ald's suggestions and what he had said about the good results that have come from the Georgetown warehouse, and the engineer was recommending them Mr. MacDonald then expressed the hope that the supplementary estimates would provide for the construction of a frost-proof warehouse, and added, "I would like to emphasize further this matter by stating that only a year ago there were five steamers in the port of Georgetown trying to load potatoes at the same time. Four of the steamers got away successfully, but the fifth was held up by ice and the frost seriously damaged the cargo. With warehouse accommodation at Souris sufficient to load one or two steamers, the entire five would have been able to get away successfully." He mentioned that to impress the Minister with the importance of making this shed at Georgetown frost-proof.

When the Minister came to the appropriation for a freight shed at West River Bridge, the Hon. Mr. MacDonald said:—I should like to say just one further word to the Minister before this resolution is reported. On at least four occasions during the last four or five years I have asked the Minister to consider the advisability of rebuilding the Government wharf at the Port of Cardigan. No attention has been paid to this request. I know that a number of years ago the district engineer reported that the Government wharf at the point was wholly out of commission and recommended one of the private wharves should be taken over and rebuilt. There are four private wharves there, but not enough business to make it worth while for the owners to keep any of them in repair with the result that year by year one or the other, in fact all of them, are going down. Now there is oly one private wharf left at that port over which the farmers produce can be shipped, and that one is very rapidly getting into a state of disrepair. It would not involve a large expenditure for the Government to take over one of those private wharves and rebuild it for the accomodation of the public. It is not desirable to repair the Government wharf because it is not in a position which is convenient for the shipping public. Last year the Minister promised that some attention would be given to this matter, but he has not brought forth any item in the estimates for this year, and once again I would like to ask the Minister to give this matter some consideration. He has the engineer's report. It is of considerable importance, because if the last of the private wharves finally gets into such disrepair that it cannot be used, then there is nothing left, and there is considerable traffic to be carried by water from that port to Nova Scotia points, Newfoundland, and St. Pierre. I am making this appeal to the Minister and would ask him to give it very careful consideration with a view to getting an item in the estimates this year for the purpose of rebuilding one of these wharves."

In reply, the Hon. Mr. Elliot assured him that the fact that there was no item in the estimates for that purpose was no evidence that attention had not been given to the representations made to him last year stating; "generally speaking, the policy of the Department is not too favorable to taking over private wharves, especially at points where there have been several private wharves, all of which have been allowed to fall into disrepair amounting almost to ruin. That, of course, is evidence that they have not been doing the business which would justify the owner in repairing them and continuing them. However, I will say to my Honorable friend that there will be a fresh investigation made to see if there is any change in conditions there since the last investigation was made, and it will be given every attention."

Because of the rush of trade at some of the docks under the Port of London Jurisdiction, there has been a shortage of labor recently, at some berths the men at work being four times the number normally employed.

"Women are all powerful if they choose to use the weapon God has given them—the tongue," declared Miss Margaret Lawrence, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health, during an address recently at Nottingham, England.

Consumers of electricity in England increased in number from 5,868,000 to 7,063,000 in the last year.

In the last two years Germany has imported more American cotton than any other country.

Because of lack of use the workhouse at Banbridge, England, is to be converted into a hospital.

in south China. There is one basic Chinese language and differences resemble our own dialects. Has the cue gone out of fashion. It was a token of submission to the Manchu dynasty. With their defeats the wearing of the cue has been to a large extent abandoned. Two forces have been responsible for the abandonment of foot-binding, Christianity and progress. Wearing of western clothes is not as popular as it was ten years ago in the great modern cities. Despite our boasted western civilization, the war proved to them, that it is only skin-deep. In 1927 an anti-foreign wave swept over the country. Soviet influence said "we will free you from western domination." No European nation pays more than 5 per cent on goods entering China. Compare with this the duty paid by Canadians to the Dominion Government on automobiles.

The presence of the Nuns of the Roman Catholic Church in China has been of industrial, artistic and educational benefit to the people. In 1803 R. Morrison who had spent 18 years in the country said that it would be a miracle if there would be 1,000 Christians in the country in one hundred years. Despite this prophecy there are 300,000 Christians in the country at the present time.

The war in China has been between the progressive party and the reactionary party. The latter party is anti-foreign, but the former is now in power.

The speaker next dealt with the position of Christianity in China. Out of the ten members of the cabinet of the president Chang Kiay Cho, who came to his office in 1927, six are Christians. They are members not because of their religion but because of their ability. Two of these are former Y. M. C. A. secretaries. The present government, progressive in attitude is giving Christianity backing, and eventually it will win through.

