Ex-Prisoner Gives Cops Crime Advice

(United Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—More than 300 members of Chief of Police Vollmer's "Crime Crushers" listened to a lecture on "How to catch criminals." And the man who did the lecturing knew his subject.

He was 'Billy" Roberts, known as "Frisco Billy," who some time ago "hit the trail" after spending fourteen years of his life in various prisons and institutions in California. Roberts was introduced by Chief Vollmer.

Using a blackboard and chalk to demonstrate his talk on how locks are picked, doors and windows jimmied and other methods used by criminals, Roberts more than held the interest of the assembled police for more than an hour.

Then he gave them some sound advice on how to catch lawbreakers.

"Don't go into a house alone after a burglar," said Roberts, "At least two police, ready for a gun battle, should go after their man. The reason for this is that the new crop of burglars are not like the 'old timers' whom I knew.

"The new law breakers are, for the most part just youngsters. they want to 'shoot it out' with the officers. The old-timers did not use these methods. They would rather run or allow themselves to be caught.

"Often these burglars of today are just 'kids' crazed with drugs and they are usually desperate. They often come from good homes and enter lives of crime just for the excitement they expect."

WAITING FOR HIGH TIDE.—The schooner E. C. Adams, which went ashore at River John, Northumberland Strait Coast during the gale of October 1st, and which was thrown by the tidal wave one hundred and twenty-five yards above high tde water and about one thousand yards over the flats, has been moved down to a position where the first high tide is expected to float her. Wiliam Duff, Lunenburg M. P., her managing owner returned from River John to Halfax last night after compleeting the last of a number of efforts to get the vessel moved down from the high and dry position to which the storm had thrown her. The vessel is not very seriously damaged, and when floated will soon be reconditioned. Captain Corkum and his mate are standng by waiting for the tide. (Halifax Chronicle). The C. G. S. Brant was employed n the last unsuccessful efforts to float the schooner.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—Constance Bate, the little three-year-old daughter of Rev. A. F. Bate and Mrs. Bate had a rather thrilling experience a few days ago and one which she and her parents will not forget in a hurry. She was playing about the house and had a cent which she put in her mouth and accidentally swallowed. Her cries when she discovered what she had done brought her mother to her side and between sobs the little girl told her mother what had happened. It was at first thought she had only imagined she had swallowed the cent but she kept to her story that such was the case and her parents had her taken to Victoria Hospital where an X-Ray examination was taken and the cent revealed in the esophagus where it had lodged being unable to pass through to the stomach An anesthetic was administered and the cent removed under the X-Ray.—Fredericton, N. B. Gleaner. (The little girl is a granddaughter of Judge Warburton and Mrs. Warburton of this city.)

Balfour Denies Charges of Douglas

(Canadian Press)

LONDON, Dec 17.—The Earl of Balfour was the first witness called for the prosecution of the opening in Old Bailey today of the trial of Lord Alfred Douglas, son of the late Marquis of Queensberry, for alleged libel against Winston Spencer Churchill, former first Lord of the Admiralty.

The charge is based upon statements made in pamphlet published by Lord Alfred under the title: "The murder of Lord Kitchener and the truth about the Battle of Jutland and the Jews." Attorney General Sir Douglas Hogg, for the prosecution, said he would prove untrue the whole allegations in the pamphlet that Mr. Churchill had issued a false communique about the Battle of Jutland in order to juggle the stock markets to the benefit of Sir Ernest Cassel and a syndicate with which the latter was connected.

The Earl of Balfour testified that the original draft of the famous Jutland communique was in his own handwriting and that Mr. Churchill had nothing whatever to do, either directly or indirectly, with the drafting of the document.

Sir Douglas Hogg asked: "So far as you know, did Mr. Churchill know anything about that communique until it appeared in the papers?"

Balfour answered: "Nothing whatever."

