A house shook is all the material for one frame house put up in compact form for shipment, etc.

Coffee Inebriates.

There are coffee inebriates in Paris. Usually they are laundresses, a class of women who are especially devoted to the fragrant beverage. The coffee inebriate comes at last to such a state that he or she lives almost exclusively on an effusion of the beloved berry, with the addition of a little bread soaked in it.

The Blunderer.

She—Of course, he bored me awfully, but I don't think I showed it. Every time I yawned I just hid it with my hand.

He (trying to be gallant)—Really, I don't see how a hand so small could—er—hide—er—that is—beastly weather we're having, isn't it?—Philadelphia Press.

Military Exercises.

N. Y. Guard—I suppose when you were in the army you often saw a picket fence?

G. A. R. Mann—Yes, but it was a more common sight to see a sentry box.

An Opinion.

Tourist—I'm afraid you're prejudiced against the bulls and bears.

Farmer—Mebbe so. Anyhow, I think there's more useful animals than they are.

It is a bad plan to throw stones even if you live in a house made of solid rock.—Atchison Globe.

Genius begins great works. Labor alone finishes them.—Joubert.

Any Sore That Will Not Heal,

Any Ulceration, Eruption or Irritation of the Skin is Curable by means of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

There is no guess work about the results obtainable from Dr. Chase's Ointment.

With all medicines taken internally there is more or less uncertainty as to the effect, because the condition may not be exactly as indicated by the symptoms, but if you have a sore or wound and apply Dr. Chase's Ointment and heal it you can see with your own eyes the definite results.

It is because of the certain results accompanying the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment that this great preparation has come to be standard the world over. If a dealer offers you any other ointment, does he do so on its merits, or does he not rather try to make a sale by saying "This is just as good as Dr. Chase's?"

As a matter of fact, Dr. Chase's Ointment is now so universally used that few dealers think of offering anything else when a cure is sought for eczema, salt rheum, old sores or piles. There is scarcely a town, village or side line in this whole land but can point to some case in which Dr. Chase's Ointment has made a remarkable cure.

While this ointment is best known on account of its extraordinary success in curing the most torturing skin diseases and the most distressing forms of piles, it is also useful in scores of ways in every home for the cure of scalds, burns, wounds, old sores, chafing, skin irritation, sore feet, pimples, rough skin and everything for which an antiseptic, soothing treatment is needed.

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt-book author, are on every box of his remedies.