ZION CHURCH

The minister of Zion delivered a second sermon yesterday morning on Phil. III, 9, 10, "Paul's Analysis of Conversion." Christ was attractive to Paul in that he discovered in Him a higher righteousness in Christ than according to the law, and in the second place the resurrection of Christ became to him an inexhaustible source of knowledge. That I may know Him, and the power of His resurrection and the fellowship of His sufferings, becoming conformed unto His death."

Special Y. M. C. A., speaker at evening service. Mr. John H. Geldart, who is visiting the city in the interests of the "Y" and who has spent 16 years in the Orient on the "Y" staff delivered a comprehensive and intensely interesting and instructive address in Zion Sunday evening.

At the morning service the choir rendered the anthem "The Lord is King" by Simper, Miss Flora Campbell taking the solo part. In the evening Zion male quartette rendered the Negro spiritual "Goin' to shout all over God's Heaven" and the choir sang the anthem "O Praise God in His Holiness" by Foster.

Y. M. C. A. SERVICE OF SONG

Mr. J. H. Geldart of Toronto, late of China, gave a very interesting illustrated lecture on "The Far East," at the Y. M. C. A. last evening, to well over 300 young folks and adults. Mr. Geldart's slides were from China, Japan and India, showing the various kinds of work that the Young Men's Christian Association is doing in those countries. Mr. Geldart's message was very well received and the chairman, Mr. W. E. Bentley, extended the hearty thanks of those present to this noted speaker.

During the day Mr. Geldart will visit many association friends in Charlottetown and at 6 o'clock he will be the special guest and speaker at the annual Father and Son Banquet held in the Y. M. C. A.

CALLS FOR

"What about this affair at the Court House? There have been some happenings around that Court-House of late, about which a number of people have been led to wonder; this is not the first thing of the kind, and it is time that the people make a demand on either the civic or the provincial authorities to find out what is the matter."

Discreditable Situation

The present situation as reported, Mr. Harding continued, is not only discreditable in a local way but it is held up as an argument against what he believed to be the best temperance law we ever had on the statute books. As one interested in the welfare of the Province he asked that the matter be shown up, that the light be turned on. The plebiscite last summer, he said, had settled the prohibition question, which it was hoped would now be lifted out of politics. It was thought there would be a united effort on the part of all the people to uphold the law. He continued:

"In the Summerside Journal of the 17th Feb. there is an editorial from which I quote the following:—Why the silence today when ten or fifteen cases go by the board without the hearing of any evidence? Are the temperance people of this province satisfied with this kind of enforcement of the Prohibition Act? Is there an election in the air and the soft pedal being applied to bring the friends of the party into line? It is noted by many that there has been a sudden cessation of activities in the way of searches and prosecutions in Prince Co. during the past month or so.

"Now, I presume that we can speak of the Journal as a Conservative paper; being on that side of politics which it has a perfect right to be; in this editorial it is intimated that there may be an election, and the Liberal party are not enforcing the law, so as to secure our votes. Would it be proper for me to ask; was that editorial published in the interests of Temperance, or was it too, an attempt to catch votes from the opponents or friends of Prohibition? But laying that question aside, I ask: Have we really taken this question out of politics? Now politically, I am a Liberal, and I am not ashamed of it, but I am not strongly partizan in either politics or sectarian religion, I have voted for personal reasons for personal friends on the other side. I am a free man, I want to think for myself, and there are two things I want to say, that have been brought to my mind by the editorial. 1st. If the existing government, or any other government will condone evil, and refuse to enforce laws in order to secure support, then that government is d'gging its own grave, and deserves the contempt of all right thinking people. The perpetuation of a party is not the chief reason for which a body of men are selected and sent to our legislative halls."

Mr. Harding appealed at some length to the press and people to exert their influence to support prohibition, as despite evidence of its non-enforcement he believed it was best for the Province. "If there is going to be an election," he urged, "keep prohibition out of it and let it stand on its own merits" Personally, he had some knowledge of present conditions; he had also some knowledge of conditions that obtained some years ago, and he was free to say that with all that can be said about lax enforcement of the law, on general principles conditions are much better than they were. If people would stop knocking Prohibition and would help its enforcement conditions would be still better.

Scene at Railway Station

"The time has come, however," he continued, when we must face this problem as it should be faced, and not seek to go in the way of the least resistance. Not long ago, I was down near the railway station. I saw a crowd, and upon going up, found the policeman arresting a young man who was drunk, he was a bright looking chap, but his clothes were mussed in his struggle with the policeman. A crowd stood around laughing and jeering, even some women seemed to be enjoying it. I could not see anything funny about it, my heart went out to that young man. Some one had blundered. I wondered if some of these people would have laughed, if it had been their boy."

