Commonwealth International Offers Attractive Investment

Of special investment interest today is the nation-wide offering of shares of Commonwealth International Corporation Limited by one of the largest groups of investment dealers and stockbrokers ever to appear on one financial advertisement. Commonwealth International may be defined as an open-end investment company of the management type. This term, while somewhat new in Canada, is in wide use in the United States where there are, at the present time, some 70 investment companies of a similar type, having total invested assets of over two billion dollars. The outstanding feature of an open-end fund is the fact that its shares may be redeemed at any time at the holder's option at full net asset value per share. This redemption price is computed daily at the close of the security markets, thus ensuring the investor full advantage of the daily change in the asset value of the securities held in the company's portfolio.

Commonwealth International has paid uninterrupted dividends since incorporation in 1933. The management of the Company is under the supervision of the following board of directors:—

Linton H. Ballantyne, K.C., Montreal, P.Q.
Frank J. Brennan, Saint John, N.B.
J. Carleton Brown, O.B.E., Montreal, P.Q.
William M. Chadbourne, New York, N.Y.
G. Blair Gordon, Montreal, P.Q.
W. R. G. Holt, M.B.E., Montreal, P.Q.
Charles E. Isard, London, Ont.
J. Arthur Legueux, Quebec, P.Q.
Herbert D. Lancaster, New York, N.Y.
Jack S. Lightcap, Winnipeg, Man.
Donald W. Partridge, Montreal, P.Q.
Philip L. Pratley, Montreal, P.Q.
John C. Rogers, Montreal, P.Q.
Herman H. Woodward, Montreal, Q.

Shares of investment companies such as Commonwealth International Corporation which own a broad cross-section of securities in a number of different industries, provide one of the best answers toward minimizing the problems faced by the average investor in trying to select a group of individual stocks which will weather the hazards of corporate existence.

THE WORD OF GOD

God speaks to men in ways which are as varied as men are varied. In the Parable of the Sower it is said that "the seed is the word of God"; and such a phrase symbolizes all that which, coming from God, make its fruitful impact upon the human spirit and presents it with an inescapable challenge. Our Lord himself is called "the Word" because through Him God has spoken, and still speaks, to men in language which they can understand — the language of a perfect human life. "The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us."

But although God speaks His word indirectly to man in various ways, in nature, in history, and in the circumstances of His own life —whether these experiences are pleasant or painful; yet not all have cultivated the spiritual perception which enables them to discern his word as it comes through such media. God's word may come to a man more directly—through an informed and enlightened conscience, in the exercise of prayer and worship, or through an intuition which gives him immediate light and guidance so clear that he knows without a peradventure what he should do. Or, God's word may present a man with a challenge to which he cannot but give heed, a demand which must be met.

In the parable the seed produces fruit only when it falls into "good ground", that is, into ground which has been prepared and so is receptive and able to contribute its own dynamic quality to the creative end which is the purpose of the union. To make the appropriate response to the word is the one condition and guarantee of its fruitfulness. The soil is as important as the seed; neither is complete without the other.

The implications of this mutual interdependence of seed and soil cannot be too much emphasized. To decry human effort is to fail to recognize the essential part which the soil and its preparation must play. And a merely negative attitude of receptivity, which is sometimes the tendency of the mystical conception of religion, does not adequately recognize the importance of the positive effort which must be expended in the full response of the human spirit to the word of God. What is needed on the human side is active co-operation, such a cultivation of the soil that it becomes "good ground." Where this is found the seed of the word will flourish and bring forth its fruit "to perfection"—the fruit of Christian character.

New Carrier Methods For Cold Weather

ABOARD U. S. S. MIDWAY, Off Labrador, March 11 —(AP)—New techniques for operating aircraft carriers in cold weather will be worked out as a result of this expedition into the North Atlantic.

Rear Admiral John H. Cassady, commanding the task group built around the 60,000-ton Midway, said that in general the dividing line for cold weather operations appears to be 15 degrees fahrenheit.

Above that temperature air operations can be fairly normal, but below it special operating methods must be devised.

Above 15 degrees, planes can operate almost exactly as they did in the Pacific except that more time must be allowed to prepare for launching.

Carrier personnel also must be increased, however, to provide for shorter watches and to make certain that the flight deck is kept clear of snow and ice.

Below 15 degrees, it probably will be necessary to prepare planes for launching on the hangar deck, take them immediately to the flight deck and launch them, either with the catapult or by regular deck run.

Cassady said it appears that radar is likely to be less effective in northern waters because of snowstorms and that underwater sound devices also will be less effective.

Says Police Not To Blame For Disaster

LONDON, March 11 — (Reuters) —Home Secretary Ede told the House of Commons today he was confident police took all steps within their power to prevent the soccer disaster at Bolton, Lancashire, Saturday in which 33 persons were killed and 500 injured.

Mr. Ede said any further precautions than those taken by the police Saturday would require special legislation. Steps would be taken for an immediate inquiry to determine whether this was necessary.

