VOX POPULI, VOX DEI.

The saying that the voice of the people is the voice of God is a very old one and can be traced back through the centuries for over 2,500 years to Hesiod. As originally uttered it ran thus: "The saying that is voiced by many people never wholly dies, since it is itself divine." This refers to the proverbial philosophy of the ages, rather than to the sometimes hasty and impassioned verdicts given by the people, as frequently rendered at election times. The turbulence of a mob, often closely allied to insanity, has nothing in it that is divine. And yet within proper limitation and definition the much-quoted saying which has come down to us through the ages is largely true. Let it be understood that by "the voice of the people" is meant the voice of the common people—of the masses and not of the classes,—and take that voice to represent their deliberate and ultimate verdict, and, Vox Populi, Vox Dei, expresses a great truth.

There is in the race at large, in the masses, among the plain people, a divine instinct, "the common sense of most," as Tennyson puts it, that is true to the highest good of mankind. We see it in the fact that the common people heard Him gladly, Whom the learned Scribes and self-righteous Pharisees rejected. We see it in the great reforms that have sprung up in all lands where the people have been given, or have won for themselves the right of self-government. The people's voice spoke in Magna Charta, the Bill of Rights, the Reform bills. It destroyed the despotic power of kings, reformed the cruel criminal laws which little more than a century ago had catalogued two hundred offences punishable with death, and filled the prisons with unfortunate debtors. The people's voice abolished human slavery and is warring manfully to abolish the liquor traffic. It has made all men equal before the courts, all men free to worship according to the dictates of their own conscience, none daring to make them afraid. It has sounded the death-knell of class privilege. In all these great matters and in many other ways the voice of the people has been as the voice of God. The deliberate and ultimate verdict of the people has been true to the highest welfare of the race.

The masses as against the classes, even as against the educated classes, have been often and usually in the right. Benjamin Kidd in his Social Evolution says that it has to be confessed that in England during the nineteenth century, the educated classes in almost all the great political changes, have first taken the side of the party afterward admitted to have been in the wrong. They have invariably opposed at the time the measures they have subsequently come to defend and justify. Says he: "The motive force behind the long list of progressive measures has come almost exclusively from the middle and lower classes, who have in turn acted, not under the stimulus of intellectual motives, but under the influence of their own altruism." John Ruskin declared that the mystery of life and the arts can only be solved by those who work and toil; that this class alone can solve for us life's deepest mysteries and that we can only learn by joining them. The normal man and the best type of man is the working man.

Herein lies the hope of all true reform. How long would it be before the classes who pride themselves on their birth, or breeding, or social or intellectual superiority would drive out, the drink evil, or the political evils and corruption of the time? We might wait in vain for the work to be accomplished by them. Human society has been compared to a boiling caldron, with a froth at the top and dregs in the bottom, the masses of the people constituting the clear liquid between. It is these middle classes, above the criminal dregs and below the aristocratic froth, who originate and carry through all great reforms, and whose voice is the real, the potent and the divine Vox Populi.

THE MARINE INQUIRY.

Judge Cassels has finished his inquiry into the Marine Department at Quebec, where very startling evidence was brought to light. He will next proceed to Halifax and St. John, and as rumor has it may come to Charlottetown, and hopes to complete the inquiry by Christmas. Two results have already followed. One is the suspension of many officials, which has temporarily paralysed most of the Government steamers. The other is the abolition of the patronage list, so far as the Marine and Fisheries Department is concerned.

The revelations have been worse even than the Opposition charges. Testimony offered at Quebec affirmed that the same or similar conditions exist and have long existed in the departments of Railways and Public Works, to go no farther. If by any possibility these statements are true in whole or in part, the enquiry should not stop with a single department. It should be made general and complete, and if the Government is in earnest in its house-cleaning, this will be done. Sir Wilfrid is believed to be disposed to thoroughly cleanse the official service. He has abundant support, and what he does or leaves undone will be the test of his sincerity.

