IN MEMORIAM

JOHNSTON— In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Clair Johnston, who passed away, November 29, 1963.
God knows how much we miss him,
Never shall his memory fade,
Loving thoughts shall ever wander,
To the spot where he is laid.
Sadly missed by his wife and family.

JENKINS — In loving memory of Cecil Minto Jenkins born May 14th 1902, passed away on November 29th 1963.
For everything there is a season,
and a time for every matter under Heaven.
A time to be born, and a time to die, a time to plant, and a time to pluck up what is planted.
A time to kill and a time to heal, a time to breakdown and a time to build up.
A time to weep and a time to laugh, a time to mourn and a time to dance
A time to cast away stones and a time to gather stones together, a time to embrace and a time to refrain from embracing.
A time to seek and a time to lose, a time to keep and a time to cast away.
A time to rend and a time to sew, a time to keep silence and a time to speak.
A time to love and a time to hate, a time to war and a time for peace.
What gain has the worker from his toil?
I have seen the business that God has given to the sons of men to be busy with.
R.S.V.
Lovingly remembered by his wife Mary, daughters Arlene and Norma.

Paper Co. Says Newsprint Price To Be Unchanged

MINNEAPOLIS (CP) — Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company announced Wednesday a cut in its newsprint price at this time would be economically unsound

No change is planned despite reductions by Western manufacturers.

In a letter to customers, the firm noted newsprint prices had remained static since 1957, despite quality improvements, costly expansion and rising labor and other costs.

"Altogether the average delivered cost of newsprint has increased substantially during this period," the letter said.

The firm, with pulp and paper plants in northwestern Ontario, supplies users in the Canadian and U.S. midwest.

MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company, the biggest B.C. newsprint producer, cut its price $10 a ton Nov. 18.

In response two of its West Coast competitors cut prices and one small U.S. producer followed suit, but Eastern firms have stood firm.

URGES ATOM-FREE ZONE

ROME (Reuters)—The head of a Chinese Communist peace delegation visiting Italy Friday suggested the establishment of a de-nuclearized Pacific zone including China, Japan, the United States and the Soviet Union. In an interview with the pro - Communist newspaper Paese Sera, Liao Chen-chih said all countries, large and small, should meet to discuss agreement to destroy all nuclear arms.

TOT ON A HOT LINE

Four-year-old Robin Hannah of Toronto shows how she made a call to Washington and Colorado Springs last summer. However, she used a special telephone to make the call-her grandfather's "hot line." Grandfather is Prime Minister Pearson and the "hot line" is a direct link from his Ottawa residence to Washington and NORAD headquarters. Mr. Pearson interrupted to call and assured those on the other end of the line that all was well. (CP Wirephoto)

Vignault Termed Genii Risen From Cultural Lamp Of Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — Gilles Vigneault, the lean, wispy-haired bard of Sept Glas-rerence, is probably the most Canada today.

A genii who rose from the magic lamp of Quebec's cultural renaissance, he has been many things—from lumberjack to schoolteacher.

But he is famous as a chansonnier — a poet - composer-singer—a tradition in French Canada that during the last few years has become a cult.

"Every school in Quebec has one," Vigneault says, jokingly.

But the 36 - year - old artist from Natashquan is their unchallenged king.

Vigneault is tall and gaunt. His hands are large and so is his nose. His singing voice leave much to be desired, and he's the first to admit it.

But he is a master of mime, timing and dramatic nuance. When he sings he jigs, clowns, shouts, then breaks into a moving love ballad. He writes the words and music for all his songs.

His power is his personal warmth and "vrai habitant" quality. One writer called him the most authentic French-Canadian on the entertainment scene today. At times he seems to be acting out the lonely lives of his backwoods characters.

Vigneault in conversation invariably wanders back to the sleepy north - shore village where he was born, where he returns each summer, and where the outlandish characters in his whimsical songs are real people.

He attributes his popularity to his message. He is essentially a poet and has been writing since he was 12.

(He's also editor and publisher of Emourie, an annual poetry review he founded in 1953 while studying at Laval University, has published three books of poetry and expects to publish a book of short stories in February.)

"I sing because I have something to say. I tell the Quebecer what he wants to tell himself—that he exists, that he has a special way of life, ha, he's rooted to the soil of Quebec."

His verse reveals him as a socialist, pacifist and independist—"not the same as being a separatist."

"If we're obliged to separate to be independent — economically and spiritually—then we will. But I'd prefer not to separate."

To Vigneault, independence doesn't mean economic domination by French-Canadian capitalists in preference to "les Anglais" now ruling St. James Street.

"Capitalists are a nationality all their own."

DETESTS WAR

He detests war of any kind and adds sardonically that "money makes way."

"I've sold my fir tree for a street lamp

"I've sold the salmon and even the river

"To some English millionaires

"And I've learned by selling so much

"That without my birthright

"I'm a servant again."

So go the words of one of his ballads.

Off stage, Vigneault is sympathetic and unassuming. Talking to a reporter, he became absorbed in drawing a map of the St. Lawrence north short showing its dozens of tiny villages, among them Natashquan, opposite Anticosti Island.

From this isolated country come the heroes of Vigneault's songs. They're often giants—lumberjacks, fishermen and stevedores with such names as Caillou la Pierre, Joe Hebert and John Debardeur.

Vigneault insists his material isn't folklore. "Folklore is what existed in the past. This exists today."

Another giant, Jos Monferrant, has a special importance.

'SHUT UP AND SING'

Four years ago Vigneault decided to "change direction" in his life. He opened a boîte de chanson in Quebec where he featured guests singers and recited his own monologues. One night someone in the audience shouted, "Shut up and sing a song."

"That was Aug. 5, 1960," he recalls "I was very apprehensive because I haven't much of a voice."

But he sang his only song, Jos Monferrant, and was an instont success.

Now he sings to packed houses wherever he goes. recently he had a weeklong engagementR at Montreal's Theatre Comedie Canadienne, a rare booking for a solee nterrtainer, ond tickets were sold out long in advance.

Jos is a lumberjack seven feet tall. "I compare him to a poet. He talks with the clouds. He's alone because of his size."

Jos tells a lonely boy in the song:

"One day you'll feel the eorth turning under you. . .
"And you'll understand clouds. . .
"And, my little boy, you'll be alone there."

Vigneault admits Jos may be an exaggeration of himself.

"I became a giant without growing an inch. I realized I had the soul of a giant because I was alone. . . I've been all the people in my songs. I know what they did. I fished, I trapped, I was a lumberjack, a docker—and a little boy."

Four Canadian Nuns Are Safe

OTTAWA (CP)—Four Canadian nuns, reported safe after being held hostage by Congolese rebels in the Stanleyville area, will leave Leopoldville Saturday, the provincial house of the Sister of Wisdom said here.

The nuns are: Sister Montford de la Croix (family name Ida Michaudi of St. Quentin, N.B.; Sister Stanislas (Huguette Vallette) of Gatineau, Que.; Sister Anne de Ste. Marie (Alberta Werbeist) of Eastview, Ont.; and Sister Susanne de Notre Dame (Susanne Beaudry) of Chelmsford, Ont.

They will go to Rome first. Exact date of their return to Canada was not announced.

There was no word about three other nuns, still being held hostage by the rebels. They are Sister Yvonne du Bon Pasteur (Jeanette Vezina) of Montreal; Sister Marie Gaston (Donia Bedard) of Notre Dame de la Paix, Que.; and Sister Thecle de Marie (Marie - Claire Carrier) of Edmundston, N.B.
