Repair Work.

One of our great Specialities

Our business has been so great for past few months it has been almost impossible to turn out our orders on time. The question naturally arises. What is the reason of so great a rush? The reason is plain, our plant is fitted throughout with the latest Modern Machinery and employing none but first class workmen. We are in a better position to turn out work in a satisfactory manner than any other establishment on P. E. Island

We have the facilities and know how to execute the work.

Give us a trial and be convinced of the merits of our work.

THE MORNING GUARDIAN

SATURDAY, AUGUST 3, 1901.

A great calm has fallen upon the West Queen's situation of late, presumably because the farmers are making hay.

The death is announced by heart failure of Patrick Doyle the well known editor of the Irish Canadian of Toronto.

Down to the time of the Boer war no provision was made for any pension to widows of private soldiers. Now an army order has been issued granting a pension of nearly $1.25 a week to widows of soldiers killed in action. The allowance is a little larger where there are children. This is not so liberal as the provision made for similar cases in the United States, but it will be a great help to those who receive it.

The Political Reform Union is the name of a new political party recently formed in Manitoba of which Mr. Richardson, ex-M.P. recently unseated, and Mr. Puttee, M.P. independent, are prominent members. Several attempts have been made since the union to establish a third party in Canada, but with no very great success, so far, The Patrons of Industry for a time filled that place, and did some good in their time, but were eventually absorbed in the other and larger parties. The late Dalton McCarthy was for a time an independent but at last became a supporter of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

ABRAM AND LOT.

Gen. 13, 1-18. Memory verses, 7-9

GOLDEN TEXT.

Whatsoever ye would that man should do to you, do ye even so to them.—Matt. 7. 12.

OUTLINE.

1. The Time to Decide (Introductory). v. 1-6.
2. Choosing for Self, v. 7-13.
3. Choosing for God, 14-18.

Time.—About 1918 B. C., according to common chronology.

Rulers, etc.—At this time an Elamite dynasty was ruling over Mesopotamia, Chaldea, and Syria; the shepherd kings were in Egypt; Palestine was divided into petty principalities; the Philistines had recently occupied the seashore plain; five cities in the Jordan valley formed a confederation, and Zidon was the principal maritime city of the Mediterranean.

LESSON HELPS.

1, 2. "Abram"—Father of the faithful, who had become rich in cattle, which was in the first form of wealth in those early days. "In silver, and in gold"—Which describes an advanced form of wealth and marks a higher social state, Lot was his nephew, and they went together out of Egypt into the "South," which is the country south of Palestine and on its borders. Abram and Lot had lived together, but the time of their separation was on hand.

3. "On his journeys"—That is, on his day's march. The tent pins were pulled up, and the tents taken down and moved to a new camping-ground at the end of the day. "Even to Beth-el"—Which word means the House of God. Hebrew names having a meaning, and it is worth while to find out their meaning. At "Beth-el" the tent had been pitched in former days.

4. "Called on the name of the Lord"—At the old altar he offers praise and prayer and sacrifice to him who had saved him from famine and from the wrath of Egypt's ruler.

6. "And the land was not able to bear them"—Because of the recent famine and other dwellers, so that there were too many flocks for the limited pasturage.

7. "There was a strife"—Such strifes were easy to occur, as neither party had a clear title to the land, and each would seek the best places for their flocks.

8, 9. "And Abram said"—What he sida is worthy of note, and the spirit with which he spoke. He showed that he was living in the atmosphere, and according to the sermon on the Mount before that sermon was spoken. He appealed to the fact that he and Lot were kinsmen and should treat each other as such. They were of the same faith and should show their true religion in the presence of those who knew not the true God. "Separate thyself"—Spoken not in anger but in sadness. Better to live apart as friend than to live together as foes. Separation may prevent enmities arising. Then, too, he was willing to let Lot have his choice of the way he should go and the place where he should dwell.

10. "Behold all the plain of Jordan."—The region is now barren, and few dwellers are there, but in those days it was well watered and very fertile and dotted with villages, and there was a chance for Lot to become still more wealthy.

12. Abram dwelt in Canaan and Lot in the plain of the Jordan, and Lot seemed to have the better choice. Time proved it was not so, for he and his family were injured by the wickedness of the people. Morality has sometimes to do with the place of settlement, and wealth is dearly gained at the expense of virtue and of peace.

15, 16. Abram did not have so fruitful a land to dwell in as Lot, but he had the favour of God and with it the twofold promise: (1) Ownership of the land as far as he could see it in all directions, and (2) that he should become the father, that is, the founder of a nation. God's promises need time to come to pass, but they are as sure as his throne.

18. "In the plain of Mamre"—Rather, among the oaks of Mamre. Hebron was the most ancient city of Canaan, and here Abram, Isaac, and Jacob spent much of their lives, and here was their tomb. "Built there an altar"—The third he had built in Canaan, and shows his devout spirit.

JUDGE HODGSON

Commits Daniel B. McPherson

FOR WILFUL PERJURY

Solemn and Weighty Words Against Comtempt and False Oaths.

(From stenographic report of the official stenographer, approved by the Judge.)

