TAPPING OF WIRES IN CANADA MADE DIFFICULT

Tapping of telegraphic circuits as the Germans did in France in 1940 to get information of Allied movements would be a difficult if not impossible job in Canada with the present-day use of carrier current, according to the Canadian National Telegraphs. The channel circuits are so finely balanced that any extra attachments would throw them off and it would be difficult to get anything sensible out of them to say nothing of the difficulty in isolating any one circuit of the twenty-four channels in use and of utilizing portable equipment necessary which would be so heavy as to acquire the use of a truck. To make some circuits more secret, specially those operated by teleprint, messages are scrambled on the way so that if tapped nothing intelligible would be received, only a jumble of letters and figures

Looking Ahead In Ottawa

By The Ottawa Staff Of The Canadian Press

OTTAWA, July 9—(CP)—Gen. De Gaulle, visiting Canada this week, is expected to urge that the Canadian government officially recognize his French committee of national liberation as the provisional government of France, but government officials have given no indication of what stand they will take if such a request is made.

Gen. De Gaulle is believed to have made similar requests recently to the British and United States governments. However, neither government has given him open recognition as the leader of a provisional government for France.

Canada usually adopts the same policy as United States and Britain on such matters, although Canada was the last to break off relations with Vichy after that government began collaborating with Germany. The French legation here remained in operation for some time after Britain and United States had broken off relations with Vichy.

BUDGET

Highlights of the possible wind-up of the budget debate on Monday may be the speech expected to be delivered by Defence Minister Ralston, who is scheduled to reply to critics of the government's manpower policy which is aimed at maintaining a volunteer army overseas and draftee army at home.

It was reliably learned that Col. Ralston will argue there is no necessity of invoking conscription to send drafted men overseas. It is understood he will argue that there was an increase in the number of volunteers for the active army last month, that casualties have been lighter than estimates, and that there is still a necessity for keeping a substantial home army on duty on Canada's coast, Newfoundland, the West Indies and perhaps the Aleutians, and that a great many of the home draftees have been given summer leave to help on the farms.

Hope was expressed during the week-end that the budget debate would end tomorrow or Tuesday, which would make it one of the shortest budget debates on record.

The budget was brought down June 26 and the debate started June 29.

HOUDE

Announcement of the release from internment of Camillien Houde, former Mayor of Montreal, has been expected in Ottawa from day to day, but justice department officials have remained silent.

A member of the Commons, who asked that his name be withheld, said Justice Minister St. Laurent had told him last week that Mr. Houde would be released.

"Apparently he is to be released all right, but where, when . . . I don't know," said the member.

Some unconfirmed reports said the release would not be until after the Quebec election Aug. 8. Mrs. Houde mentioned the reports in a letter made public in Montreal Friday and addressed to Mr. St. Laurent. She said her husband had completed all formalities required of him, and asked why his release was not forthcoming.

There has been no indication that Mr. Houde would re-enter politics if released.

Battle Of Bulletins Frays Enemy Nerves

Radio Mobile Unit sketched in action by S. J. Woolf, NEA artist-correspondent.

By S. J. WOOLF
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

WITH U.S. FORCES IN NORMANDY, July 10 — It is dusk. Crawling through the underbrush outside Cherbourg, an American soldier stealthily makes his way to within a quarter of a mile of the German lines. He carries with him a square box attached to which is a wire hundreds of feet long, running to a van containing a portable radio transmitter. He sets the box down, and gives the signal. Immediately, in perfect German, comes an appeal to give in. "Resistance is hopeless," it roars. "You are surrounded and in ten minutes a barrage will be set down. Give up now and save your lives."

This is but one kind of job which the Radio Mobile Unit with which I have been travelling is carrying on in Liberated France. For this strange aggregation of men, some military, some civilians supplied by the OWI, is engaged in waging war with bulletins instead of bullets. There are authors, psychologists, newspaper men and college professors preparing scripts and messages. They confer in shot-up houses and in tents, and when they are not conferring they are absorbed in reading heavy literature. Among them are Germans, Czechs,

Allies Invent Psychological Warfare Tricks

Poles, Hungarians, French and serious-looking Englinshmen

With them are large vans which have been converted into printing offices, radio stations and photographic dark rooms. Pamphlets are being printed which, encased in shells, are hurled against the Germans. There are also passenger cars with loud speakers on their roofs, patroling nearby villages and spreading the gospel of good will. In one town not far back of the lines a printing press has been salvaged which turns out a paper that is showered down on unretrieved, nearby France.

TRUCKMEN QUIZ PRISONERS

But it is not only the civilian part of this unit which helps in the work. Truck drivers are of different nationalities, and often interrogate the prisoners. Information gained from them is shot back at their still-fighting comrades either in type or over the air to show that we know precisely what is going on.

