ISLAND LADY DEAD. — A deep gloom was cast over Georgetown on Monday, March 20th., by the death at Boston of Miss May Jamieson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Jamieson, of Georgetown. The deceased had been ailing but a short time with influenza and hopes were cherished for her recovery. Her kind and gentle disposition as well as her readiness to help those in sickness and trouble made for her a wide circle of friends and she will be mourned not only by her own immediate friends and neighbors to whom she was always a true friend and willing helper. She leaves to mourn besides a sorrowing mother and father two sisters, Alice in Georgetown and Mrs. Maurice Daily of Sturgeon, besides two brothers Harry in Georgetown and David, in Boston. The sincere and heartfelt sorrow of the community is extended to the family in their sad and sudden bereavement. A

On Monday, Feb. the 20th the people of Murray Harbor and vicinity were saddened when it became known that James M. Sharen had passed away after a lingering illness of chronic prostatitis. He was sixty-eight years of age of cheerful disposition and kind-hearted, always ready and willing to help in any good cause that would be of benefit to the community. In his early days he was a native of Vernon River. When in his teens he moved to Murray Harbor, where he married Charlotte Bell. In the Heavenly Blessed land.

From all earthly care and sorrow
He has gone to his reward
Gone to live in life eternal
With his well beloved Lord.

Candbi Takes Sentence With Good Grace

AHMEDABAD, India, March 22.—Replying to the court which on Saturday sentenced him to six years imprisonment, being two years on each of the three counts in the dictment, Mahandas K. Gandhi thanked the court for its courtesy and said he considered the sentence as light as any judge could possibly have inflicted. He stated that he was in court to submit to the highest penalty which could be inflicted and that there were only two courses open to the judge; either to resign if he felt the law he was called upon to administer was evil and Gandhi was innocent; or to inflict the most severe penalty if he believed Gandhi's acticity injurious to the public weal. In a public statement, the non-co-operationist leader admitted that teaching disaffection against the government had become almost a passion with him.

The judge in addressing Gandhi said ti was impossible to ignore the fact that in the eyes of millions of his countrymen Gandhi was a great patriot leader and a man of high ideals, leading a noble, even a saintly life; but his duty was to judge him as a man who admitted he had broken the law and committed what to the ordinary person must appear to be a great offense against the State.

AHMEDABAD, British India, March 22.—That the arrest of Gandhi and the restraint placed upon the country have considerably advanced the Khalifat and Swaraj causes, and that the non-co-operationist leader's arrest will not alter the programme outlined at Bardoli recently which includes individual civil disobedience is the opinion of the all-Indian congress committee as expressed in a resolution carried yesterday.

Seamen of Two Wrecked Schooners Arrive in Port

ST. JOHN, N. B., March 21.—Among those to arrive in the city yesterday afternoon on the Metagama when she docked at Sand Point, were the crews of two schooners which foundered in the Atlantic after a gallant struggle against the elements, during which nothing but hardships resulted to the men on board. In all, thirteen shipwrecked mariners landed in this port yesterday, including the captain and crew of the Lunenburg, N. S., schooner Kathleen Spindler, which foundered on her voyage from the Bahamas to the Nova Scotia port, and captain and crew of the Newfoundland schooner Valeria, which was lost on her trip from Spain to St. John's. The men were all in the best of health, and seemed little the worse for the trying times through which they passed.

Captain Alvin Spindler, of the Kathleen Spindler, told the following story to a press reporter last evening: The schooner left Turk's Island, Bahamas, salt laden, on Feb 11, bound for Lunenburg, N. S., and experienced fair weather for the first few days of the voyage. However, one of the sudden storms often met with in those latitudes sprang up and the vessel, after being buffetted about at the mercy of hurricane gales and mountainous waves, suddenly sprang a leak. The men worked valiantly at the pumps in order to keep the vessel from becoming water logged, owing to the nature of the cargo they had on board, but they could not keep up with the inflow of water, which was pouring into the hold faster than they could pump it out.

