Preaching in the Kirk pulpit last night before leaving on his vacation the minister, the Rev. T. H. Bussell Somers said: "And so I close by saying that when Peter began to sink his Saviour was not far away. Immediately He put out His hand and grasped him. How far Peter had walked upon the water we are not told, it matters not whether it was fifty yards or a hundred. If the nearest human hands were fifty yards away, the hands of Christ were not fifty yards away; immediately He put forth His hand and helped him. My friend, just beginning to sink, will you remember that Christ is at your side? All human help may seem very far away; remember that He is not very far away. He is near you now. You need Him sorely and He is there for you. Cry out tonight, Lord save me or I perish" and He will do it to the uttermost for you.

Announcement was made that during the minister's vacation in June the Rev. S. J. MacArthur, M.A., B.D., of Stellarton would conduct the services and deliver the sermons.

Tragedy struck heavily at the family of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Trainor, St. Teresa yesterday, as fire took the lives of the oldest and the youngest of their family and destroyed their home.

Miss Gladys Trainor, 14 died at the Charlottetown Hospital last night while their baby, five months old, died in the Montague Hospital a few hours earlier.

The blaze, which broke out about 10.30 a.m. is believed to have originated from an explosion caused by kerosene used in starting a fire.

Mr and Mrs. Trainor were attending services in the Roman Catholic Church, about a mile from their home, when the explosion and fire occurred.

Four children were at home at the time. A third child Ruth, had her hands burned apparently while helping her sister and the baby from the home. Another girl, Helen, also at home escaped uninjured. Cecil and Annetta were at church with their parents.

The injured were taken to hospital at Montague where the baby died a short time later. In the afternoon the older girl was taken to Charlottetown by ambulance in the hope that injections of blood plasma here might save her life but her injuries proved to be too extensive.

When neighbors gathered the fire had gained considerable headway and there was no chance to save the dwelling. Nor could anything be salvaged. There was no insurance.

Friends heard with regret of the unexpected passing of Mrs. William A. Robertson whose death occurred in the Charlottetown Hospital early Friday afternoon. The late Mrs. Robertson, previous to her marriage was a valued employee of the Patriot Job Printing department and previously was employed at the Woolworth Store for a time.

Thousands of people lined the streets on Saturday evening to watch the recruiting campaign parade of the 17th Reserve Armoured units. The weather had cleared up and the city was full of people from surrounding country, all anxious to see the parade.

MacNeill, D.C.M., officer commanding the 204th Battery. Then came the 17th Reserve Armoured Regiment, followed by the 6th District Signals and the 204th Battery Field Artillery, with two eighteen pounder field guns, and the band of No. 62 C.A.B.T.C. Beach Grove, under command of bandmaster Emile Dolron. Numerous Bren gun carriers and trucks with machine guns made a truly impressive display.

Kenneth was a great favorite with all his acquaintances, young and old. DRIFTING BUOYS—When the buoys are placed on the coasts of P. E. Island and Nova Scotia in the early spring by the Marine Department there is no telling where they will be picked up. Last fall the early freeze-up prevented the department steamer from completing its work of lifting all the buoys, a number being left out off the Island coast and all off the Magdalen Island area, while a number were also left out in the straits. Recently a Pictou, N.S., buoy was picked up at sea by a steamer and landed at Argentia Nfld. This buoy evidently followed the Cape Breton coast into the Gulf of St. Lawrence and was probably picked up in Cabot Strait. A number, it was said drifted to the west coast of Newfoundland. A large number of the "drifters" have been returned and most of them have suffered no material damage. They have been repaired and painted ready for this season.

They were ages from 17 to 50 and of a very desirable, fine type of young and middle-aged citizens, anxious to play their part in what Col. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defense, says will be the defense force of Canada. Anyone who had an idea that the Reserve Army was created by the Militia Department at Ottawa for no real purpose of defense must have been thoroughly disillusioned by Col. Ralston's address which says in fact that the east and west coast of Canada will very shortly be left to them to defend. There is plenty of room in all the units for more recruits, and four more days and evenings to fill the ranks.

Charlottetown extended an enthusiastic wlecome to the Women's Division, R.C.A.F. Precision Squad and Highland Pipe Band, that arrived in the city last night.

His Worship Mayor B. Roy Holman, Deputy Mayor McKee and city clerk, James Fullerton greeted them at the station on behalf of the city. A large crowd was in attendance despite weather conditions. The young women were warmly applauded as they stepped from the train accompanied by the Highland Pipe Band.

They made a most favourable impression on the citizens as they marched briskly from the station to the skirl of the pipes, furnished by the first pipe band to be formed by the R.C.A.F. The "Flying Scotsmen," as they are called, are from No. 9 Service Flying Training School at Centralia, Ontario. The idea of the band took form when the unit was stationed at Summerside, this Province, at a Burns' Night dinner attended by the Air Force officers of Scottish descent. Group Capt. E. G. Fullerton decided to add three pipers to his station band. When the station was transferred to Centralia, the pipe section was increased by the addition of several pipers and drummers from the Cameron Cadets of Winnipeg. Now it is 14 strong, with its own kilts and tartan. Leading Aircraftsman P. H. Inch, Charlottetown, is among the original bandsmen.

Many favorable comments were heard on all sides on the precision and splendid co-ordination of the young airwomen, as they marched along Weymouth St. to Grafton, to Queen to Kent and to The Charlottetown Hotel.
