THE LATE MRS. R. CARR

A deep gloom passed over St. John's on Friday, the 16th inst., when it was learned that one of the oldest residents, in the person of Mrs. Ralph Carr (nee Catherine McDonald) had passed into the bright beyond. Of a quiet and loving disposition, and true Christian spirit, she was only to be known to be loved. Although a helpless invalid for over two years she was never known to utter a word of complaint. To see her on her bed with her smile of welcome for all who came to visit her was in itself enough to convince one that she was out of the ordinary and that her Heavenly Father was always near her to comfort and console. Besides a husband, she leaves to mourn two brothers and a host of friends who will always revere her memory. The funeral, which was held on Sunday, the 18th, was largely attended by friends from far and near who, by their presence in numbers at the last rites, attested to the love and esteem in which she was held. After the burial service, held in Covehead Church, the remains were laid to rest in the quiet graveyard to await the summons which shall call her into everlasting bliss. The Guardian extends sincere sympathy to the relatives of the deceased.

WOODROW WILSON FOR GOVERNORSHIP.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 15—Today's New Jersey Democratic state convention nominated Dr. Woodrow Wilson, president of the Princeton University, for the office of governorship of the state. Besides this support Dr. Wilson had with him a number of independent Democrats who believed that because of his standing as a publicist he would make an unusually strong candidate. Dr. Wilson was nominated on the first ballot and received 40 more votes than was necessary to nominate him. Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., who was the Democratic candidate three years ago and who was not a candidate this time, although urged by his home county, was a favorite individual and received nearly 400 votes in the convention.

THE WHISTLER

Throughout the sunny day he whistled on his way. Oh! high and low, and gay and sweet. The melody rang down the street. Till all the weary, worn and gray, smiled at their work, or stopped to say— "Now God be thanked that youth is fair, And light of heart and free from care." What time the wind blew high, he whistled and went by. Then clarion clear on every side The song was scattered far and wide: Like birds above a storm that fly, The silver notes soared to the sky: "Oh! soul whose courage does not fail But with a song can meet the gale." And when the rail fell fast, he whistled as he passed. A little tune the whole world knew, A song of love, of love most true; O through the mist it came at last, To one who sorrow overcast; "Dear Christ," she said, "by night and day They serve who praise—as well as pray." And when the fog hung gray, he whistled on his way. The little children in his train, With rosy lips, caught up the strain. Then I, to hear what he might say, Followed with them, that sombre day; "Is it for joy of life," quoth I, "Good sir, you go a-whistling by?" He smiled and sighed and shook his head: "I cheer my own sad heart," he said— "Vivian Sheard, in the Canadian Magazine."
