AUTOMATIC RADIO COMPASSES IN T. C. A.'S NEW LODESTARS

One of the most important radio aids to air navigation developed by science, the automatic radio compass, will form part of the radio installation of the new Lockheed Lodestars which Trans-Canada Air Lines is adding to its fleet this year. The new direction finder is capable of indicating automatically the bearing of a station, in relation to the direction of flight of an aircraft, as soon as the station is tuned in.

An advantage it has over the "loop" in the other planes of the T.C.A. fleet is that the new instrument will operate not only on radio range stations but also on certain other types of broadcast stations operating in different frequency ranges. The loop is being retained. The pilot will therefore be able to take bearings on two stations simultaneously, or "homing" on one station while checking on another to the right or left of the line of flight and thus obtaining a continuous "fix"

Tests of the automatic radio compass show that under severe static conditions correct indications are obtained even though the noise level is so high that the station cannot be identified.

A model is now being installed in one of the T. C. A.'s Fourteens for additional test and experimental work.

Crosby-MacKenzie Wedding

On Monday, the 23rd. of September, one of the season's most beautiful weddings was solemnized in Canoe Cove Presbyterian Church, when Miss Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex MacKenzie of Long Creek, was united in marriage with Mr. Dean Raymond Crosby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Crosby of Kentville, N. S.

An interesting feature of the wedding is that it was the first to be performed in this church, which was built sixty years ago. Rev. T. W. Goodwill, minister of the church tied the nuptial knot, the ring ceremony being observed.

Mrs. Hector Currie, rendered the wedding marches and during the signing of the register, Miss Freda MacMillan sang "O Perfect Love."

The bride wore a gown of embroidered white net over taffeta, with a small flower hat and shoulder veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. Her bridesmaid, Miss Barbara Crosby, sister of the groom, wore a yellow net dress with hat to match and carried a bouquet of mixed flowers. The groom was supported by Mr. Norman MacKenzie, brother of the bride. After the reception a luncheon was held at the home of the bride at which the Misses Crosby and Wilson, Mrs. Lois MacDonald and Mrs. Coughlin assisted in serving. After the reception the bride and groom left for a honeymoon trip through Nova Scotia.

ROTARY

"We are prepared to give you the history of the Red Cross and tell what has been done with the money raised on various occasions, but we need more money now to safeguard the lives of those fighting for you," said Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan, President of the Provincial Red Cross and Past President of the Charlottetown Rotary Club, in addressing his fellow Rotarians at their luncheon yesterday.

The speaker made an eloquent and vigorous appeal for support to the Red Cross on this the opening day of the campaign. He spoke of the many activities which the Red Cross has been carrying on since the war began.

He said that last year three million dollars was asked for, and more than five million dollars subscribed. This year the objective is five million dollars, and he was confident that at least seven millions will be raised.

He made a special appeal on behalf of the $25,000 objective for this province.

George J. Tweedy, K. C., Chairman of the provincial campaign and also a past Rotary President spoke briefly but effectively making reference to the two score or so of patriotic concerts conducted by the Carry On Canada Corps in aid of the Red Cross. On behalf of the Society he thanked the Corps and the press and radio for publicity given. Reference was made by both speakers, also to the excellent work of the Women's Institutes.

Past President Tweedy was in the chair and the guests were Mr. Justice Arsenault, Honorary Rotarian, his son, Lieut. Cyril Arsenault of the R. C. E., Halifax, H. K. S. Henning, B. Graham Rogers, Supervisor of the Prince Edward Island Travel Bureau, Gerald R. Spencer, C. H. B. Longworth, T. W. Morris,

Pleased With Rainbow Trout In Lakes Here

Among the prominent visitors to the city today is Mr. J. A. Rodd, Ottawa, Director of Fish Culture for Canada. He came by motor and is on a tour of the Maritimes in connection with his department. Accompanying him is Mrs. Rodd and his sister Mrs. Kloets of Montreal, who will remain here until Mr. Rodd is through with his work. They are staying at Keppoch. Mr. Rodd while here will visit the hatcheries and will also visit Keefe's and Glenfinnan Lakes with regard to Rainbow trout. He was pleased to learn of the good fishing conditions at both these lakes. These fish are a new crop and affords even better sport than the older fish. He states these two ponds are about the finest in the Maritimes for this class of fish and further efforts will be made to improve them. The Rainbow trout season comes at a time when the sea trout season closes and for sport are far superior. While here he will study our trout rearing systems and possibilities for the future when things become more normal at Ottawa and more money can be spent on this work. Mr. Rodd is a native of Prince Edward Island and naturally takes an interest in us—at the same time his work covers the whole system. Mr. Rodd's many friends are glad to see him.

New Species Of Ducks Are Multiplying Here

A hunting party from Charlottetown to the duck population of this province and along with that a banded black duck, it was learned tonight. The black duck was banded in 1935 and escaped even a wound apparently in the hunting seasons since until he fell a victim to a shot fired by Walter Beairsto, of Charlottetown.

The two new-comers to this province were a pin-tail and a mallard.

From men closely connected with the observation of bird life in this province, it was learned the pin-tail duck, although not formerly seen in this province, had in the last few years passed the "rare" state. Not so many mallard were seen here, however. Both species are native to the central or western flyways and appear to have emigrated east when drouth conditions on the Prairies upset food supplies a few years ago.