Pravda Denounces Winston Churchill

MOSCOW, March 11 —(AP)— Pravda in a front-page editorial today denounced Winston Churchill as an open advocate of power politics whose words urged war against the Soviet Union and meant "nothing else than the liquidation of the United Nations Organization."

The Communist Party newspaper, breaking silence on Mr. Churchill's Missouri speech of March 5, accused him of attempting to liquidate the Big Three coalition, trying to impose Anglo-American rule upon the world and slandering the Soviet Union. Mr. Churchill's speech, however, was unsuccessful, the editorial said, adding:

"No false speeches about democracy and freedom by convinced reactionaries such as Churchill and his American friends from the Vandenberg Camp will succeed in drawing people onto the road to new wars being prepared for them."

Pravda, a potent organ of the Communist Party's central committee, referred bitingly to Mr. Churchill's statement that need existed for continuance of intimate relationships between British and American military advisers.

"So Churchill advanced a proposal for the creation of an Anglo-American military alliance," the editorial said. "He thereby frankly states that this military alliance must be directed against the U.S.S.R., against the power which bore on its shoulders the main burden of the struggle and played a decisive role in the defeat of Hitlerite Germany.

"But a military alliance of the two participants of a coalition against a third signifies the liquidation of the coalition of the three great powers formed during the course of the Second World War. So with one stroke Churchill cancels all that he preached as immutable truth during the war."

Referring to Mr. Churchill's statement that he repulsed "the idea that a new war is inevitable, still more than it is imminent," Pravda said the former British prime minister "in reality tries to give the impression of an impending war. Moreover he urges a new war and a war against the Soviet Union when he makes a slander about the Soviet Union saying that 'Soviet Russia wants the fruits of war and unrestricted expansion of its forces and doctrines."

Husband's Death Completes Tragdey

MONTREAL, March 11 — (CP) —A double tragedy in the Laurentian Mountain village of Mont Rolland, 40 miles north of here, was completed early today with the death in hospital here of Charles Plouffe, 50, from a bullet wound in the head. His wife, 52, was found dead in their home Sunday night, shot with the same .32 calibre revolver.

Provincial Police, making an investigation of all circumstances connected with the fatal shooting, said that Plouffe, while under the influence of liquor, apparently had shot his wife and then turned the gun upon himself.

Police said the couple were alone in the house at the time of the shooting. They were discovered — the wife dead, the husband unconscious — by 24-year-old Henri Plouffe, youngest of nine children ranging to 32 years. He called Dr. J. Millette who said the father was still living and suggested his removal to Montreal for an operation.

The operation proved unsuccessful and Plouffe died at three o'clock this morning.

Plouffe attempted to set fire to his home after the shooting, the police report said. He had spread oil over the kitchen floor then apparently sank into unconsciousness.

In Memoriam

JOHN M. AND EMMETT MORAN

People were shocked and hearts saddened beyond expression on the evening of January 9th, when the gruesome news were relayed throughout the neighbourhood of Newport and the Province as a whole carring the realization and stirring the emotions of our people in the disastrous and tragic drowning accident of John M. Moran at the age of 35 years and his son Emmett age 9. Caused by their car breaking throuhh the ice at Bridgetown on the evening of January 8th.

On Friday, January 11th the body of Emmett was found, but repeated dragging operations failed to recover the body of the father at the time of writing.

John who was well known to many enjoyed a wide circle of friends, not only in the community in which he lived but elsewhere. His occupation in the district besides farming, being rural tax collector and mail courier brought him in contact with many people at all times, by whom he was held in esteem and respect.

His work in the community and in all other duties he performed were garnished at all times with cheerfulness, an obliging disposition with consideration and respect for friends and neighbours with whom he was associated.

Having an active interest in district and parish activities, he, at all times played his part in a Christian manner.

In the family circle at home where their passing will be severely felt, for, as a devoted parent he exercised his duties in providing for and guiding his family along the pathway of true Christian principles.

Emmett, an adorable son, possessing a kind and gentle disposition, with a heart as pure as the flower that blooms and free and happy as the Lark in the blue sky. Who at all times sought and cherished the potential companionship of an adorable father, his passing will ever linger in the hearts of his loved ones at home as a noble example of devotion, love and obedience.

Those left to mourn and sustain their loss are a grief stricken wife and mother, a sorrowing father also the following daughters and sisters namely: Mary, Claire, Agnes Mae, Gladys, Geraldine and Eileen all at home and pupils of the district school. Others who survive and mourn are: John's two sisters, Mary Claire and Kathleen, Boston, Mass.

The funeral of Emmett Moran took place from his late home in Newport on Monday morning, January 14th to St. George's Church, St. George's, where a requiem High Mass was celebrated by his pastor Rev. B. J. MacDonald, who also officiated in the adjoining cemetery where the mortal remains of a pure heart a loving and affectionate son and brother were tenderly laid to rest.

The remains were conveyed by Peter P. Campbell and the pallbearers were: Harold and Newman Campbell, Wm. MacLellan, Francis Delorie, J. D. Fitzpatrick and Raymond Fitzpatrick.

The many Mass Cards, letters messages and expressions of sympathy testify to the esteem in which the deceased were held.

May their souls rest in peace.
