Out-of-Doors in Prince Edward Island, is the subject of three photographs covering a full page in the Canadian Pictorial for June, executed in the fine style of that illustrated serial. One of these shows a boy fishing in a calm pool below a mill. Another presents a winding woodland road, along which a pedestrian is taking a leisurely stroll between two spruce trees that hedge it on both sides. The third picture presents two fishermen whom many Charlottetownians will recognize. One is standing on the shore beside a dead leaning tree. The other is standing leg-deep in midstream, and both intent fishing. Thick groves of spruce trees line both banks. All these pictures are pretty and pleasing, with fine effects of light and shadow, on pool and tree and sky. The photos are by W. S. Louson, who is doing so much to advertise the beauty spots of Prince Edward Island.

The wedding of Miss Jennie M. Bell, one of Newcastle's best known and most popular young ladies, to Stanley Wallace Miller, mayor of Newcastle, took place in St. James' Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening, June 2, at 9 o'clock, Rev. S. J. McArthur officiating. The church was handsomely decorated and a full choir rendered appropriate music. The principals were unattended. The bride was handsomely dressed in cream satin messaline with embroidered chiffon and pearl trimmings, and wore a bridal veil and orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet. She entered the church to the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. Charles Sargeant, on the arm of her uncle, Henry A. Vye. On account of the continued illness of the bride's grandfather, Wm. H. Vye, the wedding was quiet and the reception indefinitely postponed. The Newcastle band escorted Mr. and Mrs. Miller from the church to the bride's home. After a supper at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Jamie Bell, the happy couple left on the Maritime express for a trip to Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Buffalo. The bride is going away dressed in a gown of reseda green with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Miller received a hearty send-off from the citizens, the town turning out en masse to see the wedding and to see them off on the train. On their return they will reside here.—St. John Telegraph.

Mayor Miller is a maiden brother-in-law to T. B. McMurdo of Newcastle and formerly of Alberton.

The damage by water done to the Queen Hotel is greater than at first thought, the plaster in many of the rooms being so badly damaged that it will have to be removed. It is understood the adjuster of insurance will arrive in the city tonight to estimate the loss.

A delightful missionary Concert was given by the S. S. Children of Central Christian Church, City, last evening. The program of recitations, dialogues, quartettes and solo, were successfully carried out, the solo by the little tot being given in a pleasing manner. The parts taken by the smaller children were exceptionally well rendered.

Henry Horne, Winslow Station, brought to the Guardian office a small section of a tree, of some hardwood variety in which are the letters N M, the letters being a little over a quarter of an inch high and showing brown in the white wood. One theory is that these letters are initials that were cut by some person years ago in the bark of the tree, over which the wood had since grown. The letters appear at about an inch from the outer surface and are horizontal, or would be so if the tree were standing. That is, with the wood cut across, the letters appear on the end of the grain, or at right angles to what they would if cut in the side of the tree. This seems to disprove the theory that they originated in that way, but how came the letters thus imprinted deep in the wood?

Remember the sale of the Longworth property on Water Street opposite Queen Hotel, at twelve o'clock Friday the 11th June. 6-9d3.
