McLure-Carruthers Wedding

A charming wedding was celebrated on Sept. 14, at the home of William McQuarrie at Hampton, P.E.I., when Miss Jennie Eileen Carruthers, formerly of the Post Office staff at Summerside, became the bride of Clayton Leigh McLure. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. A. McQuarrie and it is worthy of note that Mr. McQuarrie was the clergyman who performed the baptism ceremony for Miss Carruthers in her infancy. After the ceremony the young couple left by motor for points throughout Nova Scotia and New Brunswick where they spent their honeymoon.

Upon their arrival home they were delightfully surprised by their many friends of Lower Bedeque and vicinity. Before the gifts were presented the young couple were addressed by Hon. Horace Wright who welcomed them as residents of the vicinity.

Assisting in the presentation of the gifts were Mrs. Charles McFarlane, Mrs. Archie Montgomery, Mrs. Horace Wright (Jr.) and Mrs. Arthur McFarlane.

A pleasant social evening was spent after which the guests departed to their various homes wishing Mr. and Mrs. McLure many years of happy married life. —S.

Pretty Wedding At St. Mary's Convent Chapel

A very pretty fall wedding of much interest to friends in the Maritimes took place in St. Mary's Convent Chapel at 9 a.m. on Wednesday morning, Sept. 27, 1944, when Rt. Rev. Msgr. G. J. MacLellan united in the bonds of holy matrimony Mary Margaret, second eldest daughter of Mr. John J. McInnis, Summerside, and the late Mrs. McInnis and LAC. Daniel Francis, only son of Mrs Laura MacLaughlin of Montreal.

The chapel was very beautifully decorated with lighted candles and flowers of the season by the Sisters of the convent. A cluster of baby's breath held in place by white ribbons marked the seats of the invited guests. The ushers were LAC. Cecil Powell and Cpl. Russel I. Phaneuf.

To the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. Lawrence Gallant, the bride entered the chapel on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. Her silver slippers protruded below a floor length dress of ice white cut crepe over white satin. The bodice featured a high neckline and long sleeves tapering to points over the hands. Six pearl buttons extended down the yoke at the back. Her only ornaments were pearl earrings and a single strand of pearls, the gift of the groom. Her waist-length veil consisted of a sweetheart headdress of peaked lace, held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of roses and maiden hair fern.

She was attended by her sister, Nan, who looked very pretty in a floor length dress of robin egg blue cut crepe over white taffeta with sweetheart neckline and bracelet-length sleeves, matching shoulder length veil and silver slippers. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The groom was supported by LAC. Thomas Carrey of Toronto, now stationed at Moncton.

During the nuptial mass hymns were sung by the choir and Mrs. Charles Cahill rendered very sweetly a solo "Peace Be Still."

The groom's gift to the bride was a set of travelling bags and the bride's gift to the groom was a military set. The gift to the bridesmaid was a sterling silver locket and to the groomsman a pen and pencil set.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Olympia for about sixty guests. The bride's table was centered with a three tier wedding cake, surmounted by a silver bell and wreath. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Elmer Murphy and responded to by the groom.

After the reception the bride and groom went to St. Paul's cemetery where the bride placed her bouquet on her mother's grave.

For travelling the bride wore a brown tailored skirt, topped by a beige jeep coat with brown hat and accessories.

Following a short honeymoon trip the newly married couple will reside in Summerside where the groom is stationed.

Out of town guests were Mrs Joseph McCarthy, Newcastle, N.B. Mrs. James Mills, Chatham, N.B., Mr. and Mrs. Russel Thompson and daughters Joyce and Lillian, Tryon.—S.

No further word has been received. The wound was described as a shrapnel wound in the shoulder.

Sgt. Sullivan was wounded last spring and spent two months in a hospital recovering and was then sent back into action. He enlisted at the outbreak of the war along with his brother Sgt. Art Sullivan who was lost in the sinking of the Caribou. Two other brothers are in the forces, Sgt. Gordon in the Canadian Dental Corps and Lieut. William in the U.S. Army.—S.

reservation about this clause. If the term "inhabitants" was broadened to include Europeans he would have no quarrel.

