WANT MARITIME FREIGHT RATES REDUCED

HALIFAX, Jan. 9.—Endorsation of the project of forming a Maritime Club at Halifax and the appointment of a committee to ascertain what steps have been taken by the Maritime Board of Trade's committee to ascertain the requirements of the Maritimes for their development, these were the net results of a dinner-meeting of some thirty Halifax and Dartmouth citizens held at the Green Lantern last evening to discuss the proposal that such a club be formed here. There was an interesting discussion of Maritime problems, particularly as they relate to Halifax and the concensus of opinion was that this port had not attained that development which it should.

Some of the speakers suggested that formation of a Maritime Party would be timely but this was regarded by the majority as, to say the least, premature. The bogey of secession appeared at the behest of J. T. Wilson, but did not stay long on the festive board.

TEACUP FORTUNES

Plenty of harmless fun is occasioned by telling teacup fortunes. The scantiest knowledge of teacup lore, supplemented by imagination, goes a long way.

The best cup from the fortune-teller's view-point, is the wide, shallow one.

The person whose fortune is being told should take the cup in the left hand, turn it round three times, and empty it into the saucer and let it drain. Any drops of tea left mean tears.

The seer then takes the cup and reads the meaning of the symbols seen in it. The tea-leaves will have grouped themselves into a resemblance of natural objects—flowers, trees, animals, buildings, etc. Or it may be that they have arranged themselves in squares, circles, triangles, or in a long line—the line of fate—crossed at intervals with other leaves.

The signs nearest to the rim of the cup indicate the events nearest at hand, in the bottom of the cup, those furthest away.

A clear space indicates water, a small square or oblong leaf, a letter—hence a leaf of this shape close to a clear space would mean that a letter is coming over water.

Sometimes the leaves group themselves into the form of a letter of the alphabet. Thus there may be an A near to a square leaf which would mean a letter coming from a person whose initial is A.

A bird in flight indicates news coming very quickly—by telegram or telephone.

Numbers usually refer to a date. A 3 near the brim means three days; on the side of the cup, three weeks; at the bottom, three months.

Dots indicate money. A letter with dots round it would mean money coming by post.

Journeys are shown by lines or dots of fine leaves.

India Subject of Interesting Address

Rotarians were treated to an interesting address on India at the weekly luncheon yesterday by Rotarian John C. Moomaw, American Consul, who spent serveral years in that country, having sailed from New York in November, 1919. The first part of Mr. Moomaw's address dealt with his journey to Bombay, his Consular headquarters. He spoke of the places of interest en route, including the Straits of Gibraltar, Algiers, Malta, Port Said, Egypt, the Suez Canal, and Karachi, on the Red Sea, where the first view of India was had. Bombay, five hundred miles further, was reached after a continuous voyage of thirty-five days from New York. After describing the physical features of Bombay and the surrounding country, some delightful personal reminiscences of the daily routine in India were given.

India is a country of sudden deaths, and the European must continually run the risk of different types of fever, dysentry, plague, cholera, not to mention the lesser ills. All the drinking water and milk has to be boiled. It is necessary to sleep under a mosquito bar all the year round, and the continuous operation of a punkah or fan all night is necessary to insure slumber. Mr. Moomaw was not exempt from illness and was obliged to follow the advice of his physician to go to the hills for the month of October.

The concluding portion of his address was featured by graphic description of the shopping districts of India. The speaker also told of side trips to the sacred cities of Nazik and Trimbak, and he gave some interesting facts concerning Agra, Delhi the ancient capital with its wondrous Taj-Mahal. In 1921 Mr. Moomaw was transferred to Colombo, the Island of Ceylon.

In summing up his impressions of India he said it was a land of mysteries and sudden outbreaks. In view of the excellent system of government it would be a sorry day for India if British rule were withdrawn, because under the rule the aim is to have concord, prosperity, and justice, and at the same time train the natives in self government. He said Canadians might well be proud that the flag of their Empire floats over so many places of the earth where it invariably stands for law, order, justice, enlightenment and prosperity.

