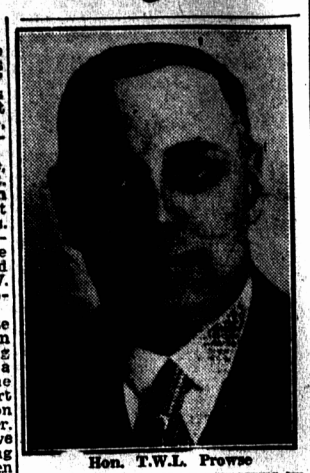
Mr. Prowse Discusses Brighton Bridge Plans In Debate On Budget

Hope that Brighton Bridge would be "one of the first projects to be undertaken in this Province" in the way of reconstruction was expressed in the Legislature last week by Hon. T. W. L. Prowse, Liberal representative for Charlottetown.

Speaking in the Budget debate, Mr. Prowse referred to Mr. R. R. Bell's reference to a statement in the Liberal press that in the last federal election campaign "Messrs. Cyrus Macmillan and Lester Douglas both pledged themselves at the meeting at Alton that they would bu'ld that bridge and Mr. T. W. L. Prowse also boosted the project."

"It was last June," Mr. Prowse said, "that Dr. Cyrus Macmillan and Mr. Douglas were canvassing and I happened to be there at a meeting, when they made the statement that they would support the building of the Brighton Bridge. Unfortunately we lost Dr. Cyrus Macmillan, who would have been of great help to us in getting the Brighton Bridge had he been elected.



Hon. T.W.L. Prowse

Sees Bridge Plans

"I had the opportunity of going over to the Public Works Department and viewing a picture of a bridge for Brighton. It was about half way between Brighton road and the present bridge. This bridge had crib work on both sides and two stands. I looked at it and I was greatly disappointed. I said to the Minister of Public Works, 'It won't do at all. I don't agree with putting the bridge in that place.' This man that was there was a bridge builder, and I asked him, 'Could the bridge be built from Brighton road across the other side and connect with the old town road?' and he said 'Yes.' I said, 'Why haven't you got a plan of that? Could you make a plan of that?' He said, 'certainly.' I said 'How about it?' to the Minister of Public Works, and the Minister didn't commit himself. However, the man went out. He came back a short time ago with what I thought was an ideal plan. It was a three-span bridge and would have come in where the present lighthouse is, going up to York road and joining Brighton road. There was no money spent by the Government on that plan; it was done by the bridge builder himself.

"I am not in a position to divulge what the price was, because if the bridge is built, naturally they will call for tenders. But you will notice in the Interim Report of the Provincial Reconstruction Committee it is listed as one of the projects.

"Toll Bridge If Necessary"

"I will go a little further and say I have intimated to the Government that if the Federal Government will not build it, the local Government should put a toll bridge there if necessary.

"There is no reason why the road from here to Borden should not be called the Trans-Canada Highway. There may be some phases of that that do not agree with the Federal Government's viewpoint. But it appears to me that the people at Ottawa treat us too much like the other provinces. They neglect to consider our geographical position, and our small population, and that we are a Province.

"In bigger centres on trans-Canada highways they invariably try to skirt outside the cities to get clear of any congestion of traffic. But we in Charlottetown are not worrying about congestion of traffic. We are only a small centre, depending on agriculture and fisheries. There is no great traffic on our streets. Therefore we would necessarily expect consideration in building a highway; and so far as the Brighton Bridge is concerned it would be a wonderful project for unemployment relief."

Discussing farm labor conditions, Mr. Prowse quoted the Minister of Labor as stating that returned men should not be blamed for refusing to go back to the conditions of farm life, and that they had a right to live their own lives. He was afraid the problem would be a hard one to solve.

"Quality" Budgeting

In bringing down the budget the Provincial Treasurer had been criticised for being too brief Mr. Prowse wondered if this criticism was justified. The minister had taken a lot of time in preparing and presenting his estimates to the Government members, and subsequently to the Legislature to discuss in committee. "I often wonder whether the length of the address or the quality of the budget should be taken into account," he said. "Which is the best?"

Mr. Strong: "The quality is not very good in this budget."

Mr. Prowse: "I have to bring you to task for saying that liquor conditions are worse in Charlottetown than they were under the old Prohibition Law. I want to correct that statement. Conditions so far as bootleggers and moonshiners are concerned have wonderfully improved."

Dealing with agriculture, Mr. Prowse expressed the opinion that the farmers are doing very well except for the shortage of labor.

Reverting to fiscal matters, he claimed that the leader of the Opposition when in power had a liability of some $367,000.