Another new-comer to the duck life of this province, and now apparently here to stay is the ring-neck duck. It was first observed in the province last year by special constable Spurgeon Jenkins, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. He is special migratory game officer for the province. This year the numbers showed large increase and members of the United States biological survey who visited the province this summer believed the birds were destined to become a permanent part of the migratory bird life of this area. The ring-neck, too, is a western bird originally.

Patriotic Concert At Clifton

Another successful Carry On Canada Concert was presented to a full hall at Clifton last night. The local Women's Institute cooperated in the presentation.

The artists wtre Dr. Paul Leonard and his assistants, Misses Joan Roop and Betty Forsythe, Mr. Edwin VanBuskirk of Charlottetown, Miss Mildred Acorn, tap dancer, Mr. Robert Compton, reader and Mr. Wallace Scantlebury, who gave an interesting exhibition of Indian club swinging.

The guest speaker was Rev. W J. Phillips of Milton, who outlined some of the activities of Red Cross.

Mrs. Angus MacEachern was the accompanist.

LONDON

sounded, decided to carry on after the mayor announced spotters were on the roof.

The last previous alarm sounded at twilight when German planes roared over the heart of the city, only to be scattered by British fighters. Bombs fell in western London during the second attack of the day, just after noon.

British fighters chased off these attackers as they did two others during the day, one of which was paced by a "monster" bomber bigger than anything yet seen over England.

Mystery Bomber

The big mystery bomber, a four-engined craft with a tremendous wingspread, came in over the Kent coast.

"I was astonished by the huge size of its wing span," said a police officer who followed its course through binoculars.

"Accompanying Messerschmitts were dots by comparison."

British Hurricanes and Spitfires took out after this group and when last seen the pack, still led by the giant bomber, was reported heading out over the Channel.

The government, apparently digging in for an expected winter-long siege of London, announced plans to build immediately 1,000,000 double and triple-deck bunks in existing air raid shelters and to speed up construction of new ones.

At the same time it was announced Londoners would be provided with ear plugs—to protect ear drums from bomb blasts and to enable them to sleep.

Two bombs fell recently on the British museum, it was learned today, but the extent of damage was not disclosed. Its most valuable works have been removed.

Japan may ban the eating of canteloupes, grapes and strawberries, which are listed as "luxuries."

of two miles."

Despite these new weapons, the Air Ministry announced every one of the British planes came home safely.

Near the Ostend harbour railway station the news bulletin said four big explosions marked the succeses of another sortie. One of the fires east of the outer harbour was so fierce that one observer was unable to see the results of his own heavy bombs.

Still other bombs fell on the main wet dock and across the new tidal harbour.

Five miles southwest of the Ostend docks one of the British attackers reported a successful attack on a number of barges drawn up on a beach.

At Le Havre a concentrated attack lasting four hours and 10 minutes resulted in heavy damage on docked ships.

The same story was told by pilots returning from raids on Calais, Boulogne and Flushing, where fires and explosions were seen among many parts of the docks.

were packed with British troops ready for an effort to wrest the colony from France.

The French foreign minister, Paul Baudouin, who announced the battle, said France would not declare war on her former ally, but that she would "reply to force with force."

Situation Called Grave

The situation was much graver than the July 3 battle of Oran, in which much of the French fleet was crushed by Britain, he contended, and "wounded as she may be, France still is capable of defending herself and replying blow for blow."

(The German radio, in a broadcast heard in New York, claimed the shelling of Dakar lasted two hours. Reporting that its information came from Vichy, the radio said French cruisers, destroyers, submarines, and ammunition dumps and stores were covered by "a rain of shells.")

De Gaulle personally commanded the shelling of Dakar, the Vichy government charged, after Governor-General Pierre Boisson of French West Africa refused De Gaulle's demand to surrender the colony.

On Sunday, a Vichy government spokesman acknowledged that all Africa is "boiling", and that De Gaulle "propaganda" is intense in Morocco, Dahomey and Togoland.

It also was acknowledged that the British had turned back the six French warships bound from Dakar with products for France, and that one ship had been damaged in an unexplained manner.

KING GEORGE

must be no false optimism when he said: "We live in grim times, and it may be that the future will be grimer yet."

His voice became tense and bitter as he spoke of the torpedoing of the Canada-bound refugee ship in which 293 persons, including 87 children, were lost, calling it a "foul deed."

In language of Shakespearian solemnity, he said that he was speaking "from Buckingham Palace with its honorable scars, to Londoners first of all, though, of course, my words apply equally to all the British cities, towns and hamlets who are enduring the same dangers."

Thousands of Londoners to whom he spoke were in their raid shelters; but wherever possible radios were tuned in and the words of His Majesty heard.

"The Queen and I have seen many places here (in London) which have been most heavily bombed and many of the people who have suffered and are suffering most. Our hearts are with them tonight. Their courage and cheerfulness, their faith in their country's cause and final victory are an inspiration to the rest of us to preserve."

"The walls of London may be battered but the spirit of the Londoner stands resolute and undismayed," His Majesty said, reminding his listeners it was not the walls that made a city, but the people who lived within them.
