semblance of a Supreme Court, still it is presided over by Judges residing in Nova Scotia.

SUPREME COURT.

The Queen v. John Mackenzie.—This case, being an indictment for a misdemeanor, which commenced, as formerly stated, on Thursday last, occupied the Court, to the exclusion of every other business, for five days.

On Saturday, after the case for the Crown had been closed, Mr. Street (Counsel for the defendant) submitted that there was no case to go to the Jury, as there was nothing to show that guilt could be traced to his client.

The Chief Justice, however, said he should let the case go to the Jury.—Mr. Street, after addressing the Jury, proceeded to call witnesses for the defence, which occupied the Court for the remainder of Saturday, and part of Monday. The Solicitor General was then heard, in reply; after which the Chief Justice summed up, going minutely into the evidence, and commenting thereon. At half-past four p. m. the jury retired, and on Tuesday at half past twelve, returned a verdict, finding the defendant guilty on the sixth count, viz. "of uttering an altered receipt for money, knowing it to have been forged or altered, with intent to defraud John C. Sims, and to prevent him obtaining a verdict."

Mr. Street was heard at great length yesterday, on a motion for a new trial in this case, on the ground of misdirection on the part of the Judge in his charge to the Jury; want of sufficient evidence to convict; allowing the Jury to separate several times after being empanelled, before they had returned a verdict, &c. The Jury, however, did not separate after they had retired to consider on their verdict, until they returned with it into Court.

The Court withheld its decision until the Solicitor General was heard in reply, which will probably be in the course of this day.

The Queen v. Margaret Collings.—Indictment for administering poison with intent to kill. The trial occupied the the whole of Thursday; was resumed at 2 p. m., yesterday, and at 6 p. m. another adjournment until this day took place.

On the evening of Monday the 24th ult., Thomas Coughlan, alias "Gallows Tom" effected his escape from St. Eleanor's Jail, being at the time under sentence of imprisonment for horse stealing.

Tobacco Manufactory.—It gives us much pleasure to observe that a Tobacco Manufactory, upon a somewhat extensive scale, is immediately to be commenced in Charlottetown. This will form an important addition to our domestic manufactures, as it will be the means of rendering us, in a great measure, independent of other countries for our supplies of the manufactured article. A Tobacco press and the other necessary implements for carrying on the business, together with 8 hhds. of Leaf Tobacco, for a commencement, were landed from the Steamer yesterday, and preparations are already in progress for commencing operations. About ten or a dozen hands, we understand, will be employed immediately in the establishment.

We sincerely wish Mr. Mackinlay every success in his spirited enterprise, being well assured, from his long experience and well known skill in the business, that he is every way competent to supply the trade with manufactured tobacco of first rate quality.

The encouragement of such an undertaking we consider well worthy the attention of the Legislature. So anxious are the Novascotians to encourage the domestic manufacture of this article in that Province, that, we understand, unmanufactured Tobacco is permitted to be imported free of Colonial duty, an example which, we trust, our Legislature will not be slow to follow.

Death by Lightning.—The heavy rain of Friday the the 28th ult., was accompanied by several loud peals of thunder. The lightning in its progress struck the house of Alex. Macgillivray, Mill Cove, Tracadie, and coming down the chimney, his daughter, a girl of nine years of age, was instantly killed. From the appearance of the body, it would appear that the lightning had struck one of her shoulders, and run down her side. Her sister, who was in the same room, escaped unhurt, although thrown down by the concussion. The father and mother, who were in an adjoining apartment, escaped uninjured. The electric fluid set fire to a bed in the room where the deceased was struck.—Gaz.

To the Editor of the Colonial Herald.

Sir; My attention has been attracted by a pamphlet recently circulated in this town, addressed "To the people of the United States," respecting the belief of the Latter-day Saints, well known by the name of Mormonites. Are not all things essential to salvation most clearly revealed in the Bible? and are we not most solemnly warned against placing any reliance on pretenders to new Revelations? The closing passage of the word of God is of fearful import: "If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book." The understanding of divine truth is not assisted by curious speculations, but by that humble and devout study of the word of God, which, under the guidance of the holy spirit, "maketh wise the simple." No additions must be made to the Bible, under the pretence of having been enlightened in the nineteenth century by divine visions. Those who are guilty of this presumption endeavour to palm their own inventions upon the credulity of mankind, as of equal authority with the word of God; both deceivers and deceived fall into that error so severely denounced in holy writ. We live in fearful times; let us hold fast in faith the purity of God's unerring word, as clearly revealed in the Bible.

May I request, Mr. Editor, that you will insert the accompanying extract from a Review respecting the character of of this Joseph Smith, the would-be Prophet, and fabricator of the so-called Book of Mormon; which may be the means, under divine Providence, of deterring many from attending these public meetings, even out of idle curiosity, and thus discountenance such dangerous delusions.

B.

July 3d, 1844.

