HYMNS THAT HELPED. Formerly I had the idea that I could do things my way instead of God's way.

I heard the voice of Jesus say. Come unto me and rest, Lay down, thou weary one, lay down.

I was brought up among the hills and mountains. When I moved to a place near the seacoast I was anxious to see a storm at sea.

PLAYFUL HORSE.—A horse in a playful mood created an amusing little incident in Prince street yesterday afternoon. The animal was harnessed to a dray to which there was another dray attached. The unwieldy vehicle thus formed was long enough to cover the roadway entirely from a yard in Euston street onto the road, the driver, not reckoning on this, and turning the animal's head early enough, found that in order to get the furthest wheels of the vehicle clear of the parapet on the one side of the road, he had to drive the horse right up against the parapet on the other side. To turn the animal in the required direction without backing onto the parapet again was the problem that the horse solved itself by playfully taking the bit between its teeth and going straight ahead on to the parapet with dray and everything, across the sidewalk and down the sidewalk in Prince street. The horse and its cumbersome load, as represented by the two drays behind, moving along the sidewalk at a fairly brisk rate was certainly an unusual sight; and a proceeding the unusualness of which the horse seemed to enjoy. However, it did not go so far as half-way down the sidewalk when it was brought to a stop and then taken on to the roadway, the more orthodox route for its progress.

FURNESS LINE.—The S. S. Swansea Trader, of the Furness Line, arrived in Charlottetown yesterday morning at 7.30 and sailed again at noon on return to Halifax, via Summerside.

TAKE UP DUTIES.—Rev. J. B. McIntyre, the new missionary, rector of St. Bonaventures Church, went to Tracadie yesterday afternoon to take up his new duties. Father McIntyre will likely preach his first sermon in Tracadie tomorrow. Rev. Stephen Macdonald, who succeeds Father McIntyre as missionary, Rector of St. Mark's Church, Lot 7, went to his new pastorate on Wednesday and will also preach his first sermon tomorrow.

PENS AND FOXES ARE ALL READY AT DINNIS RANCH

In the Dennis Ranch six pens are practically completed for the six pairs of Pedigreed silver beauties which watch the building operations from adjoining pens.

All the foxes are in perfect health and the sale of stock goes steadily on at the Head Office, 155 Richmond St., where Mr. Dennis, Mr. Jones and Mr. Cameron are habilitated several hours daily.

Stock has been placed over a wide extent of territory—so that the John R. Dennis Pedigreed Foxes will have foreign connections to the company stock when advisable. It is confidently expected that stock sales will complete in a few more weeks so that the certificates can be issued and the company organized in November when the final payments are called for. 1946-10-7Mts31

FIRST NEWSPAPER IN ENGLISH HAS JUST BEEN DISCOVERED

Today marks an important anniversary in the history of journalism, for it was on the eleventh of October in the year 1621 that the first real newspaper in the English language was published.

This pioneer journal was the progenitor of some 35,000 newspapers and periodicals now regularly published in the English language. Of those about 20,000 are published in the United States, 10,000 in Great Britain, over a thousand each in Canada and Australia, and the remainder in Africa, India and other parts of the world. As the newspapers of the world total only about 60,000, more than half are printed in English.

Until a few months ago it was thought that the first English newspaper was "The Weekly News," published in 1622, a copy of which is preserved in the British Museum. Just recently there has been found in the collection of Charles Felek, of New York, a copy of the "Gorant or Weekly News, from Italy, Germany, Hungaria, Polonia, Bohemia, France, and the Low Countries," which bears the imprint, "London Printed for N. B., October the 11, 1621. Out of the Low Dutch Copy." This indicates that the newspaper depended for its news on the journals which had been established some time before in Holland and Germany. The pioneer English newspaper contained only foreign news, as it was a dangerous proceeding to comment on domestic matters. The editor and publisher concealed his identity behind the initials "N. B.," and is supposed to have been either Nathaniel Butter of Nicholas Bourne, both of whom were a little later openly connected with London journalism.

News of wars and rumors of wars filled the first copy of the "Gorant," and it contained many such items as this: "Before Franckendal 600 Spanish soldiers were slain in one assault, it is thought they will retire from thence." And this: "It is reported that the City of Riga is taken in by the King of Sweithland, because that after having sustained and repulsed 1 assaults, and they without preparing for the Fifth assault, before the City gates, those that were within, the City in many places being set on fire, sought to parley and thus yielded the City with composition."