In the Election Court at Georgetown Mr. Justice Hodgson thus addressed Daniel B. McPherson:

Yesterday you attempted to commit disorder in this Court by turning it into a bear garden, clapping and applauding when we were trying a case here in which there was nothing to laugh at or be amused at from the commencement to the end. I promptly committed you to jail as I would anybody else who insulted the majesty of Justice, by acting as you did. I am quite willing to believe that there was no intention on your part to commit an act of contempt; still it is necessary to impress on people that they cannot act as they like in a Court of Justice in which solemn oaths are administered to people to tell the truth. I am very sorry to say that in one instance, to which I will come presently, that was not observed.

One peculiarity about the Kings Court is that no man can be excluded from it, but his admission is subject to this condition: He must behave properly while here; and if he takes the responsibility of not so acting, he is promptly punished. The King is always supposed to be present in his own Courts. That is why people take their hats off. It is not on my account, but because the King is presumed to be present administering justice. If I were to allow applause to be given, the next thing would be an attempt to over-awe the Court by a hostile demonstration against it, and that can not be permitted. I sent you to jail, and so far as your contempt is concerned I am willing that you should be discharged from that imprisonment. But I have another very serious matter to talk to you about. The election trials in which I have presided show a most deplorable state of affairs—a downgrade in the mortality of the community. I know nothing more painful than to sit in the Courts of this and in Queen's County, as I have been compelled to do, and hear the shocking evidence which has been given before me. Men who are freeholders have a right to exercise the franchise that is their's—a franchise not given to them by any statute but reaching as far back as Magua Charta—the very foundation of our privileges and our rights. People have a right to exercise that right freed from any control, freed from any pressure, freed from any threats, freed from any inducements. That right is a privilege which is held by them in trust for those who cannot exercise it for themselves, in trust for women, in trust for children, in trust for the poor, to whom the laws of our country do not give the privilege of voting.

As time has gone on, it has been found that men greedy for position, have not hesitated to take advantage of the depraved appetites of those whose votes they have been desirous of obtaining, and we find that there are men who think so little of themselves, of their duty and of their manhood, as to sell their right to vote for a miserable glass of rum—with that I have nothing to do just now. But now matters are progressing in an evil direction—we are getting perjury added to the list; and we find that men who, in the ordinary course of transactions, would shrink from committing a crime, when they come to elections think they are absolved from the laws of God and man and may do as they like, as they please, not considering that they are subject to any punishment. I am sorry to say that this is an idea that has got abroad, but the Courts are going to put a stop to it; and I shall lose no opportunity of expressing in the strongest possible manner my settled purpose of bringing to justice, to the extent of my power, those who have so acted with the hope that it will do them good and be a warning to others.

I never saw you before and I never heard of you before. I am quite willing to believe that you are not a man who would come into Court and take a false oath in order to gain money; nor do I think it is likely you would take a false oath for the purpose of injuring your neighbor. But I will tell you what you have done. From your own lips have come out the fact that having no vote, a fortnight before the election you received from Charlottetown a deed prepared for your father's signature conveying you fifty acres of his land. That deed was not signed on election day. It is not even signed now, and you stated yesterday that your only right to vote rested upon a blank and worthless piece of paper. You knew better and yet on the day of the election you took the Gospel of God into your hands and calling the Almighty to witness, you stated that to be as true that which was and which you knew to be, a deliberate falsehood. That is your offence. I dare not let you go from this Court. You have wilfully and deliberately committed perjury, and therefore my duty is to commit you to the Common Jail of King's County, there to stand your trial and to answer to a prosecution which will be commenced against you at the next February term of this Court. I do not know your position in life, but the long term of imprisonment which in all probability is before you, will, I trust, be a warning to you and a deterrent to others.

The Registrar will enter in the minutes of the Court the following entry;

"Mr, Justice Hodgson directs that "Daniel B. McPherson, a witness for the "Petitioner, be prosecuted for perjury, "and that he be committed to the "King's County Jail, there to "remain to be prosecuted at the next "February Term of the Supreme Court of "Judicature of this Province.'

THREE DAYS A WEEK

Lost to Joseph Hamel for Years through Sickness—Dodd's Kidney Pills Have Made a New Man of Him.

NICOLET, Que, July 29—(Special).—Joseph Hamel explains the reason of his wonderfully improved health as follows:

"I suffered with Kidney Disease for three or four years. For two years I had to take two or three days a week off work. I was continually sick and forced to walk like an old man. I had lost all my energy and became discouraged.

"After taking a lot of medicines that would only give me relief for a while, I had the pleasure to happen on Dodd's Kidney Pills, having read of a case that resembled mine cured by them.

"I bought a box, which made me so much better I persevered. After taking three boxes I was fully cured. That was six months ago. I can recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who suffer with Kidney Disease."

PIRATES IN THE LAKES.

BADDECK, July 31.—Small fishing craft arrived here yesterday with a quantity of cod. The fish was sold in town. To-day the captain and crew abandoned the vessel at her moorings. No one knows who they were or where they have gone Some suppose this to be a vessel stolen several weeks ago from Sydney.

THE PAIN OF SORE FEET.

Just about the most tantalising of all pains comes from sore feet. To get relief bathe the feet in warm water and then rub them with Polson's Nervoline. It penetrates through the pores of the skin takes out the soreness, reduces swellings, invigorates the tired muscles, loses up the circulation, and prevents the feet from becoming sore again. Nervoline is a protection and safe guard against the the pains and aches of the entire family and cures rheumatism, neuralgia, tooth ache, &c. 25 cents.
