—GIRL GUIDE FLAG DEDICATED—A very impressive ceremony formed a part of the morning service at St. Mary's Church, Summerside, on Sunday when the Union Jack of the 1st Summerside Company of Girl Guides was dedicated at God's Altar for "God, King and Country." The Guides attended in a body, also the newly formed Brownie Troop. Rev. G. R. Harrison, chaplain of the Guides and rector of St. Mary's conducted the service of dedication, the flag being presented by Miss Carrie Holman, Commissioner for Prince County, assisted by Captain Elaine Harrison, and Lieut. Adel Parkman and Lieut. Blanche Hogg. Rev. Mr. Harrison preached a very inspiring sermon on the duty of Scouts and Guides, emphasizing the necessity of keeping always to the forefront that duty towards God comes first and is essential for our happiness and the fulfillment of our duty towards each other. He asked the young Guides to always strive to do their duty in all things but particularly in that part of their Guiding activities which brings them into fellowship with God. Appropriate hymns were sung by a full choir and congregation. The 1st Summerside Troop of Guides was re-organized only recently with Miss Elaine Harrison as Captain. At a meeting of the Guides on Friday, Miss Harrison received her Warrent from Commissioner Carrie Holman. The Brownie Troop was formed last week with Miss Jean Profitt as Brown Owl and Miss Connie Denny, Tawny Owl. The Brownies attended the service on Sunday and took their part in the ceremony very creditably for such tiny tots.—S

SILVER WINGS RALLY TO CLINCH GAME

On Monday evening in Kensington rink the Kensington Silver Wings went out in front by a two goal lead in the semi-finals, for a play-off berth, by defeating the Hunter River Royals 3 to 1.

Trailing 1 to 0 going into the second period the smooth working Silver Wings showing a reversal of form from their last two starts, slammed home three counters in the second session to hand the Hunter River Royals their worst defeat of the season.

This game being the first of a two game series with goals to coun , to put either team into the finals, was one of the best games witnessed in this rink this season, fast, tricky, rugged but clean throughout. With the opening gong play see-sawed back and forth slowly, both teams feeling one another and until the ten minute mark Sinclair received a penalty for holding, the Silver Wings put on the pressure and although missing some beautiful chances to score, they were held off until Sinclair returned, and Wood at this point slipped around the Silver Wings to beat Champion with a slow shot, the Silver Wings continued to force the play and although having the edge in the play were unable to beat Watts for the equalizer, thus ending the scoring in the first period. Nine minutes after the opening gong of the second session, Waite gathering in the rubber at his own blue line stick-handled as only Biff can through the whole Royal team, to beat Watts for the tieing goal, and a few minutes later Bernard and Waite combined to make it two to one for the Silver Wings, when Bernard, made no mistake when he had Watts at his mercy after receiving a well placed pass from Waite, the Royals from this point on rushed continually but were turned back time after time by the Silver Wings defence clearing nicely, when the Royals continued to shoot from outside the blue line and following in threatening but seldom by this method of play, the second line of Ready Cooke and Howatt, made the red light flicker, Howatt registering but the goal was disallowed, the Royals claiming and goal judge Keith Waite ruling, that the puck went into the net through a hole in the netting, shortly after this, Hughes the speed artist of the North Short League on a beautiful solo from behind his own net went through the whole Royal team and scored the last goal of the game, although Howatt was once more robbed of a counter the goal being disallowed as the bell had gone to end the period just before the shot was made. The third period featured a close checking game by the Silver Wings who seemed content with their two goal lead, to hold the Royals scoreless until the final gong sounded.

NOTES

Honors for best man on the ice goes to Biff, with his having plays getting the tieing goal and assisting in the one that put his team out in front, no one can take it away from him.

For second choice your scribe picks Pat, for he got a beautiful goal and his bursts of speed in back checking and boring in tacties made him a dangerous man all through the game.

LePage of the Royals is the sniper's third choice, playing a smart defence game, with his hard clean checking and making some dangerous rushes he was always a threat to the Silver Wings. —H.

Of "Equal Righters" Yellow Bows Symbol

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Yellow ribbon bowknots worn by women advocates of an "equal rights" amendment provided a reminder today of the suffrage fight 20 years ago when feminists wore gay wide sashes during forays to Congress.