The thanks of a most appreciative audience was tendered Rotarian Moomaw by Rotarian G. F. Hutcheson who presided. The guests present were Rotarian Fred Perrin of Lindsay, Ont., Captain Allenby of the Royal Navy, and A. W. Hyndman. The musical programme included vocal solos by Miss Rafuse and Mr. Stubbs, both of whom were heartily encored. Rotarian Irwin gave a Rotary talk on "The Unique Basis of Membership." Secretary Rowe read letters from Rotarians Fred Sexton of Halifax and Palmer Kinsman of St. John, in reply to messages of sympathy.

THE FIRST LADY OF THE LAND

She was born of sturdy, hard-working Vermont country folk.

She went to college in her native State.

She became a teacher to support herself. She chose the hardest work in her profession—teaching the deaf.

She fell in love with Calvin Coolidge, a young lawyer of Northamption, Massachusetts.

When she married, she knew history well enough to realize that no public servant can make money and that some of our best national leaders had been forced to retire to private life in order to pay their debts.

She has lived within the small income of a public servant. She has proved that life can be enjoyed and adorned without extravagance.

She has never owned a car and never wasted an hour envying people who do.

She has always had to live on a limited purse—and she has done it well.

She has done her own housework most of her life.

She is a good cook—and is proud of it.

She is one of the best-dressed women in Washington. And her husband helps her buy her hats.

She is the mother of two sons fifteen, and seventeen years old.

She knits their socks.

She is a good dancer, a regular church-member and leads in the community songs.

She can talk politics or history or baby care in two languages.

Men like her. Women love her.

Men say: "She has a head on her and she knows how to use it."

Women say: "She is a wonderful mother. And she has no affections."

She is the sort of women who has old friends.

She has much charm, and beautiful eyes that soften with sympathy at the suffering of man or beast.

She has sat in high places for fifteen years and it has not dizzied her head.

She meets life with the same enthusiasm, the same kindliness and pure unaffected manner that made the young teacher of the deaf beloved at Northampton nearly twenty years ago.

She believes fervently in her God, her country and her family.

Country Greatly Hurt

to deal with the present Government's past, dealing with the causes of the trouble and how they may be overcome. For the greater part of the two years during which Mr. Mackenzie King and his followers have been in office, he said, they have spent their time in an "ingenious struggle to shirk their duties." They have, however, ventured to do certain things. First, they have tackled treaty-making.

"They have been on treaty-making expeditions," said Mr. Meighen. "The Premier started out with the intention, apparently, of being father to treaties all over the world. First of all, there was the Great Lakes Treaty 22 months ago. I am sure you have all forgotten it long ago; but, nevertheless, it is interesting to see to what wonderful matters he applied himself. We always thought that the Rush-Bagot Treaty of 1818, was good enough for us all. There was no trouble between Canada and the United States, still Mr. King thought that the King-Harding treaty would sound better."

"Apparently this treaty died before its birth. It was abandoned and there was a great effort wasted.

"Then came the great triumph of what is called the Halibut Treaty. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries came to the inspired conclusion that the halibut be given more peace. He went to Washington and came back with plenty of feathers in his cap. The treaty was unadorned and unaccompanied. Mr. Lapointe elbowed the British ambassador out of the door and now Mr. MacKenzie King comes back to Canada after having attended the Imperial Conference and proclaims the great triumph, the winning of the halibut treaty."

"Before I go any further," said Mr. Meighen, amid laughter, "I want to tell you that there is no such thing as a halibut treaty. As there was only one signature, the United States Senate declined to ratify it, and this had the effect of cancelling it. There may be a change, and there may not be a change; but until the Senate of the United States chooses to affirm the treaty the halibut may be chased for twelve months every year."

Rt. Hon. Mr. Meighen explained the understanding between the Dominions that every treaty must be agreed upon even before being submitted to the British Government.

"As long as we are part of the British Empire," declared Mr. Meighen, "we cannot act independently. If we want to act independently it would be the honest thing to step away openly. This sort of thing is only wild gibberish."

