Nazis claim Soviet landing Attempt failed

BERLIN, Sept. 4—(AP)—The Germans claimed today they had thwarted a Russian landing attempt on the Black Sea coast and smashed two divisions in the central sector, but both official and unofficial sources were silent on developments about Leningrad.

Berlin reports have claimed that Leningrad was virtually surrounded but an authorized spokesman explained that this "does not necessarily mean a tight ring around the city proper—it may include a large territory."

The Nazi high command confined itself to a statement that operations on the eastern front continued successfully. Other reports claimed the Germans had repulsed persistent Soviet counter-attacks on the lower Dnieper and were eastern shore.

Watson Jamer, St. John, service manager of the Ford Motor Company, with wife and son; also Mr. and Mrs. Roderick G. White. Mr. White is Horticulturist of the Experimental Farm at Fredericton, N. B. The visitors were greatly impressed with the beauty of the Island and signified their intention of returning again for another vacation.

BOILERS FOR AIRPORT ARRIVE — The work of unloading three 8-ton boilers was in progress at the local C. N. R. station yesterday. They were destined for the Charlottetown Airport, where the firm of Reid and Cambridge are installing the central heating plant in the new buildings erected this summer. A smaller 4-ton boiler was landed at the Airport via the spur line. The others were unloaded here because it was easier to handle them on the large loading ramp. The boilers were taken here from Hamilton and Brantford on flat cars.

CRITICALLY ILL—Rev. George Bradley, S.J., of Montreal, and a native of Kelly's Cross is seriously ill in the City Hospital at present. He planned to conduct a mission at Vernon River this week but took suddenly sick on Monday and was taken to the hospital where his condition was still serious last night. Father Bradley came back to his native province earlier this summer to conduct several missions. He had finished one in his native parish at Kelly's Cross and also at Enfield, N. S., where he spent last week.

MRS. A. MacINNIS

an interesting report on organization was given by Mrs. Frank Murray.

Miss Amelia Haley, National War Work Convenor, Saint John, was present and offered some helpful suggestions. Miss Haley was the guest speaker of the convention and she delivered an inspiring address on the opening night. Coun. A. T. MacDonald, representing the Mayor of Souris, presented her with the key to the town on this occasion.

When the afternoon session opened, Mrs. Frank Murray presented a report of the work done in connection with banned magazines and also described what took place at the National Convention at Toronto which she attended while visiting that city. The convention then voted a sum of money as a donation to the Franciscan Order of which Father Lewis of Graymore, N. Y., and formerly of Souris, is a member. Father Lewis delivered an interesting address on the work of the order the previous evening. He thanked the ladies for their donation.

The report of the resolutions committee was then read. This contained the annual resolutions of thanks, etc. and also one regarding immoral shows and intemptrance.

Following the installation of officers an enjoyable social hour was held.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

The following report was submitted by Mrs. Adrian MacInnis, Souris, Diocesan President, at the opening session Wednesday evening:

"I wish to sincerely thank Rev. Father Croken for his kind words of welcome, also Councillor A. T. McDonald and Dr. A. A. Macdonald for their civic and fraternal greetings so nicely expressed. To Miss Haley on behalf of the Diocesan Council, I extend a very cordial welcome; your presence here for our convention will be an inspiration for all, and we trust your stay with us will be a most pleasant one.

"Yearly we have looked forward to this re-union — our annual diocesan convention, not only because of the social pleasures it affords us, but that a greater bond of union and a greater Catholic Women's League may be forth-coming after our interchange of ideas, our intelligent discussions, and our earnest and zealous deliberations, on questions of religion and of economic and national importance.

"Two years ago tonight September 3rd, 1939, Great Britain and France went to war with Germany, and since that time, together with the fall of France, we have been witnessing the most deadly, costly and far flung war that has ever devastated human society. The problem before us — that of restoring peace, a just, honourable and securely guaranteed peace — is one from which no one is exempt. It has been said, and said with truth, that the Democratic nations are striving to preserve all that is best in Christian civilization, what a truly colossal task that represents!

"Perhaps it would not be out of place at this point to outline briefly why the Catholic Women's League was organized, and the part its members have taken in Canada's war effort.

"The League came into being because of the necessity of having a medium through which Catholic women might express themselves as a unit, in all matters of interest to them, as loyal citizens, and devoted children of Holy Mother Church.

