Ellen's Diary

By an Island Farmer's Wife

James who as he says likes "to leave the climbing to younger men" did not join the builders but preferred to work in the fields instead. They—he and the Nellmare cultivated potatoes hour after hour. Twice however he was obliged to suspend his labor because of the weather. The sudden showers allowed him to put in at the near haven of Mr. A's. Thus he was given a respite from his toil and a pleasant "kayley" at this hospitable home nearby We "kayleyed" together more recently, in the house across the lane where some of Jeanie's kin folk visited as well. Except for a neat pile of her clothing on a table in readiness for the new day, as I said to James on the way home "You'd never know there was a baby in the house". She had already been put to bed in Jamie's basket upstairs. "How do you think she's doing Ellen? Do you fancy she's a little pale? Perhaps she was crying today—now there's not one bit of need of letting that child cry" He walked ahead of me and then parting company presently "guessed he would turn that team out to pasture now". I heard a yard-gate open and the sound of the horses cantering down along the rise. Pard came then from his watch on a door-step and I saw the darky-cat go softly down the short-cut to the mill to catch a prowling mouse or squirrel and then with this exquisite moonlight to go on to serenade one of his ladies fair. And now James' day which began in haste is drawing to a leisurely close. He is talking with Karolyn by 'phone. These are his words: "And he's asleep—tired out I expect? Yes she's here—she's writing. Yes whenever I've had a bite to eat. Yes they certainly were early this morning". He replaces the receiver. "Well Ellen" he tells me in a tone I can never disregard on account of its pleading. "I guess I'll have to go hungry to bed"

Until tomorrow. . . Diary Good-night.

Seaman-Andrews Wedding

A lovely summer wedding took place Saturday evening at 6 o'clock in St. Matthias Church, when Rev. Edward Morris united in marriage Miss Viola Vivian Andrews, daughter of G. A. and the late Mrs. Andrews, and niece of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Wamboldt, Halifax, to Charles Ronald Heath Seaman, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Seaman, Brackley Beach, P. E. I.

Given in Marriage by her uncle Theodore Wamboldt, the bride was a lovely figure in her floor length gown of white duchess satin slightly entrained, styled with a high neckline and long sleeves which fell in points over the wrists. Her floor length veil was held in place by a coronet or orange blossoms and lily of the valley. Her only ornament was a double strand of pearls, the gift of the groom, and she carried a shower bouquet of deep pink roses.

Miss Helen Pye attended as bridesmaid and wore a floor length gown of aqua sheer, with shoulder length veil and small flowered hat. She carried an arm boquet of pink carnations. David Seaman, brother of the groom was best man and the ushers were: Roy McCarthy, cousin of the bride and George Brown, cousin of the groom.

The choir was in attendance and during the signing of the register Mrs. A. K. Crawford sang "I'll Walk Beside You."

The reception was held later at the bride's home, where the bride's table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake. The toast to the newly weds was proposed by Rev. Edward Morris.

The guests were received by Mrs. Theodore Wamboldt, aunt of the bride, who wore a two piece blue crepe dress, with white accessories and a corsage of yellow talisman roses, and Mrs. A. C. Seaman, mother of the groom who was attired in a torquoise blue crepe dress, with black and white accessories and wore a corsage of pink roses.

Later the young couple left on a wedding trip to Cornwallis Inn, Kentville and Evangeline Beach. For travelling the bride chose a blue jersey dress, blue shortee coat with ping and white accessories. On their return they will reside in Halifax.

Out of town guests included Mrs. C. A. Seaman and David Seaman, Brackley Beach, Mr. and Mrs. William Seaman and son Lloyd, George Brown and Mrs. Rebecca Brown, Charlottetown.

with the help of Kellogg's HEXITE Fox Feed the easy-to-digest cereal supplement that's rich in

★ENERGY ★VITAMINS ★MINERALS

Only strong, sturdy, well-boned foxes have the size and stamina to produce first-class pelts. The time to develop this vital framework is now—during the critical growing months. Once this time is past, nothing can be done to feed an undersized, runty animal into a big, full-size pelter or breeder.

For the important job of supplying the energy your foxes need while they're growing, you can count on Hexite. It's rich in energy supplied by easy-to-digest, thoroughly cooked cereal flakes. It contains plenty of vitamin D and calcium—both needed for sound, strong bones. It contains many other vitamins and minerals essential to vigorous health and good condition.

Try Hexite as the cereal supplement for your foxes. It will help you get the best possible pups, pelts and profits. Choose either Hexite XX (with meat) or Hexite Cereal (without meat). FRONTIER OKLAHOMA DRAMA LOCALE OF "BADMAN'S TERRITORY"

An exciting dramatization of a vivid chapter in the history of the old West is seen in RKO Radio's spectacular melodrama, "Badman's Territory."

Randolph Scott and Ann Richards respectively play the hero and heroine of the picture, which deals with old events in the Oklahoma Panhandle. For forty years this area, larger than the state of Connecticut, was completely lawless because of legal oversight which left it without any governmental jurisdiction.

After epic conflict the region was included in the newly formed territory of Oklahoma in 1890, and amid this conflict is played the romance and action of the film. Scott plays a sheriff and Miss Richards is a fiery newspaepr editor. George "Gabby" Hayes shares honors with them as a genial bandit.

A train robbery by the James boys, the Dalton's memorable raid on Coffeyville, and a frontier horse-race provide some of the exciting sequences of "Badman's Territory." Tim Whelan directed the production by Nat Holt, and Lawrence Tierney, James Warren, Ray Collins and Isabel Jewell are among the many featured players.

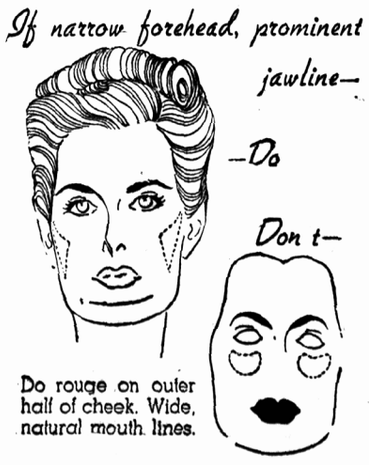
Fashion Horoscope by Colette

If narrow forehead, prominent jawline—



Do rouge on outer half of cheek. Wide, natural mouth lines.

Don't overlook this makes heavy jaw-bone less prominent

Chicago Sun Syndicate

Prominent jawline, or pear-shaped face, the thing to avoid is too much makeup on that prominent lower face. For better balance, do apply cheek rouge in a deep, narrow triangle on the outer sides of your face to minimize the fullness of jaw-line. Your mouth pleasantly curved, but not too full, is in good proportion to your pear-shaped face. And remember rolled hair height adds to your narrow forehead.
