Stick Doggedly To Civil Tasks

OTTAWA, April 9 (CP)—After months of war many Canadian women are still asking what they can do to help with the war and a booklet "Citizens of the Continuum" is being issued by the Canadian Welfare Council to answer the question.

"We have been besieged with requests for this sort of information ever since the war began," Miss Charlotte Whitton, director of the Canadian Welfare Council said.

"With all the clamor of war activities and the Empire feeling being fostered on every side one may look longingly for bigger fields to conquer than the everyday problems of the community," says Mrs. Pembroke. But it is in sticking doggedly to civilian daily tasks that Canadians are doing a vital job in winning the war and building the future, she says.

PLAGUE OF RATS—RATNAGIRI India.—(CP)—Pearing of rats in this district, thousands of persons have been specially inoculated.

Invading Yugoslavia and Greece, Adolf Hitler takes another long chance, this time putting in peril the oil, ores, and food supplies vital to his armies and people. Shown on map are Balkan resources whose flow to Germany may be or is already interrupted, and transport facilities hit by the invasion.

Slowly being beaten back from the broad plains in north and east, sections of their country, the Yugoslav armies are expected to make their stand against German invaders in the mountains of the west. Numbers on terrain map indicate valleys and flatlands most vulnerable to attack by German mechanized units.

WE TWO!

We are left alone in the dear old home. After so many years, Where the house was full of frolic and fun. Of childish laughter and tears.

And the table is set for two, these days; And then, went one by one. Away from home on their separate ways.

When their childish days were done. How healthy and happy they used to be! What romping they used to do! And mother, through weeping, can hardly see.

To set the table for two. They used to gather around the fire. While someone would read aloud. But whether at study or work or play.

We were a loving and merry crowd. And now we are two that gather there. At evening to read or sew; And it seems almost too much to bear.

When we think of the long ago. Ah, well! No doubt 'tis the way of the world. Children stay but a little while. And then into other scenes are whirled.

And other homes beguiled. But it matters not how far they roam. Their hearts are fond and true. And there's never a place like the dear old home.

Where the table is set for two. —Leslie Weeks. ELLIOTT'S, P.E.I. KINGSTON W. I.

A Woman's View

BY ALICE HEMMING IN VANCOUVER WORLD

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal.—Vancouverites who in peace time might have been here themselves can find some gratification perhaps in the fact that when I left Vancouver it was sunny, and here in Los Angeles it is raining hard, and has been doing so for some days.

One is a little overwhelmed by the abundance of everything here: vegetation, wealth, celebrities, production. I am in a whirl of movie and aircraft people. By some chance perhaps significant, the ones I have met are nearly all actively interested in aid to Great Britain.

Mrs. J. P. Fell, who is here on private business as usual, when she comes to California being well entertained. She has addressed several groups of people in this, her former home, and she is keenly noting some of the many remarkable activities being carried on here at the moment, not only in the interests of culture, but in an effort to help Great Britain.

I had tea with Mrs. Fell at the Women's Athletic Club of Los Angeles, which is very famous and beautiful, and which Mrs. Fell's own mother helped to fund years ago.

There was the breath-taking and magnificent party given by Lady Mendon (who used to be famous decorator, Elsie de Wolf) and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks sr., who used to be Lady Sylvia Ashley in London.

Lady Mendon's party used to be the talk of Paris when her husband was British minister there, and she it was whom King Edward VIII chose to redecorate some of the rooms of Buckingham Palace.

This party in Los Angeles, given by the two ladies from England was very exciting. It was an invitation party at five dollars, unless for the lord mayor's fund of London.

One of the waitresses, complete with a small white apron, was Heather Thatcher, the English film star, with whom I crossed the Atlantic last summer. She told me that she had been busy collecting for the British parties ever since she has been here. I had a little talk with Thelma, Lady Furness, who is my across-the-street neighbor in London. She did not realize that a bomb crater now separates the two front doors.

Then I saw my former American dentist from Berlin, who described to me the time he spent since he told me how many of our mutual friends had not escaped and were now interned there.

MARY PICKFORD AUCTIONS HER HAT—Mary Pickford, who was herself at one time the wife of Douglas Fairbanks sr., auctioned off her hat at the party as did Constance Bennett and several other stars.

PLAGUE OF RATS—RATNAGIRI India.—(CP)—Pearing of rats in this district, thousands of persons have been specially inoculated.

The invitation "pay" parties in aid of Britain are quite the thing here. Marquette Harrison Blake, the journalist and writer, who gave a fascinating talk on world affairs to the Los Angeles Junior League, is giving a five-dollar-a-plate lunch party here on March 1 for my pet interest—mobile canneries. I had lunch with her, and we were both the guests of Mrs. Harold Grieve, the former film actress. Jetta Godall of silent film fame, and her husband, who is now in the U.S. Army, are also giving a party of twenty-five dollars a day each. The writer and her husband will contribute to the Los Angeles Junior League, the proceeds of which will go to British war relief funds. My suggestion that it be called The Royal Tour, and patrons be taken over the exact route followed by Their Majesties, met with instant approval.

SIMPLE EXERCISES, DON'T DAILY, KEEP WAIST SLENDER

It is possible, without too much effort, for every woman to keep her waistline slender and supple and her stomach flat. Exercise is the answer.

Here are some efficacious routines: Lie flat on the floor with arms at sides. Without moving shoulders slowly lift legs until they are perpendicular with your body, then lower them just as slowly. Feel your stomach muscles stretch and pull. Repeat the exercise five times the first day, ten the second, fifteen the third, twenty times a day from the fourth day on.

