CHARLOTTETOWN

bearing and the guns were trained on the spot that it was believed the submarine was. However, the crew could see nothing.

After ten minutes of suspense, the crew of the ship received the order from the bridge which sent them to the "abandon ship stations." When they were placed at these stations they were told to stand by and not to lower the lifeboats or rafts. In a few minutes a destroyer pulled up alongside and the crew transferred over to it.

Lost Clothes

They returned to Gibraltar on the destroyer taking turns at watch. When Lieut. Shaw arrived there all the wearing apparell he had included a cap, shirt and pair of trousers. He went up to the camp of the Royal Canadian Engineers and his fellow countrymen supplied him with a pair of khaki shorts and a shirt. From Gibraltar he sailed on another ship back to England and was granted leave to come to Canada as he had been posted in June for a leave to visit his home.

He had words of praise for the coolness and efficiency displayed by Surgeon Lieut. Lane of Toronto when the ship was hit. Lane was close to the stern when the torpedo carried away this part of the cruiser. He had had some casualties to deal with earlier in the engagement and immediately set to work to get these men to safety. Wading to his waist in water at times, Dr. Lane "did a good job getting those out," the Island boy said. Dr. Lane did not have leave to return to Canada.

On the ship that carried him to England from Gibraltar, Lieut. Shaw encountered an old college friend. He said this was John Martin, whose home is near Montague. (As far as could be learned last night, the Martin referred to was Lieut. William Martin of Heatherdale. Lt. Shaw was not well acquainted with him but thought his first name was John.) The two had attended Prince of Wales College in Charlottetown during the 1934-35 term when Martin was a member of the third year class. "He had grown about a foot and I hardly recognized him," Lieut. Shaw said.

Lieut. Shaw joined the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve in March 1940 and went to England in April of the same year. He has been on active service ever since and was posted to the Cairo on August 12, 1940—exactly two years to the day. August 12, 1942, that she was sunk.

Lieut. Shaw is 27 years old and is a son of Mrs. Jessie E. Shaw, 4 Haviland Street, Charlottetown.

CAPE DAYLIGHT SAVING

PRETORIA — (CP) "Spring is here" throughout the British Union of South Africa and the nation goes on summer daylight saving time from Sept. 20

Second Lieut. Herbert Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Murray, who has been visiting his parents here, leaves today for Halifax.

Funeral Services Miss Louise Lyons

(High River Times, Sept. 3.)

On Saturday morning at nine o'clock at St. Francis church, funeral services were held for Miss Louise Lyons whose death occurred on August 27 at the High River hospital. Rev. Father Bowlen said low mass. Many friends who held Miss Lyons in warmest regard, were present at the service, and the floral gifts were very beautiful.

Interment was at the Highwood cemetery, and pallbearers were E. F. Thomson, Reg. MacDonald, Roy Gillespie, F. L. Watt, J. Robertson and M. Bernier.

Miss Lyons who was born in Prince Edward Island, came to High River in 1937 and has resided here since that time, except for a trip east which she took about a year ago. Until her illness, she took an active part in church, and community life, and won the affection of everyone with whom she was associated. She was a patient in High River hospital for some months past.

Her only immediate surviving relative is a sister Mrs. C. L. Livinstone of Plattsburg, New York.

Miss Louise Lyons was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lyons. Mr. Lyons in his life time was a prominent merchant and a former Mayor of this City. Miss Lyons was a graduate of the Sacred Heart Convent, Halifax, a member of the Notre Dame Alumnae, St. Vincent's Orphanage, the Altar Society and an active worker in the Red Cross and other charitable institutions of this city.

Ch'Town Man Flies "E For Eddie" In Raid

(By Charles Bruce, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

WITH THE R. C. A. F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 11—(CP Cable)—Takeoff at night!

The green light plays over the nose of the long black Halifax. The motors lift their throb to a hammering roar and the bomber goes up on its wheels, drives past and vanishes into the down-field darkness.

In a moment, high up and blurred, a dark shape goes drumming overhead, hell-bent for Duisberg. Another is already sweeping down the runway. Another. And another. And still another.

This could be something out of Jules Verne or it could be some tremendous impersonal drama you have come to observe and report in detail, calmly and objectively. But it is not.

It can't be because just a little while ago you were in the crowded operations room bumping elbows with these fellows getting into their felt boots and Mae Wests, a little nervous, not laughing any too much, taking caffeine and chewing gum from the padre, a bit absent-minded in their talk like intelligent fighters before the bell.

Watch Takeoff

You've gone outside into the blackout and watched them go toward the planes, dim shapes moving easily in ungainly harness of war. You know that inside the black sides of those high aircraft are Wallie Ferrier of Montreal, cocoa salesman; Hal Shockley, who once drew blueprints in Vancouver; Wendell Palmer, formerly from Woodstock, N. B.; Dick Turnbull who was learning to be an undertaker in Digby, N. S., in September, 1939, and Charlie Palmer, who once wrestled cream cans in Dundalk, Ont.

Calmness and objectivity are words in a dictionary and not very warm words at that. You know at last that drama for its own sake is phoney and that man has no use for it. He wants to get his work done and the trappings of drama that encompass the work he must do now are merely incidental.

"E for Eddie"

You knew that in the operations room before Boney Higgins of Charlottetown took "E for Eddie" down the runway and Jack Campbell of The Pas Man., swung "W for Willie" into the flare path to follow him. And so you go back to the mess to wait.

At the watch office: A hum of motors; a girl's voice, "Charles, receiving you loud and clear. Are you receiving me please?. . .

"'C for Charles' your turn to land is number three; one, two, three, one two, three."

"G for George" now is in and "P for Peter". "D for Donald" is late but Alne Cameron of Raymore, Sask., brings her home, wings ragged with flak holes.

And so they come back from applying one more sharp dose of caustic cure for a nations insanity of conscience—common men holding the world's future in hands that pull the bomb release; but to you at the moment they're the fellow you had a smoke with five hours ago; fellows back from a tough time."

U. S. War Effort Materially Aided By Great Britain

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 11—(CP)— Britain has much for which to thank the United States, but the American war effort itself has benefitted greatly from British material aid and experience.

In September, 1940, Britain gave the United States, in exchange for 50 over-age destroyers, the right to establish defence outposts and naval bases on Britain's island possessions in the western hemisphere.

A year later production of three Canadian shell-making factories, working exclusively for Britain, was diverted to the United States.

Britain supplied equipment for the largest gun factory in the U.S.A. free of charge, sent America machine-tools, anti-aircraft guns, ammunition and rolls royce engines, and supplied her with her newest inventions such as radiolocators and astrographs.

Britain too, has supplied the United States with much valuable military and technical information on such matters as German tanks, anti-submarine equipment, magnetic mines, special explosives and aviation medicine. The basic design for the American "liberty" ship came from Britain.

This nation gave an impetus to American shipbuilding, notably through the Henry Kaiser Associates. British cash contracts earlier in the war were a deciding factor in creation of new American plant capacity and experience in war industry. Since September, 1939, the British government has placed nearly $3,250,000,000 in cash contracts with American industry.

In addition Britain has spent some $200,000,000 directly in capital assistance to American corporations making munitions and before the attack on Pearl Harbor and Lease-Lend, poured about $1,500,000,000 into the American aircraft industry.

British fighter planes and escort vessels have been helping the Americans in their fight against U-boats and the Royal Navy helps protect the United States as well.
