NEW ORDER

published memorandum from Norman H. Davis, United States former "Ambassador-at-Large," to State Secretary Hull.

Dated last Dec. 16, it listed results of the conference which met at Brussels one year ago in an unsuccessful effort to end hostilities in the Orient. One of those results, Davis said, was:

"Express serving of notice that the settlement ultimately arrived at must be consistent with the principles of the Nine-Power Treaty and satisfactory to the conference powers."

ATTACK ON

"I got in touch with the superintendent of the building and asked him to bring the women in. They made statements to that effect. I called in Mr. Boylen and I had not seen him for several weeks prior to that time.

"I found some attempt had been made not merely to implicate our firm with the destruction of books but also to say that on these documents or records of watever they were appeared the names of my brothers, J. O. Plaxton and Hugh, the member.

"I also learned our good friend Col. Drew had called in Captain Roy Brown of the firm of Cameron, Pointon and Merritt and sought information from him.

"The only thing I can say is that the original documents of this company are extant and have always been extant and I regard this as the most ungentlemanly and unfair attack ever perpetrated in the history of this country."

"I only asked you if you saw Mr. Boylen," said Col Drew.

"I don't even know who Mr. Boylen is," said Mr. Justice H. H. Davis, head of the inquiry.

Mr. Plaxton explained that after a former partner had left the firm of Plaxton and Company they had rented one end of their office to two Boylen brothers and the man referred to was one of them.

Mr. Boylen had told him he had been interviewed by Mr. Balfour who tried to obtain a statement involving members of the Plaxton firm and Hugh Plaxton. Col. Drew wanted to know how three baskets of torn papers happened to be in Mr. Boylen's office.

Witness Explains

The witness explained a stenographer who acted as secretary to his brother, J. O., had been in the habit of saving her old copy books and had accumulated a pile dating back seven or eight years. Other girls in the office did not keep them further back than a couple of books. These old note books were stored in the vault and eventually the place became crowded. It was decided to throw them out and these were the papers in the baskets.

"Do you recall the date on which this happened?" asked the judge.

"I do not. I didn't know anything about it until Sept. 10 when rumors started to spread around town."

"Why was it necessary to have Plaxton present when you called the charwomen?" asked Col. Drew.

"He was most definitely interested because his name was involved."

When Col. Drew said he wished to make a statement L. A. Forsythe, associate government counsel, said if he did so it should be in the witness box. Col. Drew said he had a right to clear the matter up. "Information came to us,—"he began.

J. C. McRuer, counsel for the Inglis Company, rose and said: "This witness made his statements under oath. If Col. Drew had any facts the witness box is the place for him where he will be under oath and subject to cross-examination and if he is a gentleman he will submit to it."

"I want that remark withdrawn," said Col. Drew.

"I should have said I was sure he would submit to it," said Mr. McRuer.

"I will take no statement of fact except from the witness box," declared justice Davis.

Col. Drew then said the only interviews he had made were in the ordinary course of preparing for the inquiry by discussing it with prospective witnesses. Some 50 or 60 people altogether had been interviewed.

Hon. J. L. Ralston, chief government counsel, said he did not think he was interested.

Objection Raised

Earlier when Col. Drew asked Mr. Plaxton to produce correspondence between himself and the Ontario Securities Commission relating to the sale of stock in the Inglis Company the witness objected on the ground the Commissioner had no right to review the actions of the Ontario Commission.

"I said this morning I would never pass upon the wisdom or lack of wisdom of anything the Ontario Securities Commissioner did," said the Judge, "but if Col. Drew asks for some correspondence you had with the Commissioner I would think that would be proper."

Col. Drew said he was not interested in what the Securities Commissioner did but in what representations were made on behalf of the Inglis stock.

"I am only interested in the fact an application was made and it was the intention to sell stocks," said the Commissioner.

"Yes but there may be different ways of selling stock," said Col. Drew.

"I don't think I am interested in the different ways, only in the fact there was to be a sale," said the judge.

"I say if this stock was sold or was intended to be sold in a way contrary to the intentions as disclosed by these witnesses I should be able to show that," said Col. Drew.

The commissioner suggested the question be left until D. J. Cameron of the brokerage firm of Cameron, Pointon and Merritt which sold the stock, was on the stand. He said the documents might be privileged in Mr. Plaxton's hands as he acted as solicitor for the brokers but there could be no privilege in Mr. Cameron's hands. Col. Drew agreed.

Col. Ralston said he felt the correspondence was not privileged and intended to ask for it when Mr. Cameron took the stand. He did not want it suggested Col. Drew was the only one interested and he wanted Mr. Cameron to know what to expect.

Mr. Plaxton said he had no records covering an item of $500 for travelling expenses he had charged to the Inglis Company The item covered two trips to Montreal and one to New York. The trip to New York was in connection with the acquisition of rights to manufacture steel poles.

were a classy bunch. Stewart & Lewis were first with Beechglen Lady 146 R and second with Beechglen Lady 43R, two foxes that were prize winners as pups last year. Roy Woodside was third in this class and Reg Muttart fourth.

Extra Pale Silver Male Pups. There were about 20 in this class, a very fine line too. It was interesting to note the change which has come over the types of extra pale silvers —pale silvers too —since the first show in 1929. Then the white or chalky type was frowned on. Now, due to the popularity of that type in the United States, yes, and Canada and Great Britain too, they are the most desired. Roy Woodside topped the table with two beauts, getting the red and blue ribbons. Hillard Muttart was third, Sam Johnston fourth and Reg Muttart fifth and sixth.

