China World Domination Seen Distinct Possibility

By LOUDON KELLY

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—"The prospect of Red China's domination of the world, in time, is good if relations continue bad between this country and Russia."

So says Arnold Toynbee. The eminent British historian, nearly 76 but looking younger, relaxes in slacks and house slippers as pungent opinions fall.

"China by the year 2000 should be able to match the technology of, say, Japan. The Chinese have a world - state viewpoint in their tradition.

"In the years between 1840 and 1945, one country or another has taken bits out of China. That's why China is so grim. When they recover their frontiers, China may calm down, I think.

"China has been colonizing for 2,500 years. They inter-marry with others, make them Chinese. That is going to continue. Southeast Asia will become Chinese, much of Siberia will become Chinese. If one were a Russian these days, he would have to be alarmed by what the Chinese are going to do."

Dr. Toynbee is convinced that "nations in Southeast Asia are fed up with Western domination."

WANT REUNIFICATION

"The Vietnamese want to be reunited, whether it's with Communist or capitalistic blessing. If any other country but the United States had gone into South Viet Nam, the United States would have been highly critical. How you will get out is another question. If the U. S. attacks North Viet Nam or Cambodia, the Chinese would intervene and might re-open the frontier in Korea.

"The United States did not think any effort to neutralize Viet Nam was a good enough policy. With Red China in the background, it is late in the day for Western countries to dominate many parts of Asia or Africa. The United States is traditionally against such domination."

Dr. Toynbee, author of the monumental 12-volume A Study of History, believes Soviet-American relations "will determine the unification of Germany."

"Neither Russia nor the United States seems willing to take the risks necessary to do this," he said. "They need to learn to trust each other. Red China's mood will be a possible key to reunifying Germany."

The historian confesses that the downfall of Khrushchev surprised him.

"My guess is that the people who have followed him will carry out much the same policies," he said. "There is not much hope, do you think, of any mending of the rift between Russia and Red China, under the conditions Peking has laid down? The Russians do not want war. They are strong for coexistence."

Toynbee, who came here in September as visiting professor in history at the University of Denver, calls President de Gaulle of France "a very annoying man."

As Toynbee sees him, de Gaulle "is a curious mixture, almost a great man and yet almost childish in his trying to blow up France to the proportions of the United States or Russia.

NEEDS DE GAULLE

"France is doing a fine job in economic recovery. Most of the French, I think, are more interested in this than in de Gaulle's military grandeur. As long as he is in power, he will be a nuisance, a serious one. France is not a disciplined country and French power will be relatively less after de Gaulle goes.

"When that happens, Britain may get into the Common Market. Western Europe would then be better balanced. Other countries don't like French efforts to dominate Western Europe. For West Germany to accept French leadership is too much to ask."

President Johnson, says Toynbee, "has immense ability as a politician. He is sensitive to what others think and feel. He knows how to get along with Congress.

"What are the real aims behind Johnson's political manoeuvring? I believe he will succeed in carrying out Kennedy's policies because of this gift of his for the business of politics."

Dr. Toynbee regards the Middle East as an area of growing importance.

"Nasser has been tactless in his dealings with other Arab leaders; but he is the first ruler to do anything for the Egyptian peasant. . . . I myself rather like and admire him. I've noticed quite a prejudice against Nasser in (the U.S.). Americans seem to assume he is a dictator, a bad man. I don't agree with that.

"There are rather few countries capable of being democratic. This is one of the serious things wrong with the world. India has shown the ability to work democracy out. They seem to have honest elections and this is important to the practise of democracy in our meaning of the word. They deserve our support."

RIPLEY'S BELIEVE IT OR NOT

U.S. Planning Association Sees Possible '65 Slowdown

WASHINGTON (AP)—A possible slowdown in the rate of business expansion in the second half of 1965 may cause United States unemployment to begin climbing again, the National Planning Association has predicted.

The year-end forecast also suggest that record output in 1965 will be accompanied by "a somewhat faster price rise than the 1.8 per cent expected for 1964." But the report sees no danger of rampaging inflation.

The NPA, a privately supported research and planning organization with membership from industry, labor and the professions, urges that the government initiate development programs "in areas in which business alone cannot take the necessary risks," such as urban development, transportation and research.

"The greatest danger for the future lies in overconfidence that the recovery which has been going so long and so well will continue for the foreseeable future, and that only measures to combat a possible boom and balance - of - payments difficulties will be needed.

IMPORTANCE STRESSED

"It is important to recognize that a desirable rate of economic growth cannot be taken for granted."

The study was made by Gerhard Colm, chief NPA economist, and Mrs. Carol S. Carson, his assistant.

They estimate that U.S. national output will total about $660,000,000,000 next year, compared with $623,500,000,000 in 1964. This forecast, right in line with most other official and unofficial guesses, assumes a slower advance — but no downturn—in the second half of the year.

It represents a growth rate of 3.8 per cent after adjusting for price increases. This would be substantially below the five per cent real growth achieved in the last year, which was sufficient to reduce unemployment somewhat.

The NPA economists say it would take a 4.5-per-cent gain in real output in 1965 merely to provide jobs for new workers entering the labor force and to compensate for gains in output per man-hour.

"Our forecast thus implies an increase in the unemployment rate above the estimated 1964 level of 5.3 per cent."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The bidding:

Opening lead — two of diamonds.

Let's say you're playing this hand at four spades and West leads a diamond. You win it with the ace and play the jack of spades, taken by East with the ace.

East returns the king of diamonds. When you ruff it with the nine, West overruffs with the ten. He returns a heart to the ace and East now leads the queen of diamonds.

This play gives you a substantial headache. The 8-3 of trumps are still missing and there is a problem of whether it is better to ruff the diamond high or low. In the actual case it does not matter what you do, since West is bound to score another trump trick, come what may, and you go down one.

You might say to yourself that this was certainly an unlucky hand. After all, West had to have four trumps, as well as a singleton diamond, for all this to take place. Such things are part of the game, of course, and should be taken philosophically, but, just the same, they are pleasant when they happen.

And then, suddenly, something hits you. You realize you could have made the hand. Not only could have, but should have. It was plain silly to lose three trump tricks with as powerful a spade combination as this one.

When East took the ace of spades and returned a diamond, the proper thing to do was to discard the jack of hearts instead of rying to win the trick with the nine of spades. The heart was positive loser anyhow, and it was clearly better to lose it at this point than later.

When East then played another diamond, it would be completely safe to ruff it with the nine. Even if West overruffed, it would be only the third trick for the defence and that would be the end of the line for East-West. The jack of hearts discard was bound to destroy defensive communications and assure the contract.