Empire Migration

Emigration from old lands where there is a congestion of population and where remunerative employment is not easy to obtain is an obvious necessity, and as a matter of fact it has been going on for generations and centuries. The continent of Europe has been contributing largely to the population of the new world ever since its discovery. Large sections of Canada are peopled by the descendants of British immigrants. Countries out of which a constant stream of emigration is flowing are ever on the lookout for new openings for those of their condition. The government of Great Britain has promised a migration bill to assist emigrants and to keep them within the Empire. It is proposed to expend annually two million pounds on migration, the Dominions in their part contributing a like amount. The Times speaks of the benefits of migration as threefold—"to the Dominions, in the development of their natural resources and the peopling of their empty spaces; to present requirement, are sufficient to last twenty years. The survey estimates that approximately nine billion barrels of oil recoverable by methods now in use remain in the ground.

The population of Canada in 1921 was 8,772,631, an increase of more

A Constitution For Palestine

One of the problems created for Great Britain in the mandate for Palestine is the adjusting of the claims of rival races in the Holy Land. And the famous Balfour declaration on November 3rd, 1917, it was stated that without prejudice to the civil and religious rights of existing Turkish communities, Great Britain favored the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jews. The principle of that declaration was also accepted by the Allies and in the mandate important provisions are made for satisfying Zionist aspirations, but always subject to the rights and positions of other sections. The Zionists, however, failing to discriminate between a Jewish State based unwarranted assumptions on the British declaration. The Arabs have resented the Jewish claims, emphasizing the fact that they number 600,000 as against 76,000 Jews and 70,000 Christians. The draft of a constitution for Palestine has been prepared and handed to representatives of Palestinian Arabs in Palestine and to the Zionists, by which it is hoped to effect the reconciliation of the rights of all. Under the new constitution a system resembling that now in force in India will be established, the Executive remaining in the hands of the High Commissioner, and certain matters of administration being as heretofore reserved for the decision of the Colonial Secretary. But there will be a Legislative Council partly nominated and partly elected. The Arabs, of course, by virtue of their preponderating numbers will have a majority in this Council, but it is thought that the superior intellectual equipment, energy, and resources of the Jews will counterbalance the advantage of numbers. Since accepting the mandate British prestige has suffered somewhat by the fact that under British rule the relations between the Jews and the Palestinian Arabs has been more strained than when both groaned under the domination of the Turk. This was a most natural result, and it will no doubt be remedied by the provisions of the new constitution than 20 per cent. over the 1911 figures. Russian census figures, on the other hand, showed a shrinkage of 8,000,000 in the population since 1916, largely under the soviet regime. Petrograd showed a loss from 2,319,000 in 1913 to 706,000 in 1920. The population of Italy was recently announced as approximately 39,500,000 slightly in excess of that of France.

Offer of a prize of 50,000 pounds sterling by the British air ministry for the invention of a helicopter, or spiral air machine, which will meet requirements, has attracted inventors in this peculiar type of aerial vehicle. The machines must be able to rise to a height of 2,000 feet, "straight up" remain stationary for half an hour, maintain a horizontal speed of sixty miles an hour, and land vertically. Already inventors have made

SAUSAGE BALLON ADRIFT

PARIS, March 21.—At the military aerodrome at Angers, this morning a "sausage" balloon while being take nout of its shed was caught by a gust of wind, one of the ropes breaking. Five soldiers who were holding the second rope were lifted from the ground. Three of them slid down the rope, badly burning their hands through friction, but reaching the ground safely. The fourth man, who jumped, was badly injured. The fifth man had his foot caught and was carried to a considerable height head downwards, but was then able to extra the rope, right himself and twist it round his body. An aeroplane, piloted by an officer, was sent in pursuit in order to attempt aid. When first seen the sausage was drifting at six thousand feet, the aeroplane circling round it. As the wind was blowing from the east, it is feared the balloon was carried out to sea.
