Special Meeting Of Advisory Selective Service Committee

A special meeting of the advisory committee of Employment and Selective Service was held in the Selective Service office last evening to consider some matters specially referred to it by the Regional Office. These had to do with teen age employment, delinquents, vocational training and courses and other matters in the line of educational affairs for the teen age class in particular.

Mr. Lloyd W. Shaw, Director of Education, Mr. W.R. Shaw, Deputy Minister of Agriculture were present and gave valuable information along their respective lines. Mr. J.J. Trainor president of the Federation of Agriculture was also present and took part in the discussion in the interest of the parties he represents.

The committee, after hearing the ideas suggested, decided to pursue further the matters before them by seeking other sources of information, and to hold another meeting at a later date. The committee chairman, Mr. George S. Ryan presided together with the Secretary, Mrs. Lily Corrigan. The chairman extended the thanks of the committee to those who had prepared special reports for the information of the committee.

SOVIET PRESS—

A deep and firm impression prevails in Moscow that Messrs. Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin left better friends this time than ever before, and that although much was left to the future, they accomplished great things at Yalta and are themselves highly pleased with their work.

Some persons in the Allied camps were described as "elated" over the results. Not the slightest sign of friction developed at any time during the meetings, it was said, and the three men saw things through by talking frankly. Mr. Stalin especially was said to have never talked more frankly.

Pravda, which ordinarily does not publish on Tuesdays, came out today in honor of the Big Three meeting.

"The conference will go down in history as an example of real democratic co-operation," the paper said, adding that plans were adopted for the defeat of Germany "on a closer and more intimate basis of co-operation than ever before."

Soviet factory workers and miners held spontaneous meetings following announcement of the conference over the radio in triumphant terms with playing of martial music Impromptu speakers made such comments as "we'll be in Berlin soon", "this means the end of Hitler," and "the hour of retribution has arrived."

The Polish question appeared to have been brought closer to a solution than at any time since it became acute.

It is expected that the present recognition of the London Polish Government by the United States and Great Britain will be withdrawn quickly when a provisional government of national unity — one which satisfies each of the Big Three—is formed.

Canada's Youngest War Casualty

A London (Ont.) First World War veteran, Frank MacMaster, who while fighting in an Australian regiment helped to capture and destroy the German long-range mystery gun in 1918, claims for his seventeen-year-old son, Pte. Lewis MacMaster the distinction of being Canada's youngest war casualty in the present conflict.

This young hero whose mother was formerly Miss Marion Crawford of Charlottetown was wounded in the thigh while engaged with a mortar battery supporting the Highland Light Infantry in France a few months ago.

Lorne Crawford, now a resident of Georgetown, is an uncle. Incidentally, Lorne himself who has various disabilities as the result of having been severely wounded at Passchendaele in 1917, enlisted at Charlottetown for service in World War 1 at the early age of sixteen.

Knights Of Columbus Monthly Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Charlottetown Council of the Knights of Columbus was held last evening with a large attendance of members. The Grand Knight, Mr. R. A. MacDonald presided and the meeting opened with prayer by the Chaplain, Bishop Boyle.

Following the business session Mr. Leonard McDonald read the financial statements for the six months ending June 30, 1944 and Dec. 31, 1944, and both were passed as read.

This was followed by a brief on the operation of a boys' camp, read by Dr. J. A. MacMillan. This brought forth a discussion, Messrs. Alban Farmer, Eugene Kelly, Aubrey Ward, Carl Green, Connie LeClair, Urban McQuaid and Robert Bradley taking part. On motion of Alban Farmer, seconded by T. B. Creighan, the brief was approved by the Council.

For the good of the order, the Lecturer, Mr. Robert Bradley, staged a mock trial which proved most entertaining to the members.