"As it was," he said, "there are Europeans who have lived in these territories for generations. They are in no sense of the word exploiters." He urged steps to educate native races quickly.

6. "The present war has advanced still further the standing and nationhood of the British Dominions. It is important that these developments should be marked by a parallel advance in full consultations between the Dominions and Great Britain . . in particular it is important that the labor parties of the Commonwealth should seek to reach a united policy on all matters of common concern, above all of foreign policy and the issues of security to which it gives rise.

7. "The conference looks forward to a revival as rapidly as possible after victory of a socialist international in which it recommends that both the British labor party and the Dominion labor parties shall seek to play their full part."

The manifesto ended with an affirmation of the consciousness of the responsibility resting on labor and socialist parties.

David Lewis, national secretary of the C.C.F., speaking for the Canadian delegation said the war had thrown up hopeful signs of international co-operation but also signs that "vested interests" were reluctant to pursue social objectives "that alone justify it."

"Peace needs democracy, and to live democracy needs socialism," he said.

fighting on the side of Tokyo, O. W. I. said, adding that before Allied might can be brought to bear it must be based within striking distance of Japan's homeland. To this end, the B-29 superfortress raids, while possible now only at periods of 10 days or more, were called a "definite advance."

Even though the number of Japanese planes destroyed is high compared to Allied losses, Japanese plants are turning them out "as rapidly as we destroy them and probably can maintain or even increase this production slightly," O.W.I. stated. It added that the Japanese now can mass their air power in a narrowing theatre of war.

This is also true of shipping, where sinkings of Japanese ships are calculated at 1,500,000 tons a year against output, which, it is calculated, has not yet reached 1,000,000 tons a year.

Listing Japan's manpower situation on the asset aside of the Tokyo ledger, O. W. I. estimates there now are 4,000,000 men in the enemy army. In addition, there are approximately 2,000,000 available and fit for military service who have not been called up, and about 1,500,000 in the 17-20 age group, not yet subject to the draft.

Tignish Teachers' Convention

Distinguished visitors and enthusiastic teachers attended the Annual Convention held in Dalton School, Tignish, on September 12th.

The morning session opened with an address of welcome by the president Miss Bertha Doyle. She advised the teachers to bring with them to school each day a cheerful spirit which wouldd help all through the busy school day.

Supervisor F. E. Doiron in his remarks kindly advised the teachers to co-operate with First Aid Course in their respective districts, to encourage Junior Red Cross work in their classrooms and to train their pupils to take responsibility from their earlier years. In the conclusion of his address he extended to Mr. Lloyd Shaw, Director of Education in this province, a hearty welcome and assured him of his willing co-operation. Regrets were expressed by Mr. Doiron for having lost the service of Dr. H. H. Shaw who had done so much in the educational field and proved himself a gentleman at all times.

Miss Newson, Provincial Directress of Junior Red Cross, introduced Miss Brown, National Directress of Red Cross, who was loudly applauded by all present.

Miss Brown complimented the teachers on their Junior Red Cross Work and mentioned especially portfolios that have been exceptionally well done by pupils of this centre. She outlined the history of Junior Red Cross, touched on its aims: Public Health Organization, Promotion of Health, and Alleviation of Suffering. The complete report given by her of the helps Junior Red Cross has given to war torn countries was most praiseworthy and encouraging. All were greatly interested in the fact that in England fourteen nurseries were provided for by the Canadian Juniors.

The teachers felt very privileged to have had such a distinguished guest at their convention and feel that her visit will do much towards the promotion of greater efforts in behalf of the Red Cross.

Mr. Reginald McDonald expressed his pleasure at being at the convention and congratulated the president on her good work as a member of the executive of the Teachers' Federation. He advised all teachers to belong to this nation wide organization and pointed out how by not being a member he was not only hurting himself but was weakening the whole structure of the Federation.

The morning session closed by an address from the Pastor, Reverend John A. McDonald who bade welcome to the guests and teachers welcome to the guests and teachers and expressed his pleasure at being present at another of our Annual Conventions.

Afternoon Session

The first speaker of the afternoon session was Mr. Callaghan, Supervisor, who stressed proper supervision in the school room the importance of review work, the necessity for perfect a tendance of pupils at school, and the value of Study Clubs for teachers.

