Steel Shortages Growing Worse

(By The Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, June 9 — Steel shortages, said the magazine Steel today, are growing worse instead of better.

The automobile industry is "becoming more pessimistic" and now forecasts total 1946 production of cars and trucks at less than 3,000,000, with "Detroit guesses" for next year running to about 4,500,000, says the trade publication, adding:—

"The boom of 7,000,000 cars annually now is at least three years off, if indeed it can ever be reached."

The steel industry is eight to 12 weeks behind on delivery promises and "it is probable that no new steel orders can be accepted until some time in 1947, with part of the accepted order backlog being pushed off into the opening months of next year," continued Steel.

The Maritime strike scheduled for June 15 would disrupt coke production along the Atlantic coast, where producers depend on coal shipments by coastal vessels.

Although further increases are expected in steelmaking this week, "it probably will be impossible to reach a normal output before fall," Steel said.

Stock Markets At A Glance

WINNIPEG, June 9—(CP)—Rye futures prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange fluctuated widely Saturday in an active and nervous session. The market showed hesitation at one stage and dropped below yesterday's close in the deferred months. Good buying by American and local interests was reported in the last half of the session.

CHICAGO, June 9 — (AP)— Shortly after the opening Saturday prices of deferred oats climbed 1-8—1-4 cent to their ceilings. These were the last contracts to reach maximums. After that, activity fell away to very nearly nothing. Bids were in at ceilings in all contracts and offerings were small.

NEW YORK, June 9 — (AP)— After a week of irregularly lower trends, the stock market steadied selectively in the concluding session Friday although many leaders continued the downward drift.

Some buying cropped up on the idea that recent declines had bettered the market's technical health. Throughout the short week—principal exchanges were closed Saturday as they will be on other summer Saturdays—the cloudy labor situation received most of the blame for such selling as appeared.

From Monday on, dealings were relatively sluggish.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off 1.1 points at 81.1 on the week. It recovered .1 Friday, first advance since May 29.

NYLON CURTAINS WILL SHINE

Windows in many new homes are designed to coved one entire wall. At such windows no curtains are needed for the view outside furnishes the decoration. An excellent "freedom from care idea" when it comes to curtains.

As you can hardly put a glass "window wall" in your living room just to do away with curtains, there are other practical ideas that give a bright and rosy future to curtain care. The new fabrics such as nylons, fiberglas or keroseal make curtains with wonderful durability and "cleanability."

Nylon curtains are one way to reduce curtain care to the minimum. They are as sheer as chiffon and if you choose the nylon marquisettes, nylon ninons or nylon nets, your curtains will drape well and hold their fullness. The smooth fibers in nylon make it one of the materials that sheds dust easily. If you do want to wash nylon curtains then dry quickly and require little ironing and no stretching!

Fiberglas which looks like a crisp taffeta overdrape could be left up all summer with perfect satisfaction for sunlight doesn't hurt it and it doesn't water-spot. Stains and dust can be wiped off of fiberglas with a damp cloth, so you won't have to worry about cleaning it.

Cool-looking curtains for summer windows that require little care may be made of net finished with koroseal, another of the new fabrics that cleans with a damp cloth. It is very light and comes in beautiful colors that will make decorative summer curtains.

Paper overdrapes are practical for summer windows and are very popular. They are in chintz, flower patterns on dark backgrounds and will not show soil.

Another way to free yourself from curtain care is to take down both sash curtains and overdrapes and "frame" your windows with a decorative cornice. These cornice frames can be made of plywood, sometimes cut in a scroll pattern on the edge toward the window. Plain or quilted chintz, or a simple hand-painted decoration which you could do yourself would make them decorative high spots in your room. Wall paper borders, or floral patterns cut from wall paper or chintz can be used to outline a window. This is effective at windows where Venetian blinds are used.

The new plans to give more "freedom from care" in housework will make living more pleasant. Fit yourself into the plan, by having curtains that you can "forget" when it comes to taking care of them this summer.

CURIOUS WEASEL

(From Forest and Outdoors)

The weasel is regarded as one of the most curious of all the smaller animals. Not only is it a curious acting and looking animal, but it also has a "curiosity" all its own.

This animal delights in investigating all the old traps it can find, and in this way many a weasel is caught, having stuck its nose too far into an untended trap which may even contain the stalest of baits.

Another queer trait of this weasel is its overwhelming desire to see what is going on around it. Many times a weasel is chased into a hole but almost immediately it will stick its head out to see what is happening, and the hunter finishes him off. However, this is not a good habit on the part of the farmers, since many other animals besides weasels damage poultry.