The little lapel bows distinguished supporters of the proposed constitutional amendment at hearings before a Senate judiciary sub-committee. Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller said the bows were yellow because that was one of the colors of every prosuffrage organization.

Mrs. Miller, Democratic National Committeewoman from Pennsylvania, declared the 18-word amendment providing that "women shall have equal rights with men in the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction" is merely a corollary to the suffrage amendment.

The yellow ribboners, beginning their second day of protests against restrictions on women under the law, also revived the passionate oratory of old suffrage days.

They used plain words. They gestured with spectacles, pencils or whatever was handy.

"Laws protecting women from night work are ridiculous poppycock," declared Mrs. Maud Williams, auburn-haired New York proof reader.

"We working women want equal rights, not so-called welfare laws for women only, added Mollie Maloney, New York bookbinder.

Representatives of the Trade Union League, the National League of Women's Voters, the National Council of Catholic Women who spoke against the proposal earlier in the week, argued that women in industry, more poorly organized than men, need special legislation to prevent exploitation.

MANY CURES ACHIEVED IN MISSION TO LEPERS

Nearly 10,000 cured cases of leprosy have been discharged by the International Mission to Lepers, which co-operates with 37 denominations and whose headquarters is in London, in the past 15 years. This information was given to the congregation of Westmount Park Church, Montreal, Sunday night by Rev. J. H. Schultz, of Chandkhuri, India. Only three per cent of the total discharged have had to return for treatment, he said.

Mr. Schultz voiced the assurance that the number of arrested cases would be far greater in future as more persons in the early stages of the disease were turned over to the mission than formerly. Practically all lepers were infected before the age of seven years, he said, and the disease was more prevalent in the rice-eating districts of India than in areas where the people could procure wheat.

VETERAN CAPTAIN BUILDING MODELS

HALIFAX, Feb. 21—Model ships have taken the place of the vessels he skippered on the seven seas, and Captain Patrick Tayleur complacently recalls the high spots in his varied career as he approaches his 81st birthday.

Captain Tayleur is at present working on a huge full-rigged craft 10 feet long and nine feet high which he expects to complete early next month.

The 80 year old native of Maitland, N. S., who went to sea for the first time at 12 years of age, shipped out of Boston as a deck hand on the El Capitan, a three-masted full-rigged sailing packet bound for Calcutta and Shanghai. Eleven years later, he received his master's papers—the youngest captain in the American merchant marine. His command was the Luzon, sailing out of Halifax.

Captain Tayleur in his career of almost 70 years as a seaman has lived in China, Siam, Burma, India, New Zealand, Mexico, Germany, France, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Greece, Egypt, the South Sea Islands and England. He walked from Leningrad on the Baltic to Odessa on the Black Sea, and across the United States and Australia, he relates.

"My last command was my first and last steamer," he said. "She was the Mongolia, 25,000 tons, out of New York for Frisco."

VESSELS HAVE BAIT TROUBLE

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Feb. 21 —It took a brand new ruling by the Customs Department to meet the situation, but Nova Scotia fishing schooners can get bait from Newfoundland coastal ports a lot easier now.

Discrepancy in the Coastwise Trading Act became evident when three Nova Scotian schooners put in to Belleoram for bait. There was no bait available at Belleoram, but a quantity could be had at Rencontre, 10 miles away. Only difference was that Belleoram was an official port of entry, and Rencontre wasn't.

According to the Act, no vessel not of Newfoundland register is able to enter a port for the purpose of buying or selling when such a port is not a port of entry. As a result, the people of Rencontre lost a fine chance to sell some bait, and the schooners lost considerable time.

Under a new ruling adopted a short time after the Rencontre experience, fishing schooners seeking bait must enter a recognized port of entry, and can then go on to any other port they choose to pick up their bait.

A FRIENDLY WARNING

"I realize I owe a lot to my country," declared the orator.

Railway Trainmen Celebrate Founding Of Their Order

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 21—Celebrating the 50th anniversary of their organization, members of L. L. Peltier Lodge No. 14, of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, gathered in the Mount Royal Hotel, Montreal, this weekend paid tribute to the 85 year old founder L. K. Peltier, of Fort Willim, Ont. A. F. Whitney, of Cleveland, President of the Brotherhood, who presented Mr. Peltier with a cane, recalled that the organization had grown from 13 lodges with a membership of 11,482 half a century ago, to 974 lodges with a membership of 143,360. Funds had grown from $11,000,000 to $167,000,000. In Canada, it was pointed out, there are 92 lodges with 11,456 members, in Quebec 14 lodges with 2,085. The Peltier Lodge, made up of Canadian National Railways employees, has 522 members and is the largest in Canada.