Mr. J. A. Bernard, M. L. A. brought his listeners back to bygone days by recalling "School Memories," meaning by so doing to impress upon the teachers the influence they have on the children whose young and plastic minds are committed to their care. He also pointed out how the need for higher education is greater now than in the past and to confirm his statement he read an editorial "Back to School" which was timely and full of good advice.

A Geographical Demonstration of Prince Edward Island under the guidance of Reverend Sister St. Catherine of Sweden was well given by her Grade IV. pupils. This dramatic and musical presentation of the geography of our island province gave pleasure to all and showed how dry facts may be made interesting in a simple way.

Miss Eulalie Chisson read a paper on Methods in Primary Reading. She said that all methods had some good work in them but that she found Word and Sentence Method to work most successfully.

Mr. L. W. Shaw, Director of Education on Prince Edward Island, opened his talk by saying that it was a pleasure to work, to think and to talk with the teachers of this convention. He congratulated all for the items on the program. He paid tribute to Dr. H. H. Shaw and teachers who have been working to keep school work going during these trying times. In his discourse he endeavored to establish friendly relationship between department of education and teacher and to raise our educational objectives. "Let us turn to Scripture," the speaker said, "and find that it is said of Christ: He grew in wisdom and age and grace with God and man'. This then is the four square citizenship, mental physical, spiritual and social we are to train the children for." "Our motto as teachers should be," said Mr. Shaw, "when the whole man is educated in all men, then shall mankind be nearer to humanity."

Reverend Father McDonald endorsed all that was said by the director, Mr. Shaw and expressed his desire that some provision be made for grown boys to return to school for the winter months when the busy work was over. With a hearty "God bless you" he closed the speeches of the day.

The question box's contents were read by Supervisor F. E. Doiron and answered by Mr. Shaw.

Evangelist Dies At Los Angeles

OAKLAND, Calif., Sept. 27 — (AP) — Aimee Semple McPherson, founder of the Angelus Temple in Los Angeles and widely known evangelist, died here suddenly today.

She was 53 years old and a native of the Ingersoll, Ont., district.

The Oakland police department reported that the evangelist was found lying unconscious in her suite at the Leamington Hotel. Angela Sid, a maid, made the discovery.

Miss McPherson opened a series of revival meetings here last night.

Two doctors were called and her death was attributed to a heart attack.

Mrs. McPherson was founder of the International Church of the Foursquare Gospel. Her Temple report says there are 400 of her churches in the United States and 200 mission stations abroad.

Married At 19

The erect, attractive blond, began mission work near Ingersoll, Ont., where she was born Oct. 9, 1890. In her youth she met Robert Semple, a tall, handsome preacher, while they were both attending the bedside of two sick children.

She married Semple when she was 19 and the couple travelled as missionaries through the middle and far western United States and in China. They both contracted an epidemic fever in the Orient and Semple died. Shortly after a daughter, Roberta, was born to Aimee.

In the United States the Evangelist continued her mission work and later, in the South, met and married Harold McPherson, a grocery clerk. A son, Rolf, was born of this marriage, which ended in divorce.

After a world tour in 1931 Mrs. McPherson married David Hutton, a plump choir singer in her church. They were divorced in 1934.

Erected Temple In 1922

The large, cream-colored Angelus Temple, with two balconies and a radio station, was erected by the Evangelist and her followers in Los Angeles in 1922.

In addition to the divorces, there were many other court appearances for the Evangelist who in 14 years was sued 45 times in various civil disputes. Some judgments were obtained against her but many of the actions were dismissed or never brought to trial.

Big Shipment Of Apple Jelly Ready For The Red Cross

Sixty barrels of apples, plus, roughly one and a half tons of sugar, plus the voluntary work of two hundred Charlottetown women, plus the free use of the Royal Packing Company's processing plant, and the finished product, three and a half tons of apple jelly, was ready last night for shipment to England where it will be distributed to children's hospitals and kindred institutions through the Red Cross.