He would like to have seen tabled what all the Provinces wanted at the Dominion-Provincial conference. He regretted the Government was not able to do this for confidential reasons. This was a stipulation made by the Dominion, but he hoped "that when we get this settlement, we will not have to bring in any more deficits."

Increased Expenditures

Mr. Prowse went on to cite expenditures in 1942 as compared with the estimates for the present year. They showed increases of $58,000 in interest, $81,785 in sinking fund, $364,000 in public welfare, $113,452 in education, $51,000 in agriculture and $336,671 in highways, bridges, etc. These additional expenditures in four years, he said, total over a million dollars.

With regard to the additional auditor, Mr. Prowse explained that "the $4,000 man we brought back had enlisted and gone to Ottawa, and he was so good that he was kept there. When we happened to be ready with all the facts and figures for the Dominion Provincial conference we had to have a man and we were fortunate that this man was available. When a settlement at the Conference is reached there will be a great deal more detailed work to do, if they acceed to the demands that we are making on them."

Dealing with economic problems, he referred to the onerous nature of wartime controls, and said there never was such a shortage of merchandise in Canada as at the present time. He quoted an article by Mr. Burton, president of a large mercantile establishment, in this connection.

In merchandising, as in other professions, he emphasized, the war has accentuated the need of adequate education.

Transportation

He cited the wartime efforts of this Province in enlistments, Red Cross and Victory Loan contributions, and said we were entitled to more consideration than we have been receiving from the Dominion, especially in the way of transportation. "I don't think we will ever see a bridge or a tunnel across the Straits," he said, "but we were promised continuous communication with the mainland which we do not get, and which we suffer tremendously for."

Rural electrification, he warned, would not be a "cure-all" but it would make a substantial improvement in farming conditions. He quoted figures of the percentage of electrical power by provinces, and the increase in this power in recent years.

Rural electrification in this Province, he stressed, is not somethinng to be achieved in a year or two. It requires long-term planning, and an expenditure of probably two or three million dollars.

He voiced the hope that there would shortly be some relief in personal and excess profits taxation, which would be necessary in order to enable private enterprise to play its proper part in our economic system.

In closing Mr. Prowse again referred to Brighton Bridge, saying this would be one of the first projects to be undertaken in the Province, not only to relieve the people of this section but to allow all to drive to Borden with a saving of twenty or twenty-two miles.

He expressed appreciation of the assurance given by Premier Jones with regard to Charlottetown harbor front improvements.

Budgeting for a deficit of over half a million dollars required "a lot of courage," he maintained. There was not a meeting of the Executive Council at which some request for expenditure was not made. "We hate to have to turn down these requests in a great many cases," he said, "but I hope that before this Government goes out of power we will bring in a balanced budget."

Dr. MacMillan "How long do you think you are going to stay in, fifty years?"

Mr. Prowse: "I think we might be here for thirty years."

Stock Markets At A Glance

WINNIPEG, March 24 —(CP)— Early moderate advances of rye prices were effective until the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange Saturday and futures ranged five to 3 3-4 cents a bushel higher..

CHICAGO, March 24 —(AP)— Higher rye prices at Winnipeg and general talk of possible increased ceiling prices for some grains at U.. S.. markets stirred up an active demand for grain futures Saturday.

Both oats and May rye were substantially advanced most of the day, interests with short commitments in oats bid the prices up, and rye brokers fell in step with advances at the Canadian market

While many leaders wavered from the start of the brief session, prices stiffened in a number of cases during the final half hour and gains of fractions to two or more points predominated at the close.. Transfers of 590,000 were relatively small.. They compared with 550,000 last Saturday.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .3 of a point at 76.6 and on the week was ahead 1.6 points.. It was about four full points under the February 15-year peak..

PRETTY YOUNG THING HANDLES WRESTLERS

TOPEKA, Kas., March 24 —(CP) —They don't come too big, too rough or too tough for pretty Mrs. Juanita Yeargain, 29-year-old Topeka wrestling promoter.

In the matter of talking contracts, she is considered, for all her 126 pounds, a match for any of the behemoths of the squared ring she signs for her shows.

Her venture into the fight game began in July, 1942, when her husband Max, a wrestling and boxing promoter, joined the Navy. Mrs Yeargain carried on, and as evidence of her success her friends point to the 300 wrestling shows and 12 boxing cards she has presented, with the backing of the local American Legion post, in a little over three years.

"I always looked forward to the day when Max would come home," she says, "because I thought I could quit then and get some rest just keeping house — but it didn't work out that way. Max met so many fighters and prospective boxers while he was in the Navy that he now has big ideas for enlarging our business and holds a number of boxers under contract."

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, England —(CP) — James Griffiths, minister of national insurance, has asked for an investigation into the costs of funerals. "I am certain there is a good deal of exploitation," he said.
