The Mystery of The Singing Walls

"Too bad," Graham muttered, "for it was Mr. Warburton's murderer. Miss Mason, you have had a narrow escape from death. For some reason that I cannot guess, your uncle's assassin tried to kill you, too. It was lucky that happened along when we did for Burke would never have heard your cries over in the study and the man would have strangled you as those red marks of his hands on your neck show. Miss Mason, you have had a narrow escape from death."

Over John's shoulder, Dr. Darnell was signaling to Graham. For she had started to run again through the girl's body and she was trembling as if shaken by a malaria chill.

Gripping the lapels of the engineer's coat, she pulled him close to her.

"Oh, John," she whispered brokenly. "Don't let them kill me. Stay with me, John."

"There, there little girl," he reassured her, taking her in his arms and kissing her forehead gently. "I'm right here and nothing is going to harm you."

"Only Mr. Graham," he looked up grimly. "I want my revolver back."

edge of the divan and sat bolt upright.

"I feel better now," she declared resolutely, passing her hand across her forehead as though to iron away the wrinkles of troubled thought. "I will tell you what happened."

As you remember after leaving at the elevator, I sat in the bed-room. The body lay as Dr. Darnell had arranged it, covered with a sheet. I was starting to fold his poor, dead hands, when I remembered that Captain Busby had asked me to look up the red memoranda book safe. So I made up my mind to find that first and to wait until Dr. Darnell arrived to help me with the body.

"Uncle's coat and waistcoat, lying on the chair, were blood-soaked. It was all I could do to search them. Evidently some one had gone through the pockets, taking things out and then jammed them back in disorder. And the memorandum book was not there.

"Somehow, as I was searching, I had a feeling that I was being creaked behind me. I turned toward the curtains of the closet and but there was no one apparently in the room and I just put it down to nerves. Now, after what happened, I realized that some one had slipped in the room after me and that it was the stare of his eyes from the closet that made me turn.

"Anyway, not finding the memorandum book, I thought that uncle might have left it in one of the pigeon-holes of the desk in this case, Mr. Osborn, he is concluded with decision. 'There is no doubt but that Miss Mason was assaulted by the same man who murdered Mr. Warburton. But you have never let my side. Therefore you are not Mr. Warburton's murderer. And I am sure Busby will agree with me.'

"Let me have my revolver," John repeated. "Miss Mason is in danger."

The detective shook his head. "I'm glad to give you your revolver," he pointed out, "but not for the purpose you request. We are dealing with a clever man and I am going to put Miss Mason in the hands of Hughes and Brady, two of the best men on the force. They are professionals, and while you may be able to take care of yourself outdoors, you would be a child to a clever criminal."

John saw the force of the argument and nodded.

"However," Graham went on, "I shall be glad to have you help me and represent Miss Mason in this investigation. Burke, run down and tell Hughes and Brady to come and see me. The other boys' Busby sent for, have probably arrived by this time, and they will take over the job of guarding the house."

"But why should any one wish to kill Miss Mason?" Dr. Darnell asked wonderingly. "Why should a person try to murder her?"

"Doctor, there are a great many strange 'whys' in this affair, but detective mused. "Beginning with the severed finger and coming right down to this attack, it is the most baffling case I ever handled. It seems so simple, so obvious, yet there are broken links in every chain of reasoning I have forged, and this attack on this young lady is the most unexpected. As I say, for there are a good many strange 'whys' in this case.

Anne had sunk back against the pillows, quieter now, more relaxed and the stiffening melted out of her rigid body. Her lids were closed and her long black lashes sharply penciled on the creamy warmth of her skin, kept fluttering. The girl was still badly shaken, and, every now and again, her breast gave a convulsive heave and the slender fingers clasping John's wrist tightened.

Rheumatic Pain And Thin Blood

Liniments of No Avail—The Trouble Must be Treated Through the Blood.

The most a rheumatic sufferer can hope for in rubbing something on the swollen, aching joints is a little relief and all the while the trouble is becoming more firmly rooted. It is now known that rheumatism is rooted in the blood, and that as the trouble goes on the blood becomes still further thick and watery. To get rid of rheumatism, therefore, you must go to the root of the trouble in the blood. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved so beneficial when taken for this trouble. They make new, rich blood which expels the poisonous acid and the rheumatism disappears. There are thousands of former rheumatic sufferers in Canada, now well and strong, who thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that they are now free from the aches and pains of this dreaded trouble. One of these is Mr. Robt. A. Smith, Mersey Point, N. S., who says:—"Some years ago I was attacked with rheumatism, which grew so bad that I could not walk and had to go to bed under the doctor's care. It is needless to say that I underwent a great deal of suffering. The doctor's medicine did not seem to reach the trouble, so when I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I did so, and after taking them for some weeks I was unable to get out of bed. I continued using the pills and was soon able to work; and I have not been troubled with rheumatism since. In either respects also I derived a great deal of benefit from these pills and I think them a wonderful remedy."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr.

