Interpreting The War

United States planes, guns, tanks and war supplies, all kind of war material, are being shipped into Egypt. Could the quantity of these supplies be disclosed, the extent of this country's contribution probably would be revealed to Britain, and possibly might be disturbing to Berlin.

lend-lease shipments from the United States were reaching Egypt at the rate of almost a ship a day early in the summer, and presumably the flow has been maintained. Now these cargoes are to be augmented by aerial deliveries of bombers flown across the Atlantic, and of other war planes ferried by shorter stages from West African ports. The route has been used actually for weeks, but only in a preliminary way.

In addition to the American munitions shipments, Britain has taken advantage of the relative lull of the last two months to reinforce the Empire's Near Eastern armies. Some ships have risked the passage through the Mediterranean to avoid the long voyage around the Cape of Good Hope.

Major Gen. George H. Brett, Chief of the United States Army Air Corps, disclosed that between May 15 and June 23 the American Tomahawk fighters brought down 25 Axis machines in one unidentified war zone in the Mediterranean. In nearly every instance, Gen. Brett asserted, the American fighters had shown superiority over the Germans' renowned Messerschmitt 109.

The Nazis' next major move, whether or not they are stalemated for the winter in Russia, appears almost certain to be an attempt to make the Mediterranean as well as the Black Sea an Ak's lake, and at least threaten the South Atlantic and India.

Britain and the United States are acting on that assumption.

SOLDIER IDEA-GIVERS

LONDON—(CP)—Soldiers turn in about one in every 25 inventions and ideas for the military use of supply in writing, while women are responsible for about one in every thousand.

EXECUTIONS

Trainor appeared for the Crown, and Lester P. O'Donnell for the prisoners.

Sentence of death was passed by the Court on July 3, the date of execution being fixed for August 21 between the hours of 1 a. m. and 6 a. m.

Strict secrecy was maintained as to the hour of execution, but before midnight large crowds had gathered in the vicinity of the jail.

The executions were the first to take place in this Province since the hanging of William Millman on April 10, 1888.

Yesterday it was announced by the Department of Justice, Ottawa, that an appeal for clemency by the condemned men had been denied. Sheriff MacFadyen also received a telegram from W. F. J. O'Meara, Acting Secretary of State, stating that His Excellency the Governor General in Council was unable to order any interference with the sentence.

FALL BACK

stubborn battles at Odessa, on the Black Sea, and in the Gomel and Klingsiepp areas. Gomel is on the central front 140 miles north of Kiev. Klingsiepp, from which Russian troops have withdrawn, is 75 miles southwest of Leningrad.

A high command statement that fighting continued on the entire front indicated that wherever Russian troops were falling back the retreat was orderly.

The new German advance toward Novgorod appeared to be part of a two-pronged drive on Leningrad. The column at Klingsiepp was nearest the city but German troops in the Novgorod area apparently were trying to get into position to cut Leningrad off from Moscow in a typical German encirclement move.

Reports late last night had pictured both the northern and southern wings of the Russian line as holding.

The army publication Red Star said the Germans were running into shortages of artillery and tanks and were burying tanks more and more for use as artillery pillboxes.

Originally, the journal said the Germans planned to use artillery only as a supporting weapon with tanks, bombers and mortars leading the attack but that now they were moving up one or two 150-millimeter guns with 4-c tanks to give a show of strength. It added that the Germans were manoeuvring the guns quickly but that intensive artillery preparations were rare.

The early morning communique said the Red air force heavily bombed the Ploesti oil fields in Rumania and set off explosions and racing fires.

A recapitulation of German planes downed Sunday increased the total to 28 instead of the previously reported 22 and figures for yesterday were given as 30 Nazi losses to 12 Russian.

Action was so violent and so vast a scale that no more than a general picture could be drawn.

It appeared that the present Russian line runs from the Gulf of Finland west of Leningrad southward to Novgorod and Smolensk and then west of the Dnieper River to the Black Sea.