The treaty with France Mr. Meighen admitted was successful insofar as it was actually made with Messrs. Fielding and Lapointe as the Canadian signatories. He thought, however, that it would have been the better for Canada had the ambassadors stayed at home. When Sir Wilfred Laurier submitted the treaty of 1909, Mr. Meighen, against the interests of his own party, voted for it, adjudging that it was for the advantage of the country. In this case, however, the concessions to France have been very considerable. The duties for champagne, wines, lace silks and other articles of super luxury have been reduced to a tune of $500,000, which, Mr. Meighen declared, the taxpayers of Canada will have to pay 50 times over in added sales tax.

The articles at present exported to France on the other hand, have been taxed with an increase of from 20 to 50 per cent higher tariff; the only articles which may be shipped at a lower cost are intricate fancy drugs, with unintelligible Latin names.

"As a consequence," observed the speaker, "the Canadian trade with France has been dealt an almost mortal blow. I do not," he added "attribute this to Mr. Fielding's intelligence. I never taxed him with being dull or with lack of patriotism; but he went over there bound and shackled with pre-election promises and he had no alternative but to bow to the French terms."

LOOKING TO PROGRESSIVES

It was expected that Mr. Meighen would refer to the resignation of Sir Lomer Gouin, and he did, although ever so briefly. He led up by condemning the dilly-daily policies and the overtures made by a section of the Liberals to the Progressives.

"The Premier," declared Mr. Meighen, "is casting his eyes westward, now that his right arm is torn off by the resignation of Sir Lomer Gouin. The final pretence at tariff protection it would seem, has at last been done with, and the only hope of the Liberals today is for coalition with Progressives. But, remember, all this at the expense of the province of Quebec, or yourselves."

The former Prime Minister spoke with derision of the numerous commissions and Royal Commissions which are travelling about the country. He dealt in particular with the pulpwood commission, declaring that all their action is completely futile, as a secret order-in-council has fixed that all contracts for pulpwood are to be protected for the next ten years, and the Government's, therefore, quite unable to act.

He also explained the dilemma in which the Government finds itself with regard to the Great Lakes freight rates, and the useless overtures made to owners of United States vessels, after having passed legislation to have trading stopped with them. The "circuitous peregrinations," as he termed them, would challenge the admiration of any people.

The emigration from Quebec, the treatment accorded the Maritime provinces, the suffering in the West, Mr. Meighen attributed to the failure of the Government in carrying through national policies. By mere tinkering with the tariff, the Government, he said, is entirely to blame for this. The main cause, however, is that capital is utterly unaware and uncertain of what is going or or what will happen in this country.

"The Premier," said Mr. Meighen, "looks over at Mr. Crerar or to Mr. Forke, and says: 'Just give us a little time.' Is it any wonder that we have commercial stagnation?"

TARIFF BY BARGAIN

"The tariff of next spring," declared Mr. Meighen, "is not going to be built on any principal, but on a bargain, made between Mr. King and Mr. Crerar to get the votes of the Progressives. Mr. King does not dare to utter the word "Protection," for them he loses the Progressives' vote."

"The name of the Government," he declared, "is a stench throughout the West today, and the concessions they are fishing for are at the price of the rest of Canada, of Canadian industries and Canadian trade."

The other ministers present also spoke shortly.

An enthusiastic reception was in store for Rt. Hon. Mr. Meighen when he and his party alighted at Berthierville this morning. The first visit was to the ecclesiastical authorities, Rev. Canon Gleroux welcoming the party at the Presbytery and making them all feel at home.

Following luncheon at the Victoria Hotel, the meeting was held in the town Hall, Messrs A. Ducharme and J. A. Barrette acting as joint chairmen. Speeches were made by Messrs. Barrette, Gaston Allard, John A. Sullivan, K. C., Hon. Rodolphe Monty, Hon. C. C. Ballantyne and the leader of the Opposition.