The following composed the cast: Sgt. Major Frank McIntyre, Robert Bradley, D. E. Noonan, Louis Butler, Connie LeClair, Ignatius Murphy, Wilfred McKenna, Wilfred Smith, W. J. Brawders, A. Farmer, W. Mullins, H. Power, Gus Murphy, T. B. Creighan, Carl Green, Jack Campbell, Fred Smith, Edward Gallant, Emmett MacDonald, Jerome Gillis and E. Kelly.

The serving of coffee and doughnuts brought the meeting to a close.

An Old Tale Here

After the last bombs have been dropped on Berlin and Tokyo, and our boys and girls are home again, teamwork is going to mean more to many of us than it has ever meant before — because it is teamwork that is winning the war

We like to think that when the 73 men and women we have in the armed forces now come back to HOLMAN'S, they'll be returning to a team that we've kept on the winning side while they have been away. We've tried to make it that kind of a team in their absence—and we know that it will be a much better team when they're with us once again.

Bishop Kingston's Lenten Message

The following message has been sent to the clergy and people of the Anglican Diocese of Nova Scotia by Bishop George Frederick Kingston, on behalf of the Lent season:

"I trust that during the season of Lent, 1945, we shall all enter more deeply into the great truths of our religion by sincere and devout worship, by regular use of the means of grace provided in the Holy Communion, by reading and meditation in God's Holy Word, and by some simple yet definite discipline in life and conduct.

"During Lent I hope to make a special and renewed study of the Life of Christ, as it is recorded in the Gospel according to St. Mark, and I am wondering if many of our Church people would like to study that same important subject for the benefit of our souls and minds.

"Special intercessions for those who are serving in His Majesty's Forces are being offered up regularly in our churches week by week. And now, in this crucial period of the war, let us pray earnestly for victory and for worthiness to deal courageously and wisely with the problems which will present themselves in the post-war period.

"May the blessing of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit, be upon you all during this Holy Season of Lent."

Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) George Frederick, Nova Scotia,
BISHOP.

Trinity Men's Association

The February meeting of Trinity Men's Association was held in the Social Hall on Monday evening, Feb. 12, with an attendance upwards of 90.

A lively sing-song was led by Mr. James Calder. Mr. W W. Down reported a substantial increase in membership. Mr. W. W. Lord announced that members of the Association had volunteered to assist in the work of the Sunday School.

The president and secretary were requested to write the Anglican Layman's Association of St. Paul's expressing the heartfelt gratitude of Trinity Men's Association for the enjoyable evening of February 6th.

The feature of the evening was an address on "The Case of R M." by Mr. Miller MacLure, M.A., of Prince of Wales College. R.M. was a fellow student of the speaker and had acquired a B.A. with honors in philosophy from the University of Toronto, graduating at the time of the depression. He found little demand for his services and Mr. MacLure graphically described his financial problems, disillusionment and pessimism Subsequently, R.M. had made the supreme sacrifice as a member of the Canadian Navy.

In closing the speaker challenged the citizens at home as to how well they are fulfilling the ideas for which R.M. and others have died.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Claude Smith and seconded by Mr. E. E. Clawson to Mr. McLure for his inspiring and thought provoking address used in an attempt to mislead the people of Canada regarding the restricted reinforcement policy which was the chief cause of the humiliating desertion of some 6,300 men after they had been warned for service overseas.

I am not in any doubt that Gen. McNaughton's defeat was a source of great satisfaction to the men in the army overseas, for it would mean to them that a fair cross section of their own people had repudiated the policy which he had undertaken.

I have been head of a government in this country long enough to know that important decisions such as the change of a minister cannot be made overnight, but I had expected that Gen. McNaughton's resignation would be received immediately after his decisive rejection by the voters, or that if it was not forthcoming, that Mr. King in duty would ask for it.

The country has waited for a week. Instead of an announcement of the Defence Minister's resignation and his replacement by a man who could carry the confidence of the troops overseas and of the people of Canada, we read today in the press that he has rehashed the very arguments he used in the by-election campaign.

