Attitude Of U. S. To Prohibition Unknown Factor

(Canadian Press Staff Correspondent) WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 16.—Discussion of prohibition which began in the United States before anybody now alive was born, and which will continue, apparently, as long as anybody lives in this country, is crescendo this week and will not diminish until after the elections of November 4, if then. Prohibition is not a national issue in the campaign which will see all the congressmen and one-third of the senators elected, because Democrats and Republicans are divided upon the question, but it is a hot point of controversy in various states.

Observers in Washington admit they are quite unable to say whether the sentiment of the country as a whole is changing either one way or the other, but they do express the opinion that, so far as the authorities are concerned, a dozen years after its inception, prohibition for the first time is being considered with a degree of calm.

President Hoover's law enforcement commission, at present in session here, may report on prohibition to Congress in December. Chairman George H. Wickersham said a few days ago: "If prohibition proves unenforceable, this commission should say so." This statement, he added, was merely an expression of personal opinion. The commission, while it is known to be studying the question may decide not to report on what the President has called "a noble experiment." It may report enforcement possible. Even if it should say that enforcement were impossible, its opinion would be merely advisory.

But, whatever the commission's findings, they will be something for Congress and the country to think about. It the wets should make the gains they claim in forthcoming elections, Congress might see some forensic fireworks more brilliant than those put on by the last Congress in which there were only about 100 wet representatives out of 425, and only sixteen wet senators out of ninety-six.

To support further the belief that prohibition becomes less of death-or-prohibition cause and more of a reasonable matter, or at least a matter of expediency, there is the attitude of Senator Wesley L. Jones, dry leader of the State of Washington. Senator Jones has said he is willing to abide by the decision of his state as expressed in a referendum. A similar stand is taken by Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican candidate for the senate in Illinois. Mrs. McCormick is a dry.

There is also to hand the report of the Bureau of Prohibition of the Department of Justice regarding possible production of illegal liquor in the United States for the year ending June 30, 1929. This report is the first of its kind ever issued by a government agency. It makes no bones about estimating that illegal alcohol produced in and smuggled into the United States in 1929 was 73,931,172 gallons. The report says this amount is less than that for the preceding year, and production of absolute alcohol for beverage purposes per capita in 1929 was about 5 per cent only of that produced legally in 1914. These figures are for production only and not for consumption, into which matter further investigation will be made.

Meantime, there can be no question but that the administration of President Hoover is making an attempt to enforce the law. The transfer of enforcement activities from the treasury to the Department of Justice has resulted in some energetic moves. Agents have turned up the ramifications of a $15,000,000 rum ring operating in the eastern states. With the shutting off of export from Canada, smuggling from the islands of St. Pierre Miquelon has greatly increased. This is openly recognized in Washington, and a flying squadron of fifty has been dispatched to the northeastern states in an attack on the activities of rum row. Criticism of enforcement directed against corruption and lawlessness on the part of agents has been met with the establishment of a school in Washington where teachers of agents are trained and sent forth with the gospel of respect for law and fidelity to duty. These affairs, of course, may not be accepted as more than indication of the attitude of the administration.

SOURIS

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Mary's Church, Souris, on Wednesday, Oct. 15th, when Miss Pearl McKenzie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim McKenzie, of Souris, became the bride of Stewart MacIntyre, of East Point. Rev. J. C. MacLean, V.G., assisted by Rev. Basil Croken, performed the marriage. The wedding march was beautifully rendered by Miss Alice LaVie. The bride was very becomingly attired in a dress of champagne crepe de chene trimmed with lace, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of white asters and asparagus fern. She was attended by Miss Nellie McEachern, who wore a gown of satin and brown crepe de chene, with hat to match. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Ernest Mac-

Innis. After the ceremony wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride and after which Mr. and Mrs. MacIntyre left on a honeymoon trip through the Maritime Provinces. The Guardian joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. MacIntyre many happy years of wedded life. Upon their return they will take up residence at East Point, where Mr. MacIntyre is the very efficient light house keeper.

Mr. Joseph Gillis, Bear River, was a visitor to Souris on Wednesday.

Charlottetown motorists to Souris on the 15th included Mr. G. Driscoll, who spent the day here on business.

Chicago Babies Wearing Anklets

CHICAGO, October 16.—Anklets with self locking clasps which must be severed to be removed are now being used to prevent baby mixups in Chicago hospitals. Dr. Arnold Kegeel, city health commissioner has revealed.

The anklets, bearing metal identification tags attached in the presence of two witnesses at the time of each birth, are being used as a result of a rule established by Dr. Kegeel to eliminate the possibility of a repetition of the recent Bamberger-Watkins baby mixup, which attracted national situation in the eyes of sane wets wide attention. The anklets are used and drys is that, while an attempt in addition to the regular hospital is being made to enforce the law, tags.

In the Bamberger-Watkins case the infants of Mrs. Charles Bamberger and Mrs. William Watkins were mixed in a hospital when identification marks on the babies were confused by placing each child in the wrong clothing. The mixup was finally adjusted when the parents swapped the babies they took home from the hospital.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Oct. 16.—The United Kingdom displaced Canada as the best customer of the United States in August. Great Britain bought $39,927,940 worth of United States goods, according to Department of Commerce report, while Canada bought $33,694,838 worth.

In the same month in 1929 Canada's purchase reached a total of $76,861,737, while the United Kingdom took $38,303,495 worth.

Doing August the exports of the United States to Europe held up better than those to North America countries, the drop in Canadian purchases figuring heavily against this country.

Imports to the United States from Canada in August showed a sizeable decrease as compared with the same month last year. The figures for 1929 they were $43,760,207.

titles of butter in storage. On Oct. 1, there were 37,255,263 pounds put away, with nearly 1,000,000 pounds of dairy butter. This heavy increase is attributed to last-hour importations from New Zealand. Till it is disposed of a steady market is forecast.

DUTY ON BUTTER CALLED BENEFIT

OTTAWA, Oct. 16.—The New Zealand butter arrangement terminated yesterday and the duty on this commodity, which has been one cent a pound will be eight cents.

Locally, at least, the effects are hailed as highly beneficial to the farmers, while not being at all adverse to the consumers. Since the new duty, the dairies have increased the prices paid to farmers from 27 to 31 cents per pound for butter fat.

However, the Ottawa retail price of butter, which has been 36 cents, was quoted at 35 cents to-day.

A price regulator, temporarily at least, is found in the immense quantity of butter in storage.

Steps To Combat "Red" Waranders

(Special to the Guardian)