Directly responsible for the policy of this Radio Mobile Unit is Lt. Col. Flynn Andrew, a New York lawyer, who since the beginning of the war has been travelling in the East and Near East as a Special Service Officer. Although he issues orders as to where this particular unit shall operate, it rests upon the civilian portion of it to provide the type of program best suited to fray the enemy's nerves.

If this system of psychological warfare is as successful here as it was in Italy, it will not be long before we see disheartened Germans appearing before our lines, holding pamphlets in their up-raised hands and asking to surrender.

Speaking with the specialists in the group, one is impressed with their enthusiasm for the idea that the pen is mightier than the sword.

There is an old sergeant connected with this unit who has been in the army for some time. The other day I was speaking to him in one of our camps. Nearby were a number of intellectual heavyweights conferring over a problem. "Gee," said he, "if we are going to send the gab of those guys over to the Jerries, Sherman sure was right."

Victoria W.M.S. Rally

A sectional rally of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada was held at Montague, Tuesday, July 4, under the direction of Mrs. L. M. Murray, Hunter River.

The church was beautifully decorated with cut flowers for the occasion.

The devotional period of the afternoon session was conducted by the New London Auxiliary. With Mrs. Jas. M. Campbell in the chair meeting opened by singing "In Christ There is No East or West." Mrs. Harold Dunning led in prayer and Mrs. John MacLeod read Scripture from Psalm 97. Mrs. Campbell gave a reading "God's World" and hymn "The Morning Light is Breaking" closed this period. Mrs. Murray then occupied the chair. Mrs. Harold Mayhew was appointed secretary for the rally and Mrs. John Scott, Mrs. E. O. Fraser and Mrs. A. D. Stirling were appointed as a resolution and courtesy committee.

Mrs. Crowdis gave a very cordial welcome to the delegates and visitors, which was graciously acknowledged by Mrs. A. D. Stirling.

Roll call was answered by over fifty delegates representing ten auxiliaries. Mrs. Wilfred Pickering introduced the Problem Box, and Mrs. Murray the literature with Mrs. Howard's message to "Buy and Read." A very instructive dialogue "They Tell Me" was conducted by Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Murray, in which they told us many interesting facts concerning the work of the Women's Missionary Society.

"Jesus, United by Thy Grace" was then sung.

Greetings from the President of Presbyterial was read by Mrs. Murray, who also gave a very interesting report of Conference Branch held recently in Sackville.

Reports and messages from the different departmental secretaries were given.

Several interesting discussions were held during the problem period.

A pleasant feature of the afternoon session was a duet by two members from Kensington Mission Band, Miss Elizabeth Brookins and Master Ross Davison, who also closed the meeting by singing a "Good-Bye" duet.

At the supper hour, the delegates were entertained by the ladies of Malpeque church at their beautiful manse, where a bountiful lunch was served.

EVENING MEETING

At the evening meeting, the devotional period was conducted by the Long River Auxiliary, Mrs. Oliver Paynter, Mrs. Murdoch MacLeod and Mrs. E. J. O. Fraser taking part. A solo by Rev. L. M. Murray was much enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. Murray presided at this session also, and the guest speaker was Rev. E. J. O. Fraser, who took for his text: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal." He spoke of church work as being a business, and of the alarming amount of good that was being done with a mere dribble of this world's goods, in comparison to what other concerns had to work with.

The resolution and courtesy committee brought in the following request:

Whereas, the Dominion Board will be asking us to accept larger allocations because of increased costs and expansion of work, resolved that we give this our prayerful consideration and heartiest financial support.

Whereas, the women of our land can create public sentiment in the home and community, resolved that we urge our school boards to seek the co-operation of the clergymen in carrying on religious education in the schools, and further be it resolved, that we seek to arouse the public to see the seriousness of the liquor situation in our province today and to encourage more Temperance Education in the home, church and school.

Whereas the problem of juvenile delinquency has become alarming, resolved that we study this problem and seek to promote wherever possible C.G.I.T., Trail Ranger and Tuxis programs in our local churches.

Whereas the question of the reception of refugees into our country has become increasingly important, resolved that we give the problem sympathetic study and try to create a more Christian feeling toward those already in our midst.

Resolved that the thanks of this rally be extended to our speaker of the evening, also to the organist, and to all who helped make this rally such a splendid success, not forgetting the ladies who served us with such a delicious lunch.

All resolutions were adopted by motion. The singing of "O Lord of Life and Love and Power" and Benediction by Rev. Mr. Crowdis closed the meeting.

Mrs. Chester Simpson, organist of Malpeque United Church, capably presided as organist for both sessions of the rally.
