The first announcement of the trip will be made when Mrs. Roosevelt arrives in Britain, it was said. Newspapers assured Mrs. Roosevelt she would be a welcome guest. The Daily Mirror published a 1000-word personality sketch from New York entitled "America's Favorite Aunt." The Daily Herald devoted almost as much space to praising the energy of the President's wife. The press reported that Mrs. Roosevelt would meet Prime Minister and Mrs. Churchill and make a study of the part British women are playing in the war. She will come as a private guest of the King and Queen, not as a State visitor, since she has no official status, it was stated.

When you are buying soap, would it not be advisable to insist that soap should be sold with the content and weight marked on the wrapper?

The Administrator of Oils and Fats is not feasible to mark soap on cakes of soap because the water is so untrapped, and the impress of a die on a cake of soap would be in most cases quite illegible.

—I have gone into this question very carefully. All soap has water but the water isn't put into the soap. You have got to have water to make soap, and when it is made it contains about 30 per cent moisture. During the drying out, the soap factories have a tremendous turn over and they haven't the time to allow all the soap to age. The age of the soap depends on what price is going to be paid for it. If you buy a cake of very good toilet soap it is harder and it lasts longer—but you pay accordingly.

Price Control Questions And Answers

Q—Would it not be advisable to insist that soap should be sold with the content and weight marked on the wrapper?

THE COOK'S CORNER

GLAZED COTTAGE ROLL

It isn't necessary to soak a cottage roll. This is first scrubbed with a stiff brush and then covered with cold water and this is brought to the simmering point and is kept at this temperature for the duration of the cooking period. A cottage roll will take about 30 minutes cooking a pound. Cottage rolls cooked at a simmering temperature have a better flavor and are juicier than if the water in which they are cooked is allowed to boil.

After the roll is cooked, if you do not wish to glaze it, allow it to cool in the water in which it was cooked.

To finish with a glaze, remove from the water when the cooking period is up and then score the top as you would with a ham. One of the simplest glazes is effected by covering the surface of the roll with white sugar and sprinkling cinnamon over it. Whole cloves could be used in place of the cinnamon desired. Place the prepared roll in a fairly hot oven (425 deg. F.) and bake until the glaze is dark enough. This will take from 15 to 20 minutes.

AFTERNOON DRESSES

The return of the afternoon dress is a style which has been widely accepted. Because it is natural that women who wear practical suits or uniforms or overalls by day will want to dress up at night very formal little dresses have been conceived. These are in stiff fabrics or soft silks or woolsens. They are enriched by veils or sequins and most of their interest is above the table as a good little restaurant dress should be.

DICKIES ARE SMASH HIT IN NEW MODE

They saved needed goods, they're quicker to press, they're easy to wash, and fast when you dress. For any number of years, dickets, as because substitutes, have enjoyed a casual and desultory success, but this year they're the smash hit in the accessory field. They have many advantages. They can be made very easily by anyone with the faintest knowledge of what to do with a needle and a pair of scissors; they can be made from easily handied fabrics that can be rinsed frequently in rich soaps that give the whitest wash; and they create a well-groomed appearance when worn with sweaters, suits and sportswear on any or all occasions.

In selecting color for the flowers you use to decorate your home, it is well to remember that blue flowers usually go better in a small room while red flowers should be used in a very large room or to accent certain places in a room.

On crisp crackers put small squares of cheese and top with squares of bacon, then broil until bacon is done. These make a delightful snack served with coffee, dickets and olives.

As soon as the tops of the potatoes die down they are ready to be dug up. Some home gardeners prefer to dig them as they are needed for the table rather than to store them in the cellar.

VELVET

NEW YORK—It may be hostesses cannot serve meat for dinners, but velvet is the dinner dress. This year velvet does not mean silk velvet. It means one of the synthetic or velveteen, the poor relation, but often the most attractive members of the rich velvet clan.

You've been shopping lately or reading up on fashion news, you know that velveteen, corduroy, velveteen and all such fabrics are once in a while in demand for the entire or part of the costume.

hovering on the edge for years, have plunged at last into seas of velveteens. Velveteen in their hands means that ostrich is sure to appear with it, lace invariably accents velvet dresses.

Velveteen gown does not need to be garnished with shir. It may be unrelieved, depending on drapery, for instance for its appeal. It may be faced with smooth-appearing sateen in a lovely color, showing only when he wears shoes. Or again, it may be embroidered or decorated with jewel-like beads or glenning nailheads.

Another "You" Wakes in Sleep

Do you know you have two selves?

One is the self everyone knows. The other not even YOU want to know! It thinks thoughts you're ashamed to recognize. It does things you'd never do.

And you can't get rid of it! It wakes when you sleep. It makes you dream of the weirdest, most puzzling things. Riding to work, your train whizzes past your station and the next one and the next one! You're filled with panic!

This is because your secret self, your "subconscious," is wrestling with problems, emotions you ignore. In dreams it tries to tell you about them, using its own strange, symbolic language.

"In the dream of the train it says: 'Don't let your impulses run away with you!' If you've been attracted to someone else's beau, that is an obvious warning!

