BE CAREFUL

in your choice of an ointment. An inferior ointment is worse than none at all, because it irritates and inflames; and sometimes even poisons the place it is intended to soothe and heal. In using Zam-Buk you take no risk, as its soothing, healing properties have been proved by thousands of users, and its purity is vouched for by the famous English Chemist, Mr. W. Lascelles Scott, who says:

"I have made an exhaustive analytical examination of Zam-Buk, and find it exclusively of vegetable origin, with none of the impure and irritating mineral drugs and animal fats found in ordinary ointments. The germ-destroying powers of Zam-Buk exceed those of carbolic acid, yet it does not inflame even the most sensitive skin. I have no hesitation in certifying the purity of Zam-Buk, and its value for skin diseases and injuries."

Zam-Buk is best for eczema, ulcers, running sores, old wounds, abscesses, blood-poisoning, boils, pimples, piles, cuts, burns, scalds and all skin injuries. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25, all druggists or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Send 1c. stamp for postage on free trial box.

HOW WE CAPTURED VILLERS-BRETONNEUX

Our Gunners Put Down a Sharp Barrage and the Infantry Swept Forward, Taking the Town by Surprise—Enemy Detachments Cut Off or Bottled Up So That They Cannot Get Out of the Narrow Neck.—The Tanks' Battle Royal.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 29—Success in the southern sector of the battle front and a long, fierce struggle in the north have fallen to the lot of the Allied arms in the contest for vital possessions which the Germans have been trying at a heavy cost of life, to secure. The latest information from the south is that Villers-Bretonneux has been retaken as a result of a brilliant British counter attack, and not only has the town been virtually cleared of the enemy, but a large portion of the original positions, north and south of it, have been reclaimed. German dead are heaped about the unhappy town and seven hundred prisoners are in British camps.

In the north Mount Kemmel has been attacked desperately by a great force of German troops especially trained for mountain warfare. The attempt on Mount Kemmel is another move in the Germans' obvious scheme to get control of a chain of hills running east and west in this sector, and including such elevations as Wytschaete, Kemmel, Scherpenberg, Mont Touge, Vidaigne and Mont Descats. This pretentious programme has as its object the forcing of the Allies to pull back their lines to the north still further.

Hill Troops Employed.

The northern attack this morning was along a front extending from Wyschaete nearly to Bailleul and it was carried out by at least four, and possibly six, German divisions. The infantry employed were largely picked hill troops, including the Alpine corps, the 117th. division, and the 11th Bavarian, with Jaegers in reserve.

The brunt of the assault came against the French who were defending Kemmel, which was the enemy's goal. At two o'clock this morning the German artillery opened a heavy bombardment on Kemmel and surrounding country with gas and for more than an hour maintained a deluge of these poison bearing missiles. Between three and four o'clock the German hill men rushed forward and attacked the positions protecting Kemmel Hill. At the same time they began pushing further to the south in order to furnish a protecting flank.

Simultaneously with their attacks at Villers-Bretonneux the Germans also began operations to the south against the French and north of the river Somme. At Sailly le Sac and Val several attacks were repulsed during the early hours.

The first drive against Villers Bretonneux was made with two divisions and this was thrown back. The Germans immediately put two fresh divisions into line and again surged forward. Five tanks were sent to the north through the valley leading through the southern part of the town and the engines were followed by large forces of infantry. By noon the Germans had swung a salient about six thousand wide and 4,000 yards deep about Villers-Bretonneux and were holding the town strongly. This they continued to do until ten o'clock last night when the British delivered a surprise counter-attack. There should have been a moon to assist the British, but the sky was heavily overcast and a dense mist hung over the region.

Taken By Surprise.

According to prisoners the enemy had no anticipation of further trouble from the British last night and were sitting snugly in their new position when the storm broke. The German artillery had perhaps been lulled into false securities and was doing little shelling.

At the appointed hour the British gunners put down a sharp barrage and the infantry drove forward. The attack was made from the southwest and northwest on Villers Bretonneux and these two forces drove in towards the eastern part of the town in a converging movement. As a result the British bottled the town up. The British infantry immediately rushed the town and heavy hand-to-hand fighting ensued, the bayonet being used freely. Six hundred prisoners were taken here alone and a competitor jerys them in in the air. A great number of the enemy were killed. The town was virtually cleared, and today only a few scattered pockets of Germans are in the place. Some of them are still dug in along the Villers-Bretonneux Marcecave railway embankment with machine guns, but their ultimate extermination or capture is certain.