Mr. Harding concluded with an appeal for a strong effort to educate the young people along temperance principles.

THE MARKETS

(Canadian Press)

MONTREAL, Que., Mar. 2—A continuation of the tendency of lower prices in the eggs division was the feature of the local produce markets at the weekend. Prices now range from 44 cents a dozen for fresh specials down to 35 cents for storage seconds. Local butter dealers reported a continuation of the quiet trade at the weekend with a suggestion of firm prices. Quotations ranged from 34 1-2 cents to 34 3-4 cents a pound for finest New Zealand and eastern townships number one. The cheese market was unchanged and quiet trading took place at from 19 to 19 1-4 cents for westerns and 18 1-2 to 19 cents for easterns. Comparative quietness with a slightly firmer undertone characterized the potato market. Although no price changes were recorded New Brunswick green mountains were quoted at $1.50 to $1.55 and Quebec's at $1.45 per bag of ninety pounds in bulk in car lots ex track here.

Church Services

EVANGELIST WHISTON AT CENTRAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The congregation of the Central Christian Church were delighted to welcome to their pulpit a former pastor, Dr. Robert F. Whiston and Mrs. Whiston.

Dr. Whiston was the first pastor of the Central Chistian Church, Kent, St., some twenty-eight years ago, and it was a unique experience after these long years to have him preach at both services yesterday. Since leaving here he filled a short pastorate with the church at Everett, Mass., since which time he has been engaged in evangelistic work. During the Great War he spent fourteen months in France as chaplain and for ten seasons he has lectured for the Chautauqua system. Dr. Whiston has not lost any of his old time vigor in the pulpit his sermons yesterday would indicate. He is an eloquent and forceful speaker and has a rare gift of illustrating the thought of his subject, which holds his audience in rapt attention.

Mrs. Whiston, who assists the Doctor in his work as pianist and personal worker, delighted the morning audience with a message of greeting stating how glad she was to return to Prince Edward Island.

While Dr. and Mrs. Whiston have done most of their work in the United States they are both Canadian born, Dr. Whiston was born in St. John, N. B., and Mrs. Whiston in Pictou, N. S.

Splendid audiences greeted them at both services, and they are looking forward to the beginning of special evangelistic meetings with N[illegible] church next Sunday which will be continued indefinitely.

The music for the day consisted of an anthem by the choir "O Holy Saviour, Friend Unseen," and at the evening service "Dear Refuge of my Weary Soul," also a solo by Mr. Ben G. Acorn entitled "The Ninety and Nine," which he rendered in his usual fine voice.

Next Sunday when the special meetings begin Dr. and Mrs. Whiston will have charge of the music in co-operation with the organist and choir of the church. They will sing original solos and duets, also many of the old favorites. The meetings will be held every evening of the week beginning promptly at 7.45 with the exception of Saturday evening, and a very cordial invitation is extended to all to attend these services.

SALVATION ARMY

A series of 10 days old time revival services opened yesterday in the Citadel, which will be conducted by Adjutant and Mrs. A. W. Martin. Large and enthusiastic attendances marked the beginning of the series. Adjutant Martin introduced as a feature of the special services a series of "D. L. Moody Addresses," the mighty Evangelist of his day. This series will follow all through the special services. Yesterday morning the subject adopted was "Sympathy and Compassion." The golden story of the Good Samaritan was portrayed to show the christian graces named in the text were the greatest of all talents, and were by far more becoming of God's people than cold words and phrases, and party or sect strife and bitterness.

In the afternoon while a prayer meeting was held in the Citadel, the League of Mercy visited Queen's County Jail, where a message on the subject of "God's Love" was delivered by Adjt. Martin.

At the evening service an earnest congregation assembled with great expectation. The Founder's song "O Boundless Salvation," was sung at the opening. Earnest prayers and testimonies by local Salvationists warmed up the meeting to receive Adjutant Martin's address, the tenth of the present series, Fundamental Truth, on the subject of "The Resurrection of the Dead," showing the truth of the Scriptures on the vital subject. An old time prayer meeting was held afterwards and an earnest effort to secure the salvation of the unsaved.

Tonight (Monday) a cottage meeting will be held by kind invitation at home of Mrs. A. Campbell, 266 Sydney St. Each night this week, following a service will be held in the Citadel at 8 o'clock. The Young People's Singing Company will render vocal selections.