MUST PROTECT THE FORESTS OF CANADA

OTTAWA, Jan. 8.—Addressing provincial delegates to a forestry conservation conference which opened here yesterday, Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, said that he was prepared to recommend federal assistance for the provinces in their efforts to reduce forest fire ravages if such a step was considered necessary by provincial authorities.

"Conservation," said the Minister at the beginning of his address, "explains the objective of this conference. It is not the intention of the federal authorities to interfere in any way with the rights and privileges of the provinces."

Fire Prevention Work

Mr. Stewart suggested that there was plenty of opportunity for co-operation between the provincial and federal departments and explained that this was what the Government had in mind.

Referring to the Dominion Government's attitude toward assistance for the Provinces in forest fire prevention work, the Minister said:

"So far as my department is concerned I am prepared to recommend that a reasonable amount of assistance might be given to the Provinces if that should be necessary. If unnecessary or not advisable then no harm has been done."

The following Maritime representatives are attending the conference which will continue its sessions tomorrow: Hon. G. W. Robinson, Minister of Mines and Lands, New Brunswick; G. H. Prince and L. S. Webb, New Brunswick Forest Service.

WANT FEDERAL GOVT. GRANT RENEWED

MONTREAL, Jan. 9.—On the ground that the strictest economy is often obtained by judicious expenditure of money, the Canadian Good Roads Association will press for a renewal of the $20,000,000 Federal Government grant to be Provinces for road construction, it was decided at a meeting of the executive of the Association held here yesterday. The Federal grant expires next March, the distribution of the $20,000,000 voted five years ago then being completed, and the Association is asking the Government to repeat the grant.

It was further decided by the executive that the eleventh annual convention of the Association shall take place on June 24-27 at St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, N. B.

T. P. Regan, K. C., of St. John, the New Brunswick representative on the executive of the Association, commented on the coming convention in the following terms:

"Every effort will be put forward by the Premier of the Province and the executive of the Canadian Good Roads Association to make next summer's convention in New Brunswick the banner annual gathering in the Association's history. Subjects to be considered will be practical and timely, and from early reports it is evident that the Provinces are taking a more general interest in this convention than previously. It is also forecast that our neighbors to the south, particularly the States of Maine and New Hampshire, are very much interested and the prospects are that they will send representatives to attend the convention."

LOVE LETTER INVISIBLE INK

The Late Reverend Dr. Wadman Predicts Over Atlantic

(By Dominion News Service)

LONDON, Jan. 11.—How he discovered a secret message in invisible ink, written on an apparently innocent letter to his wife, was the story told on behalf of a young husband in the Divorce Court, when Harold Bottom manager of a wollen mill, in Huddersfield, petitioned for a divorce from his wife Phyllis, whom counsel described as a beautiful woman about 20

According to the husband's story, the correspondent Leslie Kenworthy, of Huddersfield, had been a friend of the petitioner, and he had seduced the respondent from loyalty to him.

The respondent had been a typist and she was married to the petitioner in October, 1919.

The co-respondent, who in 1920 divorced his wife, made the acquaintance of Mrs. Bottom in February, 1922, and the whole of the parties being on friendly terms, the husband allowed the respondent to go out with the co-respondent and his relatives for motor rides, etc.

On April 1, 1922, the co-respondent wrote to the respondent what appeared to be an ordinary gossipy letter, in reference to a motor-trip with himself and his sister.

The husband saw it and thought little of it, but a few days later, he picked the letter up and the heat from his hands, brought out certain writing in invisible ink.

He then held the letter in front of the fire, and discovered that there was a secret letter to the respondent on the back. It read: Darling, I was so awfully pleased to have your letter. I shall have to wangle it somehow with the old man, but I'll manage it. I do long to see you again. I think the telephone a most unsatisfactory method of communication, don't you, darling? You told me to be careful at first, darling. I was going to write to you yesterday, but was afraid Harold (the petitioner) would be home when the letter arrived.

I shall always love you, and tire of writing to you. Darling this will be the last letter before I see you. How I look forward to Tuesday. With all my love and heaps of kisses. Yours devotedly, Leslie.

The Court made a decree and $2,500 damages were granted.