Behind the German side of this line Russian forces were reported holding out in several large pockets, including Northern Estonia around Tallinn.

Red Star, the army news organ, said use of big guns had become more important than ever now that the campaign had been converted from a blitzkrieg into a prolonged war.

"German artillery in many respects is weaker than the Soviet," the paper stated.

Moreover, official accounts stressed that not even yet were the Russians confined to wholly defensive actions. Red Star said Marshal Semeon Budenny's forces in the southwest recaptured the town of "K" by a counter thrust.

Counter-attacks loosed during periods when the invaders sought rest were declared to be severely punishing the Germans.

Bearded rider Among war dead

LONDON, Aug. 20—Commander Sir Geoffrey Cecil Congreve, D. S. O., who wore a beard when he rode his own horse, Lazy Boots, in last year's Grand National, died on active service, Commander Congreve in 1940 landed from a two women under arrest, began today.

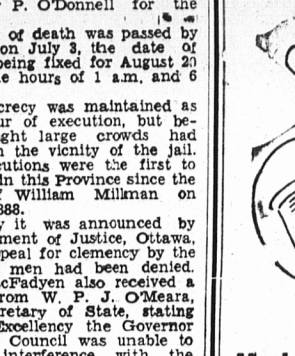

It opened not long after the arrival of Mr. Justice C. P. Flaxton and the judicial party. The courtroom where the strange tale of shootings and beatings among the naturally peaceful Eskimos was told is a large tent.

Peter Sala and Charlie Ouyerack, whose claims to divine power are believed to have touched off the arguments out of which the violence arose, testified today. They are among the seven accused.

Mr. Justice Flaxton and the judicial party arrived early today after a 13-day journey by schooner from Moose Factory. The setting for the trial was almost as strange as the story being told. Mr. Justice Flaxton sat at a plain table with a Union Jack, with a picture of the Royal Family beside him, while the Eskimo witnesses and audience sat on moss.

How long this will last no one can tell. In normal times, however, one would suppose that water rates will fall. For three main reasons.

(a) There will be more shipbuilding companies looking for trade and, if water rates are high, more ships will be built. (b) The lake vessel owner's regard grain carrying as their special "preserve" and are not likely to hand it over to the railways. (c) There seems to be a tendency to lower rather than increase the wheat acre of the West, which would mean keener competition among the ship owners and therefore lower rates.

Perhaps also the prairie farmers may then go more largely into the growing of feed grain, which would be to the advantage of buyers in Prince Edward Island.

All these things are of course largely conjectures, but so far as this Island is concerned, we can pretty safely figure upon water rates on Western grain being lower than rail rates in normal times.

The main thing, after all, is that we in Prince Edward Island shall agree amongst ourselves as to the cheapest and most expedient way of giving our farmers all the feed grain they require. Until the feed grain they require. Until we have arrived at that point, we cannot hope to succeed in any attempt that we may make to persuade the Dominion Government to give us the required facilities.

I am, Sir, etc.

Says Russia Deserves support Of Democracies

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 19—(AP)—Justice Frank Murphy of the Supreme Court of the United States told the Knights of Columbus tonight that Russia, despite its Communism, should have the support of democracies in its fight with Germany.

In a speech prepared for 1,500 delegates representing 419,000 members of this Catholic fraternity, Justice Murphy asserted the Nazis constituted a greater threat to the Church than did the Communists.

"For men and women who cherish freedom of religion and the other fundamentals of democratic rule," he said, "there is little to choose between the Communism or Soviet Russia and the Nazism of Germany. We want neither in this country."

"But we know that Nazism with its superior competence and perverted intelligence, its extraordinary energy and missionary zeal, its profound belief in racial superiority and destiny, its fanatical intolerance and, above all, its tremendous military power and skill, is by far the greater menace to free nations and free institutions. It is at present the real menace."

The jurist dismissed as hypocritical Germany's claim that in attacking Russia she was fighting the battle of "western Christian civilization against the Godlessness of Soviet Russia."