A suggestion from Lord Alfred's counsel that Mr. Churchill, after he left the admiralty, was constantly visiting there, that therefore Churchill regime was continued in naval affairs, brought a reply from Balfour, who said there was not the slightest foundation for any such "wild story."

At the opening of the trial, Lord Alfred pleaded not guilty and asserted that the statements contained in the alleged libel were true. According to the defendant's plea of justification, Mr. Churchill continued to occupy a private room in the admiralty building after he resigned the first lordship.

FAREWELL AT BORDEN

On the evening of Dec. 3rd, a number of the Borden School children met at the home of Capt. Read, and tendered a farewell to Miss Jean A. Strang, prior to her departure for her new home in Sydney, N. S., where she proceeded to on the following morning. She was presented with a beautiful gold, ever-sharp pencil, and the following address, to which she fittingly replied in brief terms:

Miss Jean A. Strang,
Borden.

Dear Jean:—

Hearing with regret that you are about to leave from amongst us, we feel that we cannot allow you to depart without some word of farewell.

During the years spent together in Borden School, we have always found you a cheerful playmate, a diligent student and a true chum; and we know that when you move to your new home in Sydney, your kind and gentle manner will enable you to win many new friends, but we trust that even in your new surroundings, you shall not forget your old friends at Borden.

As an expression of our esteem, we beg of you to accept this slight token of remembrance from your classmates of Borden School.

Provincial Lady Honored

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND LADY HONORED BY PHYSICIANS OF HER ADOPTED CITY. — MASSIVE SILVER LOVING CUP PRESENTED TO MISS MARY ELIZA REID, R. N.

The following, copied from recent numbers of the Charleston Gazette, West Virginia, will be of interest to many Guardian readers:

Training School Holds Graduation Exercises; Loving Cup Presented Mary Eliza Reid for 25 Years of Service.

A class of graduating nurses received diplomas at the fifteenth annual commencement of the McMillan training school for nurses held Wednesday evening at the Elks Club.

One of the features of the exercises was the presentation of a loving cup to Mary Eliza Reid, in recognition of 25 years of service in the city as head of a training school and registry. The loving cup was given by the physicians of Charleston and was presented by D. G. C. Schoolfield. It was inscribed as follows:—

To Mary Eliza Reid
In recognition of twenty-five years of service to humanity.

1898—1923

Presented by the Physicians of Charleston, West Virginia.

Miss Reid opened the first training school in the city under the direction of Dr. Thomas in the Thomas Hospital, now the Charleston General, in 1898. In November of 1907 she began her nurses registry, which she still operates.

Nearly 300 persons were present for the exercises including doctors and nurses from every hospital in the city. Following the program refreshments were served and dancing enjoyed until midnight.

The commencement program followed:—

Address ..... Dr. MacMillan
Address ..... Dr. Hunter
Presentation of loving cup to Miss Reid ... by Dr. G. C. Schoolfield
Class prophecy ..... Miss Darby
Presentation of diplomas and ping. Pledge ..... Training School
Benediction, Ernest Thompson, D.D.

In presenting the "Loving Cup," Doctor Schoolfield said, "I have known Miss Reid longer probably than any other physician now living in Charleston. I knew her during her early work here before she was stricken with Arthritis Deformans. In fact, Miss Reid and myself grew up in the Medical Profession together. I have known her all through the year of her battle to overcome disease. I know of her work under many difficulties right here in our midst, and of her successes in spite of them all. It gives me great pleasure to present to her this loving cup from the members of the medical profession of Charleston, in appreciation of her faithful and efficient services to humanity for a quarter century. We wish her continued success and more complete restoration to health." Dr. Schoolfield then read the inscription engraved on the front of the massive and beautiful silver, gold lined cup, coming down from the platform to make the presentation.

