DAANGEROUS BRIDGE—On one of the roads leading to Rustico there is a caved in bridge which is a serious menace to travellers. There is no sign of any kind to indicate the danger and anyone driving, especially at night, could scarcely avoid a smash up. This danger spot should be marked at once. People driving from Charlottetown yesterday around a long detour through the kindness of a neighbour who piloted them through his fields to a safe road beyond the bridge.

MUSIC HOUR ENJOYED—There was a large attendance at the Special Hour of Music, after the evening service in St. James Church last night, and the nicely balanced program was much enjoyed. After a brief introductory address by the Minister, Rev. W. Bruce Muir. The organist Mr. George Methven, A. C. C. O. rendered the "Spring Song", by Hollins, very delightfully. This was followed by a selected solo by Raoul Raymond, who was in excellent voice and who later sang with Mrs. Raymond. "O Salutaris" their voices blending very harmoniously and sweetly. The choir were heard to excellent effect in the Anthems, "Souls of the Righteous", and "Saviour Thy Children Keep" both beautifully given and admirably interpreted. A quartette, "God So Loved The World", was very pleasingly sung by Mrs. Lawson, Mrs. Barlow, Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Barlow, all favorite interpreters of sacred music. Mr. E. C. Farnell, who is always a favorite in St. James Church was heard to wonderful advantage in that lovely solo, "Beautiful Garden of Prayer." So great was the appreciation expressed by many of those present that an effort will be made to continue at intervals these pleasing and helpful special hours of music, and music lovers will look anxiously forward for similar events.

CHURCH SERVICES

Winter is the period of activity in many of the organizations of this church, and these have now completed their programmes of work for the season. There will therefore be but little to report from week to week apart from the Sunday services, until the return of autumn ushers in another season of intensive effort. The regular Sunday morning and evening services, Sunday School and mid-week congregational prayer meeting will, however, be carried on without interruption.

The preacher at the morning service yesterday was Rev. Dr. Ramsay, whose discourse on the value and danger of change was appropriate to the spring time. The text was "Because they fear not God," Miss Jean Beaton sang Sanderson's "Beyond the Dawn", the choir rendered the anthem "See ye the Lord," Mr. G. Elmer Ritchie, taking the baritone solo, and the Harmony Male Eight gave without accompaniment "Still, still with thee."

In the evening Rev. Hammond Johnson preached on the challenge of life, from the words of Caleb, "Let us go up at once and possess it, for we are well able to overcome it." (The Promised Land). The preacher referred to four lands of promise which challenge the faith and effort of Christendom today—a warless world, a Christianized social order, a developed world, a divided life.

The developed world, consisted of the Anthem, "Jesus, Saviour pilot me," with Miss Ethel Heaney in the solo part, and a soprano solo, "My Task," by Miss Mary Rogers, at the conclusion of the service.

ZION CHURCH SERVICES

In the morning the Minister of Zion exchanged pulpits with Mr. Norman E. Barnett, B. A., a student of Princeton Theological Seminary, N. J.

A very interesting and practical sermon was preached on the theme "The Offense of the Cross." Mr. Fulton reports the presence at the reopening of the Harrington Presbyterian Church of a fine congregation. This church is now bright and commodious. Many visitors were present, some from distant places. The weather was ideal and in the afternoon Mr. Muir, the Interim—Moderator of the congregation, preached an eloquent and appropriate sermon to a crowded congregation. We are sure Rev. Thos. A. Rodger will also be greeted with a full attendance.

There was a fine attendance and splendid attention given to Mr. Fulton's exposition of Luke XV, 20-24. This service is being followed with much interest. Next Sabbath evening "The Prodigal and Elder Brother" will be the concluding address on the Parable and will be broadcast. The interest was added to last night's theme by the rendition of "The Penitent" by Van de Water. Mr. Ben Acorn sang this selection with a fine voice and in perpetrating a fine mood.

The choir rendered "O Love that will not let me go," Mr. Malcolm McKinnon taking the solo part.

M. Elmer Farnell received much praise for his rendition of "In the Garden of Prayer."

Prof. Lewis D. Thompson was absent from his place at the organ.

He is suffering from a severe cold in the head. His choir missed him and hope for his speedy recovery.

Master Horace Ledwig McEwen presided at the organ with his customary skill and poise.

IN MEMORIAM

JAMES E. LOWTHER

Seldom if ever has sadder news reached North Carleton than the word received the other day of the sudden death of James E. Lowther at Spooner, Wis., in an automobile accident.

Jim, as he was popularly known, left home some three or four years ago and on reaching Minneapolis secured employment with the firm of Clawson & Balls of that city and at the time of his death was assistant foreman of the plant. On Saturday, May 12 last he was driving some friends to their home for the week-end when they struck a very

Duke Officiates At Ceremony

(Special to The Guardian)
BELFAST, May 19.—In presence of a distinguished company, His Grace the Duke of Abercorn laid the foundation stone of the parliament buildings at Stormont, five miles from Belfast. The site is adjacent to Stormont castle. Elaborate preparations were made for the ceremony, which marks another red letter day in the annals of the Imperial Province, and made her more British than ever.

The Governor and the Duchess left Government House Hillsborough at noon and passed through Belfast, the chief streets of which were blazing with Union Jacks and bunting an hour later. Belfast turned out in thousands and greeted the couple. Extra trains were put on to carry the good citizens to Stormont, where every possible facility was given to admit the people.

dangerous turn in the road, at a place where four others had met death in the last four years and the car turned over when the brakemen were applied, pinning him over one of his companions under the car, the other being thrown clear. His companion escaped with minor injury, but it is thought that the steering wheel crushed the driver. His brother, Wilfred, was at once notified and he proceeded immediately to the scene of the accident, but Jim had only lived a few minutes.

Two brothers, the deceased, Wilfred and Horace, accompanied the body home, and the funeral was held at North Carleton on Friday, May 18th. The very large number of people present gave mute evidence of the esteem in which the young man was held in his own community, and the large number of floral tributes from Minneapolis from his firm and his friends testified very highly to his bright, lovable character.

The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. A. J. Reynolds, Bedeque United Church, assisted by Mr. George Runcie and the choir of the Searleton United Church after which the remains were tenderly laid to rest in the United Church cemetery at Searleton.

The pall bearers were Heber Myers, David Gardiner, Stewart Wright, Earl Hamill, Otto Doull and Hedley Lowther.

The death of this bright young man of 21 years cut short a life of great promise. He had the happy knack of making everyone his friend and had the greater faculty of being able to retain their friendship.

He leaves to mourn his loss his father Leigh Lowther, and his grandparents David I. and Mrs. Lowther, all of North Carleton, and the following brothers: Hudson, of North Carleton, Wilfred of Minneapolis, Horace of Chicago, and Fred and Lloyd at home.

Floral tributes included the following—Pillow from the family; Wreath from four former school mates at Kensington; Wreath from the Tuxis Boys from Bedeque; Wreaths from the firm of Clawson & Balls; the Maxwell family, and three wreaths from Minneapolis friends.

different outlook on life and if we decide to take the life of service, then we will have really accomplished something worth while.

A very pleasing number on the program was a vocal selection by Miss Beaton which was greatly enjoyed by all.

Mr. Bentley as chairman of the Religious Work Committee gave a few parting remarks, expressing his pleasure at having so many attend the services and the co-operation received from the students.

The meeting was dismissed with a closing program by Prof. Shaw.