COLUMBUS

Behind him lay the gray Azores,
Behind the Gates of Hercules;
Before him not the ghost of shores;
Before him only shoreless seas.
The good mate said: "Now must we pray,
For oh! the very stars are gone
Brave adm'r'l speak; what shall I say?"
"Why say: "Sail on! sail on! and on!"

"My men grow mutinous day by day;
My men grow ghastly, wan and weak,"
The stout mate though of home; a spray
Of salt wave washed his swarthy cheek.
"What shall I say, brave Adm'r'l, say,
If we sight naught but seas at dawn?"
"Why, you shall say at break of day:
'Sail on! sail on! and on!'"

They sailed and sailed, as winds might blow,
Until at last he blanched mate said:
"Why, now not even God would know
Should I and all my men fall dead.
These very winds forget their way,
For God from these dread seas is gone.
Now speak, brave Adm'r'l, speak and say—"
He said: 'Sail on! sail on! and on!'"

They sailed. They sailed. Then spake the mate:
"This mad sea shows his teeth tonight.
He curls his lip, he lies in wait,
He lifts his teeth, as if to bite!
Brave Adm'r'l, say but one good word:
What shall we do when hope is gone?"
The words leapt like a leaping sword:
"Sail on! sail on! sail on! and on!"

Then pale and worn, he paced his deck,
And peered through darkness. Ah that night
Of all dark nights! And then a speck—
A light! A light! At last a light!
It grew, a starling flag unfurled!
It grew to be Time's burst of dawn.
He gained a world; he gave that world
Its grandest lesson: "On! sail on!"

—Joaquin Miller.

Short Course in Agriculture Now Well Under Way

The Department of Agriculture has begun its series of short course meetings throughout the Province. Already meetings have been held at three different centres. On Saturday evening Mr. W. Boulter on the invitation of the Marshfield Farmers Institute, gave an address on co-operative marketing and potato work in general. The president Mr. W. J. Gibson presided. There was a good attendance of members as well as several from outside the Marshfield district. After the address was given a general discussion took place. Many questions were asked and were replied to as fully as possible. At the conclusion a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker.

Owing to some misunderstanding the meeting at York was not well advertised and there was only a small attendance. However, a larger number will no doubt be present at the balance of the meetings, which will conclude Friday evening.

The meeting at Pownal Wednesday was well attended, Mr. Gay presiding Mr. A. R. Jones of the Dominion Live Stock Branch gave a very interesting talk on the care and management of poultry, particularly emphasizing the need of winter production of eggs in order to make the poultry business as profitable an industry as it should be. Mr. Jones was followed with keen interest and his remarks were much appreciated.

The other speaker of the evening was Mr. Boulter who outlined the work that would be followed by the short courses and then spoke on the benefits to the farmers through co-operative selling of their products and the purchasing of some of the material required in the production of their crops. In speaking of the potato work he endeavored to show that it was not an easy matter to grow seed potatoes and have them pass as No. 1. He also showed that the market for every product is limited and particularly limited are the transportation facilities for a product as bulky as potatoes. Throughout his address he argued the need of folowing mixed farming in this Province and advised them to carefully look at a new proposition from all its angles before swinging over to it. It was quite all right to grow a few acres of potatoes; if they were of the variety that could be handled for seed purposes so much the better, provided there was a market for them: if not, they were no worse off than if these had been grown for table stock. A number interested sought information along the lines of the application of fertilizer, treatment of seed and other phases of potato work.

The meetings on Thursday afternoon and evening were addressed by Hon. John H. Myers, Commissioner of Agriculture, Prof. Reid, and Messrs. W. J. Gibson and C. B. Clay. The meetings on Friday will be addressed by Mr. J. A. Clark, superintendent of the Experimental Station, Mr F. T. Morrow and others.

The meeting at York was addressed by Messrs Clark and Morrow. On Friday evening the speakers will be Messrs. A. R. Jones and W. Boulter.

A short course will open at Bridgetown Monday evening. There will be several speakers present and the potato work will be discussed.