When Miss Read (who was taken completely by surprise) stood up to thank the physicians for their beautiful gift, the whole audience arose and gave her an ovation, hand-clapping, etc. This naturally added to her embarrassment, but she was equal to the occasion and gave expression to her appreciation and thanks in appropriate words. Many old friends and acquaintances in the audience came forward to add personal congratulations and to give expression to the pleasure it gave them to be present.

The Miss Mary Eliza Reid referred to is a native of Prince Edward Island, daughter of the late James Reid, senior, of Summerside. She is a sister of Mr. S. E. Reid, formerly Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, and later Provincial Treasurer, and Commissioner of Agriculture. She has a number of relatives in Charlottetown, including Dr. A. B. Reid, who is a nephew; also many friends and relatives in Summerside and elsewhere in our Province, who will read with great interest of this token of appreciation of her devotion to her chosen profession as well as recognition of her success in it by the physicians of her adopted city.

After graduating from the Drexel College in Philadelphia, Miss Reid went to Cincinnati, Ohio, and entered the Training School for Nurses of the German Hospital of that city. After her graduation she was appointed Assistant Supt. of this large hospital, holding this position until called to Charleston, West Virginia's capital city, to assist in opening a hospital for sick and wounded soldiers of the Spanish-American war.

A later number of the Charleston Gazette publishes the following, which was taken from the September issue of the "Trained Nurse and Hospital Review," which after sketching her career, makes special mention of the wide field of usefulness of her book, "Reid's Bacteriology in a Nutshell," a text book for student nurses now in its tenth edition.

Tribute is Paid to Local Nurse.

Miss Mary Reid Wins Fine Praise in Current Issue of Magazine;

Has Completed 25 Years' Service Here.

Miss Mary E. Reid, registered nurse, a pioneer in the profession's history in the Kanawha Valley is paid tribute in the September issue of the Trained Nurse and Hospital Review for her success won despite physical handicaps. Miss Reid and is now head of the nurses' registry of Charleston.

She is author of Reid's "Bacteriology in a Nutshell,' now in its tenth edition. Stricken with arthritis deformans in the midst of her career, Miss Reid faced what might have been a quiet and inactive life, for the disease cripples and is often fatal.

Her career is sketched by the Review from August 27, 1898, when she arrived in Charleston, a newly graduated nurse, to assist in opening a hospital for volunteers for the Spanish-American War. Her chief aid in carrying on the work was the governor's son, now Rev. George W. Atkinson, of Washington, D.C. In connection with the hospital she had charge of student nurses.

Her work was interrupter in its fifth year by development of the disease. As the disease progressed Miss Reid took treatments for it, and at the same time instructed 26 junior nurses in bacetriology and general nursing. Shortly afterward she prepared her volume "Bacteriology in a Nutshell," to be used in class rooms and for the post extension work. Much of the work was done while she lay propped up in bed. The volume has been translated into several languages and is used as a text book in this country, Canada, China and in European countries.

Soon after its completion, reviewed chapter by chapter in the magazine "Hospital Record," Miss Reid returned to her old hospital position in Charleston, now the Charleston General Hospital, and later to become the General Hospital and Training School. Miss Reid held the position of superintendent there until 1907 when she resigned to organize the nurses' central registry and home for nurses. Her book had been revised from time to time, and several editions had been published. When in 1916 another revision became necessary she studied at bacteriology laboratories connected with the University of Pennsylvania under Dr. A. C. Abbott and his associates, Drs. Bergey, Stuart and Smyth.

In concluding the outline of Miss Reid's career, the magazine suggests that with splendid laboratories now available in Charleston, another trip to Philadelphia for continued study may never be necessary.

IN MEMORIAM

JAMES M. McDONALD

On Nov. 17, Malcolm J. McDonald Lyndale received a telegram informing him that his son James M. was on Nov. 15th drowned in the Oregon River, near Oregon City, Oregon U. S. A. where he was working for a power company preparing a power dam on the river. He was cutting a log in the stream and the log rolling over, he stumbled and in falling it seems he struck his head on the log stunning him for he made no effort to save himself when he fell into the water. In a few minutes his companions received his body and a doctor was soon on the ground but no efforts could revive him. His remains were brought home. The funeral service was held in his father's home on Nov. 30th, Rev. J. A. MacLellan. Valleyfield officiating. He was buried at Orwell Head.