Extra Pale Silver Female Pups was another good class and many friends of A. L. Rogers, Kensington, were glad to see him sitting out in front with Hillview Miss 45 S. Layton is one of the most popular winners in the show. Stewart & Lewis were second, Roy Woodside third, Stewart & Lewis fourth and Lowell Hancock fifth.

The above concluded the classes, and while it is not officially announced yet, we understand that Stewart & Lewis, Summerside, are out in front for the Canada Packers Trophy to be awarded to the exhibitor making the highest number of points in classes one to six. They won this trophy last year. In second place and not far behind is Roy Woodside of Malpeque.

Below will be foud the results of the judging of groups and herds as far as they have been completed yesterday. Stewart & Lewis won both senior herds and yearling herds.

This morning the championships will be competed for, including the Champion Adult Male, Champion Adult Female, Champion Yearling Male, Champion Yearling Female, Champion Male Pup, Champion Female Pup, Champion Male in show, Champion Female in show and Grand Champion fox in show. Judge George A. Callbeck hopes to have all the judging completed at eleven o'clock. Immediately following will be the presentation of the magnificent collection of trophies to the successful exhibitors. His Honor, Colonel George D. DeBlois, Lieutenant Governor of the Province, has kindly consented to officiate.

Perhaps the most interesting part of the whole show will be the bringing together of the best foxes in the various classes for championship honors and the race for Grand Championship, the great goal and ambition of the foremost breeders in this country.

Many favorable remarks were made yesterday concerning the work of George Callbeck in his capacity as judge, and it is a pleasure to record here this tribute to one who has had a most difficult task to perform. We know of no one who is more capable or one who would be more conscientious in the performance of his duties. As a prominent foxman said, "George has done the best job at this show that he has ever done," and that opinion was echoed by many others in a position to know.

Mysterious Deaths Among Eskimoes Found Due To Mumps

(By R. K. Carnegie, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA, Nov. 3—A mysterious disease which brought swift death to Eskimos of South Baffin Island, particularly in the district around Lake Harbor on Hudson Strait, has been diagnosed by Government physicians as mumps.

Radio and mailed instructions for treatment of the disease are being sent by the Department of Resources to Hudson's Bay Company and Royal Canadian Mounted Police posts in an effort to halt crude native treatment which, with low Eskimo resistance, caused 70 deaths in a population of 1,000 in five years.

For years the Northwest Territories branch of the department has been worried about mysterious deaths around Lake Harbor. Natives were afflicted with glandular trouble and before any Mountie, much less a doctor, could reach them they were dead.

Because descriptions by natives were meagre and often contradictory, doctors down in civilization came to a variety of conclusions about the disease. One suggestion was that it was ptomaine poisoning from eating decomposed meat.

However, the fact that most of the victims were under 20 years and other information gathered recently prompted Government physicians to the conclusion that the greater part of the deaths were caused by mumps.

FOUNTAIN PENS

Remember to clean your fountain pen at regular intervals. If it is taken to pieces, leave to soak in vinegar and water, or else fill and empty several times in vinegar and water, and wipe the nib carefully before re-filling with ink.

CLEANING MIRRORS

Mirrors should be cleaned with special care, as if moisture gets on the backing there will be heavy bills to meet for re-silvering.

Most stains, including fly marks, will come off if rubbed with a duster just moistened with ammonia. A dry duster will then give a brilliant polish.

Buyers Race Tariff To Sudeten Goods

BERLIN, Nov. 3 —(A P)—American buyers are rushing to get goods out of Sudetenland before that former Czechoslovak territory is placed under the higher tariffs the United States levies on German-made goods.

They want to get under the wire before the favorable trade terms enjoyed by Europe's oldest industrial region as a part of Czechoslovakia came to an end. Nazi economic experts say they expect the United States to be lenient about this. They do not expect a change until after the Christmas demands of department stores are filled.

(In Washington officials said higher tariffs would not apply to Sudetenland until the final boundaries between the expanded Germany and Czechoslovakia are drawn, possibly in two or three months.)

Some Sudeten industries worked almost entirely for the American market.

Bowles - Ramsay Nuptials

A marraige of interest to many in P. E. Island and United States took place in the Presbyterian Church, Tyne Valley, on Thursday evening, October 27th., when Lillian S. Ramsay, R. N., Littleton, N. H., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ramsay, Tyne Valley, became the bride of Mr. Richard Alden Bowles, Franconia, N. H.

The church which was beautifully decorated with evergreen and potted plants, was filled with relatives and friends of the bride. At the appointed hour the bridal party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march played by the organist, Mrs. Eldon Millar. The bride who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a gown of pale blue chiffon crepe with accessories to match and carried a shower bouquet of talisman roses. Democratic Party United In South

ATLANTA, Nov. 3—(AP)—The Furor stirred among southern democrats by President Roosevelt's fruitless bid in the primaries to unseat three Senators he deemed new deal obstructionists was stilled today in an outwardly United Party Front for Tuesday's general election.

Each of the Senators blacklisted—Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, E. D. Smith of South Carolina and Walter F. George of Georgia—has opposition but none now openly from within the Democratic Party.

Similarly, in Kentucky where the President successfully urged renomination of Senator Alben W. Barkley over Governor A. B. Chandler, the latter at times opposed to new deal policies, intra-Democratic disagreements have been composed until after Nov. 8.