"As many of you know, in the city of Edmonton on April 13th, 1919 — the first sub-division was formed in Canada. It was not until five years later, that Montreal followed. A few months later, in June 1920 six organized branches which then represented the strength of the Catholic Women's League, together with other Catholic societies, met in Montreal and discussed plans for the formation of a national body — which was to be "The National Catholic Women's League of Canada." They took as their motto "For God and Canada" little realizing that today their sons and daughters would be shedding their life's blood to uphold that high ideal.

Small Beginning

From the Atlantic to the Pacific, in nine provinces, thirty-two dioceses, and in 2600 cities, towns and districts spread over these dioceses, with a total membership of 50,000. It is also under the banner of the International Union of Catholic Women representing thirty-four countries with fifty five leagues whose combined membership is thirty million.

"All questions pertaining to women and children, such as education, decent reading better films, child welfare, standards of morality and imigration receive the closest study and attention.

"At the National Convention at St. John in June 1940, $25,000.00 were voted towards Canada's war effort. And in January last Archbishop Alexandre Vachon of Ottawa, National Chaplain of the League, made the presentation in the presence of Cabinet Ministers, chaplains and national officers. The Prime Minister, on accepting the cheque expressed his appreciation —saying that the free will gift gathered through the accummulation of small payments made under considerable sacrifice by the thousands of Canadian women, from coast to coast, was a true illustration of the unity of Canadian people. He also said it would be especially acceptable since it was not designated for any special purpose other than the war effort.

"The National Convention held at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto from May 31st to June 5th of this year was an outstanding event. Members of the Hierarchy, delegates and visitors from every province in Canada were in attendance. The guest speaker was Archbishop Vachon—who spoke on the theme of the convention—'The Mystical Body of Christ.' Referring to the donation of $25,000.00 to the Dominion government by members of the League, he said 'The Divine Spirit of Charity which animates your League inspired you to come to the assistance of the heroic sailors, soldiers and airmen who are sacrificing their lives in order that we may live.' He went on to say 'Our hearts are sad for the men, women and children of Great Britain, who have so long endured ineffable hardships, from the barbarous attacks of hordes, sent forth as human vultures, by those who, for the last decade, have been using all the inventions of modern science to prepare the butchery.'

"In the presidential address Mrs. J. A. McCabe of Ottawa stressed the point that never before in the history of christianity and of this Empire, have we been faced with a graver situation and one more menacing to the maintenance of our Christian liberties, than the one now confronting us.

Full Co-operation Sought

"She went on to say that the Catholic Women's League would continue with an abiding faith in God, and in the justice of our cause to give full co-operation to the demands of our country, in defence of our religious and civil liberties, for which so many have suffered and died.

"I wish to acknowledge the excellent work done by the district sub-divisions in this diocese. The report of the executive secretary which will be submitted this evening will convey an outline of the activities performed.

"And in concluding the report may I say that we as Canadian women in our unblized homes must do much more than we have done. If democracy is to live and I do not mean more knitting, sewing and bandage rolling, rather we must be aroused to a sense of citizenship and awake ourselves to new war dangers. What is needed also is greater care in discussing the war situation, and in being sure of our facts before circulating rumors. As a guide to our conduct in such matters, we can strengthen our hearts and stiffen our wills by reminding ourselves of the magnificent courage of the women of Britain in this crisis. How they stand together as one, confident in their cause, loyal to each other, and full of courage and confidence.

"Let us then as members of the Catholic Women's League do our part to combat the dreadful holocaust into which humanity has been plunged. It is not enough to pray for victory we must work for it, so that we may attain victory with peace in justice and charity. Our women must be ready to meet the opportunity of this day. Thus shall we fulfill our motto 'For God and Canada'."

Diocesan Report

In the diocesan report of the C. W. L. submitted by Mrs. A. J. Howatt, Executive Secretary, Charlottetown, it was stated that the Charlottetown Diocesan Council now comprises 26 sub-divisions and twelve units with a total membership of approximately 2000 members.

The report revealed that $5,495.23 was raised during the past year. As usual a great amount of social service work was carried out by the various sub-divisions particularly in Charlottetown and Summerside.