The sadness of the circumstances is increased by the fact that both parents are invalid. The wide spread sympathy felt for the bereaved was seen in the large number present at the funeral service. James M. was born March 24th, 1896

On Dec. 31st, 1915, he enlisted in the 105th Battalion for overseas service in the Great War. He received his discharge on Nov. 17th, 1919. He was wounded in the war but not disabled. Physically he was a fine specimen of a man. He was a general favorite with all in the home community. Letters received from his employers and fellow workmen speak of him as much liked by all who knew him. Besides his parents he is survived by two brothers John A. and Alexander H. and one sister Elizabeth, all at home.

MRS ALEXANDER N. MacPHERSON

The death occured at Grandview, on November 12 of Mrs. Alexander N. MacPherson aged 79 years.

The deceased, nee Mary Martin was an invalid for a number of years but bore her suffering, which was lightened and brightended by the loving kindness and usefulness of her daughter-in-law with fortitude and resignation to the Divine will and passed away to her Heavenly home with full trust in the merits of her Redeemer. She was a member of Orwell Head Presbyterian Church, a woman of sterling qualities strong in her devotion to her church, family and friends and her death will be mourned by those who are left to realize their loss.

Rev. J. A. MacLellan of Valleyfield, who ministered to her spiritual needs during the latter stage of her illness, officiated at the funeral, assisted by Rev. M. J. MacPherson of Hampton, and the number of people that gathered to follow her mortal remains to Orwell Head Cemetery testify to the esteem in which she was held.

She leaves to mourn beside her aged husband, four sons, Malcolm and Neil in Massachusetts, Roderick in Newtown, Alexander on the homestead, also two daughters, Mrs. Angus MacDonald on, in Bellevue, another daughter in Dover, and Mrs. Archie Mathes. Mrs. Ernest Wild died some years ago.

the soul of John R. Doyle to his Masters house.

Deceased was of a kind and cheerful nature characterized through life by its uprightness and integrity to all people, a kind friend in the home a loving father and husband.

Though in failing health for some time he bore his suffering with resignation to his Master's will and when the end come on November 22th he laid down the cross of life as cheerfully as he had taken it up some years before with the promise of a bright young manhood before him and his name stands out in the community to which he belonged as a shining example of an upright christian soldier.

He was frequently attended by his pastor Rev. A. P. McLellan, who administered the last rites of the Church.

His remains were laid to rest in the quiet Cemetery of St. Andrew's awaiting the blessed day of Resurrection.

He leaves to mourn besides a sorrowing wife, two sons and three daughters, also two brothers and two sisters R. I. P.

Renew Fight For Votes For Women

(Canadian Press)

PARIS, Dec. 13—The fight for woman suffrage in France, was renewed in the French parliament yesterday when a bill drawn up by Justin Goddard, a former minister in the Clemenceau Cabinet and signed by 83 other deputies, was introduced for consideration. It provides that "the laws and regulations governing the franchise and eligibility to vote shall apply to women over twenty-five years of age."

NEW RUSH OF FRENCH WOMEN TO HAVE HAIR BOBBED

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Bobbed hair has long been accepted as standard practice in Paris, but there has developed suddenly such a rush to the shears that it is realized now that only a small proportion of the women have had their locks trimmed.

Advocates of short hair have taken advantage of this situation to spread further the doctrine of the bobbed head, and newspapers are carrying interviews and comment that would lead one to suppose the movement is new.

"Hairdressers offer no explanation for the thousands coming to them to have their hair cut just in time to catch cold this Winter, but they ask no questions and cut.