Stand barefooted on tiptoes with arms stretched toward the ceiling. Stretch your body upward as far as possible, trying to touch the ceiling with your hands. Hold for a count of five, then relax and repeat.

Now stand with feet apart and stretch body upward, keeping heels on the floor. Bend slowly to the left as far as possible, to the right then backward. The back bends are most important. If you cannot bend backward without losing your balance, stand near a wall and bend backward until your head touches it. Then straighten your body. Repeat the entire exercise ten times.

Lie flat on your back on the floor with arms at sides. Raise left leg, slowly raise your body to a right leg, then the right leg. Repeat the exercise five times the first day, ten the second, fifteen the third, twenty times a day from the fourth day on.

Now keep ankles together, fold arms on chest and without moving legs, slowly raise your body to a sitting position. Lower it slowly. Repeat ten times. Then unfold arms and relax.

Care of Pigs Farrowed During Winter Months

(Experimental Farms News) Under natural conditions pigs are born during the mild weather in the spring and in the summer months. Thus they benefit from the direct rays of the sun and it is possible for them to root in the soil for minerals essential to normal development. In raising winter litters, therefore, it is necessary that these requirements be supplied. Lack of iron causes the high mortality in young pigs every year and is responsible for delayed maturity of many others. Says M. J. McPhail, Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Station, Melrose, Sask. Symptoms of this trouble are paleness of skin, and frequently the development of a comparative low iron and by the time she has nursed a large family for a few weeks the amount of iron in her milk is greatly reduced. This deficiency cannot be made up by supplying the sow with special feed but must be given direct to the young.

The natural source of iron for pigs is the soil, and that is principally what they are after when rooting. If a little soil is thrown to them every few days anaemia (the condition caused by lack of iron) is not likely to develop. However, iron Clothes moths and carpet beetles may cause damage to furs, woollens, and other fabrics of animal origin, during any season of the year, but the greatest losses from their activities occur during the summer. Accordingly, suitable precautions should be taken as soon as possible in the spring, especially when winter clothing is being put away and will not be used again for some time. Losses from the attacks of these insects can be avoided, but only with foresight and care.

According to information issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, clothing, blankets, and other articles subject to damage should be thoroughly brushed or cleaned before being stored away during the warm weather. Following this, they may be placed in boxes or trunks made as moth-tight and gas-tight as possible by using a few ounces of either one of the substances mentioned. As the fumes are heavier than air the material should be suspended in a closet in the upper part of the bags. In order to retain the fumes and to keep out moths the bags should consist of some fairly impervious material such as heavy brown paper or cellophane.

During the summer, when the family is going on vacation and the house is to be closed for some time, it is wise to scatter naphthalene or paradichlorobenzene liberally over the carpet and carpets, afterwards rolling them slightly and turning them over in stout brown paper. Upholstered furniture may be treated in a similar manner.

Much is heard nowadays of so-called moth-proofing substances. While some of these have definite value, none gives complete and permanent protection under all conditions. A simple and fairly effective preparation for home use may be made by dissolving two ounces of sodium fluoride in one gallon of water. If this is not available a saturated solution of sodium fluoride has considerable merit. When dry, the solution may be used for treating rugs and furniture coverings, providing there is no danger of water damaging the fabrics. It should be applied when cool by means of a sprayer or a sponge, using sufficient to saturate the material. When dry, the slight "bloom" that may appear on the surface is easily brushed off. Sodium fluoride and sodium fluosulfate are poisons and should be handled with due caution.

A free pamphlet on clothes moths and carpet beetles may be obtained on request from the Policy and Extension Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

GLEANINGS FROM STANLEY BRIDGE

The snow does not seem to be getting away very fast; the corner that spring is a mound is still hid by high snow banks.

The sympathy of the community goes out to David Mohoney who lost his house by fire on Saturday last. The fire started by a spark from the flue and was well under way before it was noticed. The fire spread so rapidly that by the time neighbors arrived it was too late to save much of the furniture. It is understood that there is no insurance.

Mr. Stanley Cole has joined the R. C. A. P. and is leaving in a few days to take up his duties in Charlottetown.

The Misses Elva and Evelyn McKay are spending their winter holidays with their mother Mrs. G. S. McKay.

The Flemings store has again opened its doors and reports good business.

His friends are glad to see Dr. J. E. Fleming out and at work again after his illness.

Mr. James Hiscott is spending Easter in Summerside.

Everyone is sorry to hear of the illness of Rev. George Tilly and hope to see him out in the near future.

Sulphate which can be bought at a drugstore, is very cheap and in case the soil may be deficient in iron it is a good practice to dissolve a tablespoonful of this substance in water and sprinkle it over the quantity of soil that would fill a pail before giving the pigs a feed of it. Another method is to give the litter three doses of iron Sulphate or reduced iron on their tongues once a week, commencing when they are a week old. The amount that can be held on a teaspoon piece constitutes a suitable dose. The necessity of supplying winter raised litters with iron in some form cannot be over-emphasized. Prior to weaning, the young ones are not likely to suffer from lack of sunlight, but when no longer receiving the benefit of the mother's milk they should either be exposed to a reasonable amount of direct sunlight or be fed a tablespoonful of cod liver oil each daily.

Pigs that are too closely confined owing to weather conditions are likely to be troubled with constipation. Flax mixed in the ration at the rate of two per cent is a wonderful conditioner and keeps the bowels in a healthy condition.