The apples came from all sections of the Province and were donated free of charge. Some were shipped to the City, in other cases the City branch of the Island Division sent trucks out into the country to bring in the fruit. Most of the women who gave their services free to the preparing of the fruit for jelly-making were members either of the Red Cross Corps or of the Emergency Disaster Food Committee but several women who had no connection with either organization also gave their services free.

The task of making the apple jelly began Tuesday morning and was finished last night, and the 145 cases were then taken to the freight shed for shipment. Professor Percy Barlow and Mr John Martin donated their services for the strapping of the cases.

The amount of sugar used was 3,500 pounds and was released by the Government for that purpose. The Red Cross Division is highly grateful to Mr. J. D. Jenkins without whose generosity in allowing the use of his plant, the processing would have been impossible.

Beveridge Now A Liberal Candidate

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Sept. 27 — (CP) — Sir William Beveridge, whose elaborate Social Security Plan was sidetracked by the Government after its presentation two years ago, said today the even more elaborate "prosperity and happiness" scheme just presented in the government's behalf was much the same in structure but with minor changes that are "improvements."

Sir William now is a Liberal candidate for Berwick in a forthcoming by-election and indicated he would have a good deal to say about the new plan in the House of Commons if elected. But he added today in an address here:

The one big difference in principle between his own and the government's plan as presented by Lord Woolton he said, was that the Government "in fixing their rates of benefit and children's allowances have definitely abandoned the attempt to base them on subsistence and to make them enough in themselves to abolish want."

The Government plan would provide, among other things, motherhood grants of $16 plus benefits up to $7.20 weekly; unemployment and sickness pay of $8 weekly for married couples or $4.80 for a single person; widows' pensions reaching $7.20 for the first 13 weeks and orphans' allowances of $2.40 weekly box barrage all afternoon.

The first party was to set off at 10 P. M. Our group was to leave at 10:04 P. M. They went round distributing little packets of sulfanilamide and morphia.

We tore up blankets and wrapped them round our boots to muffle the sound of our feet in the trees. We were told the password—"John Bull." If we became separated each man was to make his way by compass due south until he reached the river.

Our major is an old hand. He led the way and linked our party together by getting everyone to hold the tail of the parachutist's smock of the man in front of him, so our infiltrating column had an absurd resemblance to some children's game.

Some Lucky, Some Not

It was half-light, with the glow of fires from burning houses around, when we set out. We were lucky. We went through a reputed enemy pocket without hearing a shot except for a stray sniper's bullet.

Another group met a machine-gun with a fixed line of fire across their path.

Another had to silence a bunch of Germans with a burst of Sten fire and hand grenades. Another had to pause while a German finished his evening stroll across their pathway. But we all got through without the enemy realizing that we were doing anymore than normal night patrolling.

The worst part was waiting two hours by the river side till our turn came for assault boats to ferry us across. The Germans, if not yet definitely suspicious, were inquisitive—they kept sending up flares and it was vital to lie flat and shivering on a soaking field with cold rain drizzling down. Occasionally machine-guns spattered out and bullets tweaked through the grass.

Lucky Again

We were lucky again: Our actual crossing was quiet. But soon after it seemed that the Germans had guessed what was going on because they mortared and shelled heavily along the shallow river banks. One soldier in the next field was hit and called out for help. Men whose turn for a place in the boats had come after hours of waiting insisted on staying under fire a little longer so that the wounded could go first.

Any wounded left behind, of course, became automatically prisoners of war. So many sick and limping left their beds to take a chance with the escape parties making their way to the river.

And so this epic stand of the British airborne soldiers ended as if had been fought—with honor, with high courage, with selfless sacrifice.

What of the spirit of these men as they trudged back through the wet night to the billets where they are now sunk in sodden sleep?

You can best judge it by the name they chose for last night's break-out. It had the same objective as they have always had, and they still mean to get there. They called it "Operation Berlin."

Nazis Use New Anti-Tank Gun

ROME, Sept. 27 — Allied headquarters in Italy disclosed today that on the Adriatic sector of the Italian front the Germans were employing a new 88-millimetre anti-tank gun against the British 8th Army.

"This new anti-tank gun," an announcement said, "is the first 88 MM made expressly as an anti-tank weapon and is a considerable improvement on the 88 ack-ack gun used in an anti-tank role. At least three of these new guns have been captured."