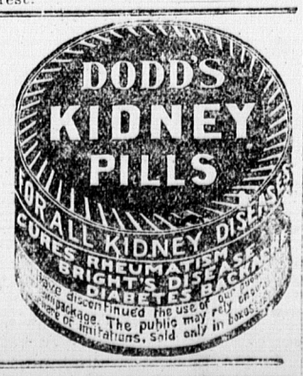
The patronage list, in the language of the Toronto Globe, has been "the curse of all Canadian Governments in the past." It will be but a very partial reform to abolish the list so far as only one department is concerned. Railways and Public Works have suffered as much and been almost as much scandalised as has the Marine Department. The patronage list must go, not from one department but from all, if we are to have real, thorough and general reform in these matters, such as the country hopes for and expects. And the boodlers and grafters must go, along with the patronage list.

If a political leader is big enough for his job the people will find it out and follow him. Witness Gladstone in Britain, Lincoln and Roosevelt in the United States, Sir John Macdonald and Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Canada. It is the same in the smaller fields of the Province or the electoral division. We have great faith in the sterling common sense of the people in choosing, as they will have to do tomorrow between the fifty or sixty opposing candidates for their favor.

By the way, is it not about time that we ceased to elect Assemblymen and Councillors, one lot by a so-called franchise vote and the other by a property vote? Such distinctions are unknown in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario or the west. Why not have all the people vote for all the members, as they do in the other Provinces? Or are we wiser than the people elsewhere in these matters? The people elsewhere in abolishing their Legislative Councils did not perpetuate the old-time classification of voters, or of representatives.

The man who wants to be paid "for his day" at the election ought not to be permitted to vote. He ought to be disfranchised. It ought to be esteemed as among our greatest civil rights that we are permitted to choose our lawmakers and rulers.

Who are the ten greatest men in Canada? This is the subject propounded by the Canadian Courier of Toronto for a voting contest. A year or more ago The Guardian conducted a similar competition to ascertain opinions as to the greatest man in Prince Edward Island, and it proved to be wide and general interest.



When the farmer is offered eight to eight and a half cents a pound for his pork he would do well to sell it.

The delayed elections in Yale-Cariboo in British Columbia resulted in the return of Conservative members.

Yukon is now the only federal seat not filled, the election being yet to be held. The result of the late election by Provinces appears to be as below:

	Liberal	Conservative
Ontario	38	48
Quebec	54	11
Nova Scotia	12	6
N. Brunswick	11	2
P. E. Island	3	1
Manitoba	3	7
Saskatchewan	7	3
Alberta	4	3
B. Columbia	2	5
Total	134	86

SHE LAUGHED.

Ardently I said I loved her;
That without her smile to cheer,
Blessings all would turn to pitfalls,
Life be meaningless and drear,
In her eyes I sought my answer,
Tremblingly, 'twix hope and fear,
And—she laughed,
Looking straight into my face, Sir,
She laughed.

One year afterwards I met her;
Back again the mad thoughts rushed
All the pain that I thought buried,
All the longings I had crushed,
As a stranger, then, I passed her,
Tho' my conscious face was flushed;
But—she laughed!
Gaily bidding me good morning, Sir,
She laughed.

Still another year I met her,
Fair as ere she used to be,
My heart bounded as I saw her,
For I knew that I was free
From the fancied load I'd carried;
And I smiled; and, quick to see,
She laughed.
In my heart then, how I thanked her that
She'd laughed!

Thin Blood Made Strong

Tiredness and Weakness Overcome.

A Joyous Letter.

"I admit because I neglected early treatment I am entirely to blame for the condition of weakness that for nearly two years made my life a real misery," writes Mrs. Inzen, of Beaupert. "At first I felt sort of flat in the morning and could do no more than pick at my breakfast. Later I remembered my sleep was disturbed, that dreamy, restless sleep, from which you finally awaken, feeling as if you could never get up. Then I became thin, lost my color, got nervous and fearful about nothing, and kept thinking about myself all the time, and was irritable, cross and easily made cry. What would have become of me if I had not taken Ferrozone I can't imagine. Ferrozone put new life into me from the start. It strengthened my nerves and brought back my color, and in a little while, less than three months, no healthier and brighter woman could be found anywhere. I highly praise Ferrozone and advise sick people to take advantage of its health-conferring properties."

Ferrozone quickens the powers of both body and mind, simply because it forms lots of blood that's full of life and vitality. Ferrozone creats appetite, gives strength, vim and endurance, it's good for old people, good for everybody that needs better health. Thousands of men, women and children use Ferrozone every day and all say it's the best nourishing, strengthening tonic made; try Ferrozone yourself, 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50. Sold by all dealers.