"I was the spearhead, the men were the shaft," said Mr. Peltier, reminiscening of early railroad days and the founding of the lodge, which was given his name. The half a century of progress, he thought, was an example to organized labor elsewhere. A. J. Hills, chief of personnel, Canadian National Railways, spoke of the stabilizing influence of a unit which had oxisted 50 years and, on behalf of the railway management, thanked the trainmen for their co-operation. "Without the co-operation of organized labor," he said, "we could not get anywhere. We have to thank the employees for the fact the national system is such an efficiently operated railway." Speaking of the assistance given by co-operative groups, he said that the management had adopted suggestions given by the men at the rate of six a day for thirteen years. At the Saturday afternoon session, 50-year membership emblems were presented by the Brotherhood to Henry Moreau, Westmount, who was unable to be present in person, and to J. Croteau, Parent, Que. James Barker spoke on behalf of five 40-year members. Other speakers included A. J. Kelly, Legislative representative.

Among the guests at a banquet in the evening were the Mayor and Mrs. Raynault, W. A. Kingsland, Vice President, Canadian National Railways, Central Region, Toronto; Mr. Hills, Mr. and Mrs. Whitney, Miss Mary Cusack, Vice President of the Ladies' Auxiliary, T. C. Hudson, R. C. Johnston, P. B. Corrigan, W. G. Doherty, Hon. Charles Arcand, J. L. Burns, C. I. Warren, W. G. McGovern, E. R. Rody, J. Beckstead. In places of honor were Mr. Peltier and the other veterans, A. A. Richard, President of the Lodge, presided at the meetings. John C. Berry, Past President, was chairman of the Anniversary Committee. After the dinner, the trainmen enjoyed a floor show and dance. They attended church services Sunday morning and a hockey game in the afternoon, and, in the evening, held a reception and dance in the Carioca Grill.

SCHOOLS FOR BRIDES SHOULD MAKE FOR HAPPY HUSBANDS

CENTERVILLE, Ia., Feb. 21.—A series of "schools" to give tips to prospective brides is being sponsored here.

The purpose of the series, sponsored by the Appanoose County unit of the Iowa Federation of Women's Clubs, is to promote successful marriages. The club hopes to see the idea spread.

At the first "school," two young women served as the bride and groom. The bride, Georgia Hart, who soon is to become an actual bride, was given advice by Mrs. J. S. Caylor, a widow who was married 65 years. She said:

"It's harder to have successful marriages today; don't quarrel, be loyal companions."

A minister, doctor and a clubwoman also presented marital advice. A housewife displayed a hope chest and told brides how to fill it.

The Centerville club women plan to start a "bride's club," to give counsel under auspices of the federation.

Mrs. W. M. Spears, Centerville clud leader, said the goal of the unit is to establish statewide "bride schools."

MAY COMPETE IN MARATHON

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Feb 21 — Newfoundland may be represented in the Boston Marathon, America's greatest long-distance classic, this year by Pat Kelly, champion distance runner of Britain's oldest colony during the last five years.

The Board of Governors of the St. John's Amateur Athletic Association hope to send Kelly to Boston for the event and the Newfoundland runner has been training regularly throughout the winter.

Donald O'Toole was the last Newfoundlander to compete in the famed marathon, finishing sixth in a field of 200 entries.

SAYS SHE'S 40 BUT MOSTLY 16

LONDON, Feb. 18—(CP)—Gracie Fields, popular actress who was made a Commander of the Order of the British Empire in the New Year honors list, has this to say about her age:

"Yes, I'm 40. I was born on Jan. 9, 1898, and you can add it up as you like, double it, halve it, take away the number you first thought of, and still I'm 40. What does it feel like to be 40? Well, speaking for myself I'd say it doesn't feel like anything. Sometimes I feel like 16; others, I feel 60. It's mostly 16, thank God."

We minimize our faults in the lights of others, whose shortcomings seem greater than ours.

Storied Parish Seeks Shepherd

WASDALE, Cumberland, Feb. 21 —(CP)—The united benefice of Wasdale, a parish abounding in legend and one of the most rugged in England, is seeking a new vicar. Although the parish covers an area of more than 10,000 acres, it embraces only 150 souls.