So is a dream of wandering in an empty, dreary world—or a dream of a burning house.

Our 32-page booklet explains many such common dreams and dream symbols—according to psychoanalysis, including flying, falling off cliffs, being seen naked. Discusses sex dreams, nightmares, "phobic" dreams.

Dorothy Dix Says—

MOTHER PITIED, WIFE IGNORED AS HUSBAND LEAVES FOR WAR

Reader Asks Which Of The Two Is Entitled To The More Sympathy

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband and I have been married only a few years, which have been very happy ones. We have no children and have lived for each other. Now he is to enter the army, but his mother gets all the sympathy instead of me. People tell me that what I have to suffer is a big compare to what she has to go through.

My mother-in-law has her husband and other sons and daughters. I have only my memories. Her home is left intact. Mine is broken up. Who is hurt the more, mother or wife, when the man they both love is in the war? Which one is entitled to the more sympathy? LONELY.

ANSWER—The famed psychologist, Doctor Richard Brinkner, discussing this subject recently, said that if women had to decide whether to give up their husbands or their sons to the army, their choice would be unpredictable. "Women," he declared, "do tend to shift the emphasis to the son than to the husband for, after all, the woman has made the son. She has invented or adopted her husband. But I am convinced that in most homes one good-bye would be as hard as the other."

That is about the conclusion I think most of us have reached, after witnessing the different attitudes women take toward their men being in the army. All depends upon the individual woman and her relations to her husband and sons. Some women, says the old proverb, are all wives. Others are all mothers. Which class they belong to will determine whether they would rather send their husbands, or their sons, out to defend their country.

PROBABLY FEARS MORE FOR SON

In any case, it must tear the heart out of a woman to see either the husband or the son she loves go forth to face the danger and death that she fears and that she has protected her for so many years and with whom she has so many memories in common, then the son who is a part of herself, even she cannot tell. Probably she is more afraid for her son than she is for her husband and worries over him more, for no mother's son ever grows up to her. He is always the little boy whom she feels she has to watch over.

But why should you or any other woman whose men have gone to war, seek to assuage your grief with the pity of others? Why should you want to weep on other woman's shoulders? Why should you feel "poor-married?" Sympathy is nothing but dope. It doesn't cure your suffering, it merely reminds you for the time being, because it gives you an exalted martyr feeling. But when you realize that you are a woman whose home you are left with your loneliness your fears, your anxiety clutching at your heart just as they were before.

Don't ask for pity. Brace up and meet life as courageously as home as your husband is doing on the battle front so busy with war work you won't have time ever to be sorry for yourself.

AN IDIOTIC PLAN

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My fiance and I have planned for months to be married at Christmas. Now we can no longer be sure that he will be married at Christmas, as he may be called by the draft. And what we are wondering is this:

Why can't we just slip away and be married? Then, if he isn't called, we could have the formal marriage at the holiday season, and no one need be the wiser. What's your frank opinion about this? PAM AND PHIL.

ANSWER—My frank opinion is that it is an idiotic plan. Why two other intelligent people, who are old enough to know better, want to involve themselves in all the complexities and lies of a secret marriage when there isn't the slightest reason for it, passes all understanding.

A secret marriage never stays secret. Somebody always blabs. And if you went to the ends of the earth, somebody would blab you in the Marriage License Bureau whom you haven't seen for twenty years, and say "Hi, Bill and Sally! What are you doing here?" And some nosy neighbor would observe that although a secret marriage may be just as honorable as one performed in church, with all your friends and enemies looking on, nobody ever believes in the validity of a predated marriage certificate.

If you are ready to marry, why don't you carry out your plan of going to the parson and being married, with just a few friends to see the knot tied? You don't have to have a show wedding to make it legal, but you have to have a marriage that publicly recognizes that you are man and wife to make it respectable.

For my part, I think that the quiet wedding is preferable. Getting married is the most solemn act of one's life. I have never been able to see why a man and woman wanted to call in a lot of strangers to see them take the vows that mean happiness or misery.

IN LOVE WITH MARRIED SOLDIER

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a girl of 23, deeply in love with a married man who is serving in the army overseas. He says he loves me and asks me to wait for him. What should I do? SHIRLEY.

ANSWER—I think you should quit being a party to breaking up another woman's home and making her husband find her and half-orphaning little children. The girl who has an affair with a married man gambles with her chances for any happiness and security in life.

In the first place, the man who isn't faithful to his wife is seldom faithful to any other woman. He is an evildoer and a scoundrel. He has no notion of getting a divorce from his wife, because she is a protection to him in his life affairs. He hides behind her skirt, and when his current love insists on marriage he tells her his wife hangs on to him with a death grip.

Many a girl sees her youth and good looks vanish while she is waiting and waiting for a married lover to give her the wedding ring that never materializes.

Time and distance are apt to blur the image of any woman in a fickle man's heart. New experiences and other women make him forget. So I'd say that waiting for a married man to come back to you, and divorce his wife, and make good, would be hopeless.