In the Bois D'aquenne, just west of Villers-Bretonneux, one German officer and forty men had got a footing yesterday and they hung on until this morning, although they were completely cut off; they surrendered to-day.

Recaptured Old Lines.

In a counter-attack a large part of the old British positions about Villers Bretonneux were regained. Today these Germans who still remained in the bottle could not get out, and their comrades were unable to get through the narrow neck to assist them.

During yesterday's fighting the Germans at one time got as far as Cachy, southwest of Villers-Bretonneux, and this represented their greatest advance. The tanks furnished the most dramatic chapter of the story of yesterday's battle. These tanks, which the Germans employed for the first time, were bulky affairs with heavy armor and guns. The British tanks, which were thrown into the action to offset the German monsters, furnished the first tank engagement in history. The main clash between the tanks came when the German engines attacked two smaller British tanks. As might be expected one of the British machines was disabled, when one of the larger British tanks, which had observed the fray from the distance, came rushing up and engaged the Germans.

Tanks' Battle Royal.

It was a battle royal. The tank guns blazed furiously and shells crashed and glanced from the steel armor in every direction. The British tank finally got several shots home on one of the Germans, and put it out of action. This disconcerted the others and they fled leaving the British tank with its smaller comrade in possesion of the field.

Some of the most telling work was done by the tanks near Crecy. Here numbers of small, fast British tanks attacked a large concentration of the enemy infantry. Before the Germans were able to escape the swiftly moving monsters were amongst them firing heavily into the dense ranks. Many infantrymen were caught beneath the machines and crushed. The slaughter was fearful, and the tanks returned with their sides crimsoned.

DEATH OF ARCHBISHOP WORRELL'S FATHER

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's recipe to bring back color, youthfulness and lustre—Everybody is using it again

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure mitigation or prevention of disease.

War Garden Bulletin

PRACTICAL DAILY GUIDE FOR VACANT LOT AND BACKYARD GARDENERS ENLISTED IN GREATER PRODUCTION CAMPAIGN

Issued by the Canada Food Board in collaboration with experts on the staff of the Dominion Experimental Farm

PLANNING THE GARDEN

In planning the 1918 garden, the first thing to take into consideration is the act that it is a war-time garden and that the vegetables which must receive primary attention are those which are going to be genuine substitutes for wheat. The logical substitute is the potato. Therefore, every one should grow potatoes this year. They repay themselves over and over again. Count on giving them the major part of the garden.

Small plants like beets, onions, lettuce, carrots, radishes and parsnips should be put in one general group. In another general group put larger plants like corn, tomatoes and potates. Spreading ground vines, like melons and cucumbers, which need wider spacing, should be put in a third general group. In the arrangement of the varieties of vegetables which are to be planted due care should be given to providing the greatest exposure to the sun for those crops which need it most. Plants which must ripen their fruits, such as tomatoes and eggplant, require the greatest amount of sunshine, while lettuce, spinach and other leaf require relatively less.

NO FURTHER RHODES SCHOLARS FOR THE PRESENT

TORONTO, April 30.Largely as a consequence of the new situation created by the war, which has interfered increasingly with the Rhodes scholarship system, the trustees have decided to postpone for the present, all further election for scholarships according to the annual statement received by the Ontario Department of Education. This will not, however, interfere with the holding of the annual qualifying examination in the United States, or in colonies where election is now secured through an affiliation of local universities with the University of Oxford.

The trust has continued its policy of giving scholars leave of absence for the duration of the war, with the right to resume their scholarships when the war is over, or earlier, should circumstances make it possible.

You Can't Resist Taking Them!

Talk about love laughing at locksmiths!—Why, no matter where you hide or lock away "Maple Buds" in the house, the youngsters find a way to get them. This great desire children and grown-ups have for these dainty solid chocolate pieces, is a very sincere form of flattery to us. However, we believe that we deserve it, for no expense or time is spared to make them the finest chocolate confection in the world—It is—