Bad Backache Relieved After Seven Years

Newfoundland Man Now Praised Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. John Hallahan is Thankful That His Wife Read Dodd's Almanac.

Princeton, Nfld., April 30.—(Special)—"I have been subject to a bad back for the last seven or eight years," states Mr. J. Hallahan, a well known resident of this place. "I have tried all kinds of medicines but have found them no good. My wife was reading your Almanac and found where lots of people were relieved of complaints like mine, so I got two boxes and now I am feeling much better. I am so thankful that we read your Almanac. I recommend your Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who suffer with backache like I did." Other sufferers of backache tell of pains relieved and health restored through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

—Dodd's Kidney Pills have built up their reputation on the good work they have done.

The detective walked over to the window and stood for a moment looking out into the narrow courtyard. Then he sauntered slowly back across the room.

"I can't make it out," he admitted, "although one thing is clear and that is that Mr. Warburton was engaged in a plan with a man named Henry and, if I am not mistaken, that plan had something to do with his murder. For that letter was the last act of his life before he went on the ride that brought him death. And, with us crashing in the door, the murderer took time to snatch it from the desk as he

One night Willie Pinkerton and his family were enjoying a wonderful concert over the radio from station K.A.L.E. when all of a sudden the concert stopped and a mysterious code message came out of the loud speaker. Nobody knew what it meant. But Willie was quick enough to jot it down, and as he had been studying letters representing a word. Start by writing the alphabet down from A to Z and number each letter beginning at Z first as number 1, 2, 3, 4, and so on. Then change the letters of the mysterious message into numbers by finding which number each letter represents. Then you must write down another alphabet numbering it the right way. A number 1, 2, 3, 4, and so on. Change the numbers back into letters by finding the letter corresponding to that number. In order to help them he told them the first word was "Hi". Decipher the complete message if you can and send your answer right away to compete for the big prize.

HOW HE DECIPHERED IT

Hi Pa and Ma wanted to know what the message meant but Willie wouldn't tell them. He told them how he worked it out to see if they could do it, too. He told them the message contained 11 words, each little group of letters representing a word. Start by writing the alphabet down from A to Z and number each letter beginning at Z first as number 1, 2, 3, 4, and so on. Then change the letters of the mysterious message into numbers by finding which number each letter represents. Then you must write down another alphabet numbering it the right way. A number 1, 2, 3, 4, and so on. Change the numbers back into letters by finding the letter corresponding to that number. In order to help them he told them the first word was "Hi". ORWELL COVE NOTES

Winter still lingers in the lap of spring, yet the good folks of this locality have reason to be thankful for the unusually good health.

Mr. John Nicholson and Hector Murchison Point Prim, were visiting in Orwell Cove Sunday, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nicholson.

The farmers of this vicinity are busy hauling potatoes.

Mr. Jack Nicholson, Grand View spent the week-end in the Cove.

Mr. Stewart McDonald had a narrow escape when his horse took a fright, upsetting the sleigh, but luckily no damage was done.

Our general merchant, Mr. D. D. McLeod, reports business in a flourishing condition.

Mrs. J. A. McLeod and daughter, Beulah Jean, returned home after visiting her brother, Dr. A. McTavish, Newtown.

A dance held in the Cove Hall by the Women's Institute proved a great success.

Miss Mamie Nicholson and Miss Bertha Nicholson spent Easter in Newtown, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rod. McPherson.

Mr. Alexander Anderson had the misfortune of losing some of his foxes which escaped from his ranch.

The young people of Orwell Cove spent a very gratifying evening at the dance at Mr. George Dougherty's, and returned home in the wee sma' hours. They pronounced the ice in good condition.

Mr. Dan McDonald was a visitor to the city last week.

We regret to learn that Mr. J. A. Nicholson is still in failing health with asthma. He intends to leave shortly for the U. S. A., where we hope for a speedy recovery.

The many friends of Mr. John Nicholson are pleased to hear he is able to be about again after a short illness.