Mormonism appears to have had its origin in the county of Ontario, in the state of New York, in 1830. The ostensible projector was a man of the name of Joseph Smith, jun., who pretended that he had found some golden or brass plates, like the leaves of a book, hidden in a box in the earth, to which he was directed by an angel, in 1827; that the writing on them was in the "Reformed Egyptian language" (of which, however, he gave no specimens); and that he was inspired to interpret the writing or engraving, by putting two smooth flat stones, which he found in a box, in a hat, and then putting his face therein!!! Truly, his powers of vision must be singularly acute.

The following particulars respecting the character of Joseph Smith, the author and publisher of "the Book of Mormon," are printed by Mr. Hayward, from the communication of his father-in-law, a Mr. Hale, of Harmony township, Pennsylvania; whose veracity is attested by two associate judges of the Court of Common Pleas, in Susquehanna county, Pennsylvania:—

"I first became acquainted with Joseph Smith, jun., in November, 1825. He was at that time in the employ of a set of men who were called 'money diggers;' and his occupation was that of seeing, or pretending to see, by means of a stone placed in his hat, and his hat closed over his face. In this way he pretended to discover minerals and hidden treasure. His appearance at this time was that of a careless young man, not very well educated, and very saucy and insolent to his father. Smith and his father, with several other 'money diggers,' boarded at my house while they were employed in digging for a mine that they supposed had been opened and worked by the Spaniards, many years since. Young Smith gave the 'money diggers' great encouragement at first, but when they had arrived in digging to near the place where he had stated an immense treasure would be found, he said the enchantment was so powerful that he could not see. They then became discouraged, and soon after dispersed.

"After these occurrences, young Smith made several visits at my house, and at length asked my consent to marry my daughter Emma. This I refused, and gave him my reasons for so doing; some of which were, that he was a stranger, and followed a business that I could not approve. He then left the place. Not long after this he returned; and, while I was absent from home, carried off my daughter into the state of New York, where they were married without my approbation or consent. After they had arrived at Palmyra, New York, Emma wrote to me, inquiring whether she could have her property, consisting of clothing, &c. I replied that her property was safe, and at her disposal. In a short time they returned, bringing with them a Peter Ingersol, and subsequently came to the conclusion that they would move out, and reside upon a place near my residence.

"Smith stated to me that he had given up what he called 'glass-looking,' and that he expected to work hard for a living, and was willing to do so. Soon after this I was informed they had brought a wonderful book of plates down with them. I was shown a box, in which it is said they were contained, which had, to all appearance, been used as a glass box, of the common-sized window glass. I was allowed to feel the weight of the box, and they gave me to understand that the book of plates was then in the box; into which, however, I was not allowed to look. I inquired of Joseph Smith, jun., who was to be the first that would be allowed to see the book of plates. He said it was a young child.

"After this I became dissatisfied, and informed him that if there was any thing in my house of that description, which I could not be allowed to see, he must take it away; if he did not, I was determined to see it. After that, the plates were said to be hid in the woods.

"About this time Martin Harris made his appearance upon the stage; and Smith began to interpret the characters or hieroglyphics, which he said were engraven upon the plates, while Harris wrote down the interpretation. It was said that Harris wrote down one hundred and sixteen pages, and lost them. Soon after this happened, Martin Harris informed me that he must have a greater witness, and said that he had talked with Joseph about it; Joseph informed him that he could not or durst not show him the plates, but that he (Joseph) would go into the woods where the book of plates was, and that after he came back Harris should follow his track in the snow, and find the book, and examine it for himself. Harris informed me afterwards that he followed Smith's directions, and could not find the plates, and was still dissatisfied.

"The next day after this happened, I went to the house where Joseph Smith, jun. lived, and where he and Harris were engaged in their translation of the book. Each of them had a written piece of paper, which they were comparing, and some of the words were, "My servant seeketh a greater witness, but no greater witness can be given to him." There was also something said about "three that were to see the thing;" meaning, I supposed, the book of plates; and that "if the three did not go exactly according to orders, the thing would be taken from them." I inquired whose words they were; and was informed by Joseph or Emma (I rather think it was the former), that they were the words of Jesus Christ. I told them then that I considered the whole of it a delusion, and advised them to abandon it. The manner in which he pretended to read and interpret was the same as when he looked for the money diggers, with the stone in his hat, and his hat over his face, while the book of plates was at the same time hid in the woods.

"After this, Martin Harris went away, and Oliver Cowdry came and wrote for Smith, while he interpreted, as above described. This is the same Oliver Cowdry whose name may be found in the Book of Mormon. Cowdry continued a scribe for Smith until the Book of Mormon was completed, as I supposed and understood.

"Joseph Smith, jun. resided near me for some time after this, and I had a good opportunity of becoming acquainted with him, and somewhat acquainted with his associates; and I conscientiously believe, from the facts I have detailed, and from many other circumstances, which I do not deem it necessary to relate, that the whole "Book of Mormon" (so called) is a silly fabrication of falsehood and wickedness, got up for speculation, and with a design to dupe the credulous and unwary, and in order that its fabricators might live upon the spoils of those who swallowed the deception."