In the matter of war work, the League realized their duty fully and their motto, "For God and Country" spurred them on in their efforts. Besides cash donations, clothing and other supplies were given to assist in the war effort. Besides this they assisted in the entertainment of soldiers, sailors and airmen and helped in the Mothers' corner at the Canadian Legion rooms. Another important phase of the work was the re-mailing of periodicals, daily newspapers and magazines to the boys overseas by Miss Mary MacDonald, War Service Mail Convenor, the report revealed. Red Cross knitting and sewing is done in all the sub-divisions.

Study Clubs have become knitting clubs or sewing clubs for the duration of the war, Mrs. Howatt said.

holes and "shot" to produce a "picture" of the structure on a delicate recording instrument in a nearby truck. Wires with geophones attached connect the recording unit and the hole. So delicate is the apparatus that a cow grazing in a nearby field will distort the lines on the chart. No definite sign of anticline structure has been found at Souris yet but the workers are hopeful.

In England Prime Minister MacKenzie King had the opportunity of seeing the Canadian First Division on parade. Addressing the men through a microphone, he told them the Canadians were in Britain because the British government and British military authorities want them in Britain, and that their presence there as guardians of the citadel of freedom itself was by the wish, not of the Canadian government, nor the Canadian military authorities, but of Britain. The prime minister is shown here in London shortly after his arrival in England in a bomber chatting with Hon. Vincent Massey (CENTRE), Canadian high commissioner, and Sir Archibald Sinclair, secretary of state for air.

A 300-year-old French trade axe displayed by Joseph Clancy is a historical item of interest examined by Margaret Howe (LEFT). It was one of many pioneer Huronia relics unearthed by archaeologists who gradually worked out a plan to restore the ruins of Old Fort Ste. Marie on the banks of the Wye river near Midland. Completely covered by the accumulation of sand during three centuries since the crumbling walls were abandoned, the fort was mapped out on the ground by stakes. With extreme care to avoid disturbing the original parts of the stronghold, Oscar Arbour uses a whisk and trowel in digging operations on the RIGHT.

Last year the Hillsborough Bay area was "shot" and it was definitely established that the proper structure exists there. However, the difficulty of drilling for oil in the bay has resulted in a survey of other parts to find if possible, a suitable site. There were also a few "shots" of sections in Prince County during last year and it is hoped that the survey will be finished this year, Mr. MacKay said.

A "Wildcat"

Continuing, the oil man explained that it is difficult to make any definite predictions regarding the striking of oil here. This is purely a "wildcat territory" — that is far removed from other oil fields and any work done is in the nature of a gamble. However, if the elusive "flowing gold" were discovered the oil men would be greatly rewarded for the amount of expenditure made in search of it.

Mr. MacKay, who is a native of Pictou, first became interested in the possibilities of discovering oil here by studying a geology map of Prince Edward Island. He was in the oil business in Oklahoma and decided that it was worth a try and accordingly in 1939 obtained the rights of the Island from the Provincial Government. At present he still holds these rights subject to an agreement with the Cities Service Oil Company for the development of the oil and natural gas resources of the province. Should oil be "struck" here the situation is somewhat different than that which exists in the United States. In Canada the oil rights belong to the Crown. In the United States if a farmer discovers that under his property there is oil, he is the sole owner of it. Here the Crown holds the rights which they have sold to Mr. MacKay. However, should a farmer on the Island be fortunate enough to find oil on his land, he would not stand to lose by it.

The present oil survey of the Island recalls the excitement which took place when drillers were busy on Governor's Island in the Hillsborough Bay area in 1927. At that time a hole was drilled to the depth of 5,970 feet without success. As the equipment in use then did not permit them going further, the project had to be abandoned. Since then equipment has come into use which is capable of drilling to twice this depth. In fact at present there is one oil hole in the world which is 15,000 feet deep.

Not only is Mr. MacKay an oil man of some repute but he also holds a degree in journalism and at one time was editor of a newspaper in western Canada. He plans to leave the province Sunday to visit his mother who resides in Pictou. Later this month he expects to return here. On his visit to Charlottetown he was the guest of Mr and Mrs. Ivan Reddin.

Mr. King Visits Canadian Troops In England. One of Prime Minister King's main purpose in going to England was to visit Canadian troops, some of which have been stationed there for nearly two years. He is pictured inspecting the guard of honor off Canadian Troops which met him at the airport at which he landed.

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King and Lieut.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, G. O. C. Canadian Corps, attended the Canadian Overseas Sports, which brought together some of Canada's outstanding athletes who are now serving in England.