The church where the vicar conducts service stands in the shadow of Scafell Pike, the highest peak in England, at 3,210 feet. A low building with only three windows and seating 40 persons, the church is surrounded by the graves of those who have lost their lives in efforts to scale the precipitous ranges nearby.

Less than a century ago there was no enclosing wall or door on the church. A thorn bush served to keep out the sheep. At such times as it was required the church was bedded with bracken like a stable and had only two pews. The rest of the worshippers brought feeding troughs or wooden blocks on which to sit.

Until 1901 there was no burial ground at Wasdale and the coffins, strapped to a horse, were taken over the fells to a cemetery at Eksdale. This practice gave rise to a story of the dale ghost—a galloping horse seen dimly through the mist, with a coffin strapped to its back.

Legend has it that at a young man's funeral the horse took fright and bolted, being lost in the mist. The mother fretted and died and at her funeral on a snowy day, the horse bearing her coffin was also lost.

Spartan Life Grim Test Of Medicine Man

(By Muriel Adams Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA, Feb. 21—(CP)—From the pages of an anthropologists diary unfolds the life story of a grey-haired, deeply-lined, stout, old Indian medicine man who sits in a dark two-roomed shack near Vancouver and surveys the civilization of his race, still retaining the deep spiritual faith in olden gods that won him wide recognition among the ancient peoples of the Pacific Coast.

In notebooks of Diamond Jenness, chief of the anthropological division of the National Museum, is told the story of Pierre, 75-year-old medicine man of Kakzie village, whose son, Simon, leading spokesman of the coastal Indians, represented his tribe, Coast Salish, at last year's Coronation.

Son of a medicine woman, Pierre began his spiritual training at the age of three when he was taught to bathe in the river even on the coldest of winter morns and rub himself down with spruce boughs. Too, he was denied the pleasure of crawling into bed with his mother on cold dark mornings and was kept aside from the other children in the family.

At the age of eight the training began in earnest. When snow was on the ground, trees and bushes devoid of nuts and berries, he was sent out into the forest alone, with instructions to bathe in every pool he found, rub himself with spruce boughs and kneel and pray to "Him-who-dwells-above" to make him pure in mind and body and give him power over the ills of mankind.

Stricken with fear at noon-day Pierre ran home only to be ignored by his mother and refused food. Early next morning he again went to the woods to repeat the performance of the day before. He remained until mid-afternoon. The third day it was almost dark before Pierre returned, familiched from three days of fasting, but there was no food—only words of encouragement from his mother.

On his return after dark the fourth day there was a scanty fish supper ready for Pierre, but half an hour after eating he was given a long feather and sent to the river with instructions to bathe and then tickle his throat so that he would give back to the river what had been taken from it.

Until spring came, Pierre made long treks into the woods, sometimes staying for weeks at a time all the while fasting and praying for purity and power to heal sickness. Throughout the spring, summer and early fall, he lived a normal life, but was always careful to keep to himself and never shirked bathing.

For four winters Pierre did not relent from his difficult routine and each year found his resistance stronger and his body harder.

Caught the Vision

At long last he received his vision. Lying on the ground in a state of unconsciousness exhausted after bathing and dancing wildly, Pierre heard a medicine man singing far away. Evil medicine men seemed to swarm around him distracting his attention from the true one, but he kept praying continually for power to conquer the evil voices and reach the true medicine-man.

Finally he came to the abode of the singing man and on entering joined the kneeling man on the floor beside a mystic vessel containing water. In front of them appeared a human form afflicted with every known disease.

"Wash your hands and wrists in this water," said the healer, "now lay your hands on that sickness and remove it."

As Pierre laid his hands on the patient he cupped the sickness out with them and the patient rose to his feet completely cured.

"Chant the song you have heard me sing and cup the sickness out with your hands in like manner and you shall cure every ill," said the image.

Now that he had received this long-awaited power, Pierre awoke refreshed, with a feeling of power in his wrists and hands. He heard a voice from a tree giving him world-wide vision and a stone spoke giving his mouth power to suck out evil power.

Pierre at 42 years of age was a full-fledged medicine man. His fast and solitude over, he was free to return home and join in the fishing and hunting. Two years later Pierre cured his first patient, a girl of 17 who is still alive and one of his most frequent visitors. He said she had a tumor.