The "Collection of Hymns, for the use of the Church of the Latter Day Saints," was made by the wife of the prophet, who states, in her brief preface, that it is "adapted to their faith and belief in the gospel, and, as far as can be, holding forth the promises made to the fathers, who died in the precious faith of a glorious resurrection, and a thousand years' reign on earth with the Son of Man in his glory." Among the hymns in this selection (ninety in number) we recognise some from the pens of Bishop Heber, Watts, Doddridge, and Mrs. Barbauld; others are original enough. We are tempted to select two or three specimens at random:—

"1. Now we'll sing with one accord,
For a prophet of the Lord,
Bringing forth his precious word,
Cheers his saints as anciently.

* * * *

"4. Even Joseph † he inspires,
Yea, his heart he truly fires
With the light that he desires,
For the work of righteousness.

"5. And the Book of Mormon, true,
With its cov'nant ever new,
For the Gentile and the Jew,
He translated sacredly."—Hymn 63, p. 83.

The Book of the "Doctrine and Covenants of the Church of the Latter Day Laints," contains articles on faith, covenants, and commandments; priesthood and calling; marriage, government, laws, &c. It comprises a great number of revelations, said to have been made to various persons. Mr. Hayward has given four of them as specimens of the whole. We present one to our readers:—

"Revelation given November, 1834.

"1. It is my will that my servant, Warren A. Cowdry, should be appointed and ordained a presiding high priest over my church in the land of Freedom, and the regions round about, and should preach my everlasting gospel, and lift up his voice and warn the people, not only in his own place, but in the adjoining countries, and devote his whole time in this high and holy calling which I now give unto him, seeking diligently the kingdom of heaven and its righteousness, and all things necessary shall be added thereunto; for the labourer is worthy of his hire.

"2. And again, verily I say unto you, the coming of the Lord draweth nigh, and it overtaketh the world as a thief in the night; therefore gird up your loins, that you may be the children of the light, and that day shall not overtake you as a thief.

"3. And again, verily I say unto you, there was joy in heaven when my servant Warren bowed to my sceptre, and separated himself from the crafts of men: therefore, blessed is my servant Warren, for I will have mercy on him, and, notwithstanding the vanity of his heart, I will lift him up, inasmuch as he will humble himself before me; and I will give him grace and assurance wherewith he may stand; and if he continues to be a faithful witness and a light unto the church, I have prepared a crown for him in the mansions of my Father; even so. Amen.

"Elder Young says that these revelations are received from heaven, by the prophet of this Church, Joseph Smith, jun.: that they are written down by a scribe, and then delivered to those for whom they are designed."

† That is, Joseph Smith, her husband, and the prophet of the Mormons.—Editor.

On the Premises,

that elegant, substantial and commodious two-story

situate at the East corner of Pownal and Water Streets, at present occupied by the Subscriber as a Printing Office, &c. This Building has been erected only about two years and a half; is constructed of the very best materials the Island could produce; and is forty-one feet long and thirty-four feet broad. There are two Kitchens, and two frost-proof Cellars, &c., in the basement On the first floor, there are two parlours, and two rooms designed for a shop, &c. On the second floor, there are a drawing-room and bed-room at one end, and two rooms, occupied as a Printing Office, &c. at the other. In the attic, there are four apartments, of various dimensions. The plot of ground upon which this Building is erected possesses a front of 100 feet on Pownal-street, and 42 feet on Water-street, and forms one of the most beautiful and salubrious sites, and one of the most eligible stands for business in Charlottetown. These premises are admirably adapted either for a genteel Hotel or extensive Commercial Establishment, being but 130 yards from the Queen's Wharf, and immediately adjoining the Pownal-street Wharf, now in course of construction. The latter is intended for the special accommodation of the Steam-packet, and other large vessels. It will be 750 feet in length, and is to be completed in the course of the present Summer—the necessary funds to secure that object having been voted by the Legislature in its late Session.

ALSO,

That neat and commodious COTTAGE, adjoining the above Premises, at present occupied by Mr. George Moore, at a rental of £20 per annum. This Building is 27 feet by 23 feet, and comprises a parlour, bedroom and kitchen on the first floor, and three bedrooms on the second floor; there is also a good cellar under the building. It underwent a thorough repair, a few years back, and will be found a very comfortable and pleasant residence for a small family. The ground on which this building stands has a front of 42 feet on Water-street, by 100 feet in depth.

ALSO,

The remaining portion of the Water Lot on which the above premises are situate, extending from a Roadway, seven feet wide (which has been reserved at the foot of the said premises), to the Channel of the harbour—a distance of nearly 750 feet. This will be sold in two equal portions, each moiety being 42 feet wide.

☞ Plans of the above Property may be seen at Apothecaries' Hall (Mr. T. Desbrisay's), and at the Herald Office.

The Subscriber is also desirous of disposing of the COPYRIGHT of

The Colonial Herald.

This Periodical has been in existence nearly seven years—is liberal and independent in politics—and is admitted by competent judges to rank at least as high, in every respect, as any of its contemporaries.

TOGETHER WITH

A very superior Iron Printing Press (Tufts'), a large stock of Type, of various descriptions, and every thing requisite for an extensive Printing Establishment—the subscriber's interest in the Printing Business, &c. &c.
