Senators Express Doubts Over Divorce Judge Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Conservative senators have expressed strong reservations about a government bill providing for an additional judge on the Exchequer Court of Canada, who would hear divorce petitions from Quebec and Newfoundland.

Senators Allister Grosart and David Walker, both of Toronto, said the measure seems like the thin edge of the wedge that will eventually sap the Senate's power to grant divorces and annulments.

This assertion was denied by the bill's sponsor, Senator Arthur Roebuck (L — Ontario), chairman of the divorce committee, colleagues. Senators F. W. Germittee, and two of his Liberal colleagues, Senators F. W. Gershaw (Alberta) and J. W. Deb. Farris (British Columbia).

The Liberals said the new exchequer judge would not issue decrees but merely make recommendations to the Senate. The Upper Chamber would retain final say in approving or rejecting divorce petitions.

The bill did not receive second reading—approval in principle — and debate was adjourned to next Tuesday.

Senator Grosart said there is no evidence the government officially consulted the provinces of Quebec and Newfoundland before proceeding with its legislation, passed by the Commons earlier.

MIGHT BE OBJECTIONS

These provinces might object to the changes in divorce procedures affecting their residents. Quebec and Newfoundland are the only provinces without provincial divorce courts.

He said the government might move in the future to take divorce cases entirely out of the Senate and set up divorce courts in Quebec and Newfoundland.

By coincidence, a group of 18 Roman Catholic nuns sat in the public gallery when the divorce debate opened. They left en masse shortly afterwards with a group of school children.

Senator Roebuck said the bill makes no substantive changes in a Divorce Act passed last summer. This act provided for the appointment of a Senate divorce commissioner, and took divorce cases out of the Commons' hands.

A similar bill was killed by then government leader Senator W. Ross Macdonald last Dec. 31, the last day of the 1963 session, after being passed by the Commons. Several senators complained then they objected to rushing an important bill through at the last minute.

Later Thursday, he Sena brough at the last minute

Later Thursday, the Senate passed 26 more divorce resolutions. This brought to 280 the total approved this session.

Quoddy Project Said Feasible In Every Way

AUGUSTA, Me. (AP)—A U.S. interior department engineer said that latest studies show that the $1,000,000,000 proposed Canada - U.S. Passamaquoddy tidal power project and St. John River development are feasible in every way.

Joseph E. Guidry, project engineer for the Quoddy-St. John proposals, told a conference called by Maine Governor John H. Reed that a "sound document embracing all aspects of the projects" will be published soon.

"We are convinced that Quoddy is a sound project," Guidry told about 150 persons at the talks.

John W. Leslie, of the U.S. Army, said the projected charge for Quoddy electricity would cover all costs, including depreciation, except for about 10 per cent of construction cost allocated to flood control and recreation.

Thomas Sturtevant of Augusta asked how it was that some of the southern Appalachian region which has extensive public power and flood control has been designated by President Johnson as a poverty area.

Maine development commissioner Standish K. Bachman replied that major portions of those areas have had "tremendous economic growth" although there are pockets of poverty within the same states.

FAVORS ANOTHER SITE

State Senator Edward P. Cyr (Rep. Madawaska), who favors St. John River development at a different site, with or without Quoddy, said the only reason the Dickey site was picked was to save the Allagash area from flooding.

Representative Sumner T. Pike (Rep. Lubec), chairman of the governor's committee on Passamaquoddy - St John development, said he understands there could be no federal project if it involved flooding the allagash.

Governor Reed, in opening the meeting, said the outcome of the Quoddy-St. John legislation will affect the lives of everyone in Maine and New England. All such proposals in the past have been controversial and complex, he said.

"But controversy in itself is not a bad thing," he said. "It prompts debate. It prompts thought, it contributes to public awareness and understanding of the issues involved."

Mayor Enters Pants Fight

HAMILTON (CP) — Mayor Vic Copps has announced he's ready to fight to keep long pants off Percy.

The mayor said he is intrigued by the banning of Percy Leggett Hamilton's self-styled "oldest beatnik" from the midtown senior centre.

Percy can stay, centre officials say, if only he climbs into long pants — and tosses aside his flapping shorts, his yellow undershirt and his big black boots.

Percy, 72, says he's too old to change his ways.

He called on the mayor Wednesday to protest but Mayor Copps was at a meeting Thursday, however. Mayor Copps said he'll be in touch with centre officials to see if Percy can be reinstated — shorts, shirt and all.

"I'm sympathetic," said the mayor. "After all, Percy is one of our better tourist attractions."

And you just don't go around covering up monuments.

Opening lead — jack of diamonds.

The tide of battle ebbs and flows in many hands. These fluctuations frequently make the outcome uncertain, but, finally, one side or the other scores the telling blow.

Look at this hand, for example, certainly when a dummy came down. South had every reason to expect to make the contract. But when he took the opening lead with the ace of diamonds and cashed the ace of spades, East showed out and the prospects of making the slam suddenly became dim. Apparently South had to lose a spade and a diamond.

But declarer played on and eventually made the contract. He cashed the A-K of hearts and ruffed a heart, and next cashed the A-K of clubs and ruffed a club. After he then played the king of diamonds, this became the position:

Declarer now led the eight of hearts and trumped with the queen. West discarding the ten of diamonds. South then exited with the nine of diamonds, which West was forced to ruff. West had to return a trump, holding the J-9, and South made the last two tricks with the ten and king of spades to bring home the slam.

However, West should have defeated the contract. The trump endplay he ran into was of his own making and he should have seen it coming. All he had to do to avoid it was ruff with the seven of spades on the trick when South ruffed the eight of hearts with the queen.

The deliberate underruff would have rendered South helpless, since he would have to lose two tricks regardless of what he did next.
