I tried medicines I saw advertised, and was treated by doctors but the Rheumatism always came back.

In 1916, I saw in an advertisement that "Fruit-a-tives" would stop Rheumatism and took a box, and got relief; then took "Fruit-a-tives" right along for about six months and I have never felt my Rheumatism since".

METHODIST CHURCH SERVICES—At the morning and evening services in the Methodist Church yesterday Rev. J. F. Denny preached very acceptably. Magnificent music was furnished by the choir which in the evening was augmented by the addition of Mr. Chas. Earle, who sang a solo with violin and organ obligate. There was a large attendance at both services.

WAR SOUVENIRS—The window of Jenkins & Sons was on Saturday decorated with appropriate war souvenirs in commemoration of St. Julien Day. They were brought home by Sgt. Spurgeon Jenkins and included a uniform worn by a German medical student, German caps and helmets, revolvers, saw bayonet, piece of wood from British aeroplane propeller, etc.

AT THE VICTORIA—Those present at the Victoria Hotel yesterday for dinner were treated to some splendid solos, Mr. Farnell of Amherst and, Mr. Scharrr of Kitchener, Ont., rendered beautiful solos, also a duet "Lead Kindly Light" by Messrs Farnell and Scharrr was delightful. Mr. H. R. Rowland of Toronto, treated the guests to several violin selections and received warm applause. The Casino Orchestra under the direction of Mr. A. Blanchard was as usual up to the minute with a good program. The menu was one of the hotel's standards which was nicely served, reflects much credit upon the chef, Mr. G. T. Crawford, who is an artist in that work. The management are to be complimented upon the splendid efforts they make to give the guests of the Hotel a pleasant week end.

A TROPICAL WONDERLAND

ITS ROMANCE AND ITS RACES

By Rev. J. F. Denny, Souris

It was very many years ago more than I care to think about, that Chas. Kingsley's "Westward Ho" came into my boyish hands. Most of you will have read that stirring tale of sixteenth century adventure whose wide stage was laid in and around the waters of the Spanish main. You will remember the author's vivid description of those lands of mystery and romance. You can recall the thrill with which you followed in the hero's footsteps as he plunged into the depths of the wonderful forests in and around the basin of that, most mysterious of South American rivers, the Orinoco. In the tract of country to the South east of the Orinoco, wedged in between Venezuela and Brazil lies Guiana. The word is of Indian origin meaning the "wild coast". It is in this region we find the "Tropical Wonderland" the subject of our lecture. Among all the names which became famous in the spacious days of Elizabeth of England, there are a few which shine with a peculiar glory. Their chivalry and their courage capture our admiration. Drake, Raleigh, Gilbert, Frobisher, Sidney, Spencer. What a shining band they are. Walter Raleight is the most fascinating of them all and the most tragic. Warrior, poet, historian, explorer. He discovered Virginia and later in life he saw the South American coast, and somewhere around 1595 he rediscovered Guiana. Like so many of his contemporaries, he was dazzled by dreams of "El Dorado" the fabled city of gold supposed to be somewhere in the interior of South America. Hidden in the heart of the forest, guarded by impregnable mountains were the cities whose streets were of gold and whose dwellings were decorated with rare and precious stones. It is really astonishing how in all ages men have seen visions which sent them over the tumbling seas in the timiest of crafts, and lured them up the waters of many an unknown river in the hope of finding the El Dorado of their heart's desire. The soul of man is always seeking. Its truest earthly home is ever just over the horizon. So Raleigh sought the fabled city. All he brought back was a little bit of quartz and a chunk of mahogany. We know the sequel how he was sent on another final and disastrous expedition, how broken and disappointed he came home only to die on the scaffold, saying as he composed himself for the final blow:—"What matter how the head lie if the heart be right." He died without realizing his dreams but sometimes dreams have a way of coming true, for in the region of the city of the explorer's vision there is a land which I believe is destined to put El Dorado to shame. Come with me then to this wonderful land. Taking ship and sailing due south there will come a day or an hour when the climate will change with a really startling suddenness. The wind has its bracing quality. The sun gains in splendour and in strength. The sky is an intense blue. The air is light and warm. There is a new gaiety in the blood. The heart sings. The eyes shine with a deeper brilliancy while life itself has become a thing of infinite jest. We are nearing the tropics, that vast area of sugar and sunshine, of pleasantness and palms and as the sea sparkles in the light, we find ourselves in a vast ocean dotted at great distances by mist crowned islands. This is the Caribbean Sea, those waters of adventure where Drake's and Raleigh's spirits seem to linger still, while later yet, the pirates levied unwilling and often brutal toll on peaceable seagoing folks, while in still more recent days Nelson and Rodney and Howe won victories whose results still abide. It may be early morning when your ship finds itself in these waters of romance. You may be somewhere off St. Vincent a land of eruption and hurricane. Dawn is near yet sea and land are shrouded in grey, when suddenly in a moment as if an enchanter's wand were lifted the sun flames in the heaven, and reveals a scene of unequalled beauty. We are on a sapphire sea. Not a breath stirs the waters. There is hardly the curl of a ripple. The harbor is as a sea of glass. In the midst rises an island rid from shore to summit in living green of a beauty so rare that one longs for the pen of a poet or the magic of the musician to do it justice. This is a West Indian island, a fair land in a rare sea over-arched by a sky almost too glorious to look upon. This, however, is not our particular "Wonderland."

Canon Simpson Memorial

The congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral is making a big attempt to erect a memorial to Canon Simpson, their late Priest Incumbent, who not only served his own Church faithfully, but was deeply interested in the public welfare of this community, for the thirty-five years of his life here.

This memorial is to take the form of the completion of St. Peter's Cathedral.

To erect anything that is to be dignified and in harmony with the rest of the building will entail an expenditure of at least ten thousand ($10,000) dollars.

Believing that there are many members of this community who have not been approached for subscriptions to this object, but who might feel a desire to contribute to anything that was being done as a tribute to the memory of the late Canon Simpson, not only as Incumbent of St. Peter's Cathedral, but as a public man, we are taking this means of bringing the memorial fund to their notice.

Subscriptions may be sent to Mr. E. G. Coombs, Manager of the Bank of Montreal, who is Treasurer of the Fund.

Faithfully yours,

W. F. TIDMARSH,
Chairman General Committee.

And we are sitting all alone,
To our hearthe there comes a longing
If he only could come home.
Oft and oft our thoughts wander,
To a grave not far away,
Where we laid our darling Lyman,