The Defence Minister said that Canadian soldiers are now joined in an offensive which may be the opening phase of one of the world's most critical and decisive battles. The fact is that they have been joined in such an offensive since last June, and their reinforcement, and the method of reinforcing them were the issues before the electors of Grey North.

There is one important thing to remember. It is that the issue is not merely the number of reinforcements, but the method by which those reinforcements are obtained. The King-McNaughton method is the one which has caused great bitterness overseas, and has brought anguish to thousands of Canadian homes.

It has created such a sense of deep injustice between the men overseas and the draftees at home, and even between different groups of draftees themselves that we may reap a terrible harvest from that feeling for the rest of our lives if action to correct it is not taken immediately.

Mr. King chose Grey North as a testing ground for the King-McNaughton policy of a limited draft. From this testing ground has come a clear and unequivocal reply. In the interest of the men overseas, and in respect for the judgment that has been passed, there is but one course which Mr. King properly should follow.

It is to replace the Defence Minister immediately and bring to the office a man whose policy will command the confidence of our fighting men and the people at home in Canada.

London Letter; Newsman Tells How City Looks Now

(Fred Backhouse, who returned to his home city of London, via New York, following his discharge from the R.C.A.F. describes how London seems after two years of absence.)

By FRED BACKHOUSE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Feb. 13 — (CP) — The coincidence of the colossal Russian offensive and the "Big Three" conference introduced an oddly antique note into the conversation of Londoners this last week and talk in the pubs was littered with 1942-style "what do you think of the Red Army?"

The resemblance ended there, however. Moscow assurances that the target was Unter Den Linden, plus the exciting movement of arrows on war maps, gave the citizens a spring to their stride that wasn't wholly attributable to the arctic weather.

This winter, incidentally, is the "worst within living memory," according to the newspapers, and the official threat of more cuts in the tiny fuel ration if economies are not made served further to chill the shivering city.

No one grumbled much: At this stage of the game it was a small enough additional burden.

Not that Londoners go about prophesying when the game is going to end. There have been too many false alarms before, and preparations for "mafficking" on European victory day—such as were made in the United States when the western Allies swept to the Reich frontier—would be in rather bad taste, they feel.

Meanwhile, the people do a lot of healthy grumbling about the minor rackets in their daily lives. Accommodation is one. In eight weeks of searching, this returned Englishman still hasn't found a furnished one-room apartment that would give the proverbial cat a good swing for his money—probably $30 a week.

Coming back to London you are painfully struck by the tired look of the English. After nearly 5 1-2 years of the promised "sweat and tears" the people are living on their nerves and feeding from a very lean cupboard.

The second impression is of the general shabbiness of people; a shabbiness that makes you curiously ashamed of the newness of your warm winter overcoat bought in Ottawa Any item of clothing newer than the year before last looks sinfully "black market." The colorful Canadian neckties I felt I was entitled to after four years in air force blue are still hanging in my cupboard.

But shabby and poor, millions of people continue to live under the constant threat of swift annihilation in the bomb menaced areas of "southern England." They stick it out with a typical native calmness—"if it's going to get you, it's going to get you, so why worry?"

Probable Sinking Of U-Boat Revealed

OTTAWA, Feb. 13 —(CP) — Probable sinking of a German U-boat and attacks on others in a North Atlantic battle "some months ago" in which speeding torpedoes were loosed at Canadian ships over a period of days, were anounced here today by Navy Minister Macdonald.

Location and dates of the battles were withheld for security reasons, but Mr. Macdonald gave a few details at his first formal press conference since returning last week from a tour of Canadian naval establishments.

Credit for the "probable" was divided among two Canadian ships —the frigate Dunver in command of Lt. Cmdr. W. Davenport, Victoria, and the Castle class corvette Hespeler, in command of Lt.-Cdmr. Neville S.C. Dickinson, Toronto and Halifax — and an R.A.F. Sunderland flying boat. The Dunver and Hespeler were in a navy group commanded by Cdmr. George Stephen of Montreal and Halifax.
