Few Dark Spots Foreseen In '67 Business Outlook

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Some top businessmen peered at the economic outlook for 1967 Wednesday and found only a few smudges on their rose-colored glasses.

In papers prepared for a forum at the University of Toronto's business school, most indicated they expect some slowdown from the rapid growth of recent years with a continuation of many of this year's troubles.

But they also predicted an over-all rise of about seven per cent in Canada's gross national product—the total value of all goods and services produced in Canada.

That would raise it to a record $61,500,000,000. It would, however, be below the increase achieved this year, now expected to be 10 or 10½ per cent.

Difficulties many of the executives expect to continue through 1967—and to lead to the slowdown — include inflationary pressures, a squeeze on corporate profits because of rising material and labor costs, shortages of skilled workers in some industries, international balance of payments and labor-management relations.

SHORTAGE TO CONTINUE

They also forecast a continuing shortage of capital, with some easing likely as the government relaxes restraints to keep the slowdown from becoming a downturn.

Economist J. W. Popkin of the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Montreal forecast a 7½-per-cent gain in the GNP, but 3½ per cent would come from rising prices.

He does not reject the possibility that the significant slowing in economic activity earlier this year means a peak has been reached in the business cycle, but added he prefers to interpret it as a sign that resources of labor, industry and capital were stretched to their limit at that time.

John S. Dewar, president of Union Carbide Canada Ltd., suggested price increases will account for three per cent of his forecast of a 6.3-per-cent gain in the GNP.

"Even this rather modest increase will depend on some easing of current monetary and fiscal restraints and, of course, is premised on no major political or financial upheavals on the international scene."

EXPECTS RECORD

Armand Trottier of Quebec City, president of the Canadian Construction Association, forecast that construction spending will rise in 1967 to a record $12,000,000,000 from an estimated $11,200,000,000 this year.

Demand continues strong in all categories and the dip in housing starts this year resulted from a shortage of mortgages rather than from a lack of customers, he said.

H. M. Griffith, president of the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. at Hamilton, said he expects steel consumption in Canada next year to be about 11,300,000 tons, slightly under the estimated 11,600,000 tons in 1966.

Mr. Griffith repeated earlied statements that Stelco is continuing to review its pricing policy, despite rolling back a proposed increase in September after federal government intervention.

"If demands remain at a high level for steel mill products and profits continue to drop due to the cost-price squeeze, the only alternative the industry will have will be to increase prices."

A. D. Hamilton, president of B.C. Forest Products Ltd. of Vancouver, said the short-term prospects for the pulp and paper industry are continued operation at near capacity in all sectors except possibly market pulp.

"Price levels will probably be maintained. However, profit margins will be under pressure and are not likely to be as good as in the last several years."

R. H. Waddington, senior vice-president of International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd., said the mining industry can look forward to a high level of activity in 1967.

J. F. Redmond, executive vice-president of Shell Canada Ltd., said petroleum production in 1967 should rise five per cent over this year. That would compare with an eight-per-cent increase recorded this year, raising production to more than 1,000,000 barrels a day for the first time.

Candidates In Ottawa Are Young

OTTAWA (CP)—It's a battle of the young politicians in the Dec. 5 voting to pick a new mayor for Canada's capital.

Mayor Don Reid, 40, is fighting to retain his $16,200-a-year post with Rev. Don Stirling, 33, providing the main effort to unseat him.

But a high-interest sidelight on municipal election day will centre on veteran Charlotte Whitton, 70, spinster mayor of the capital for five terms who is staging a comeback effort by running for alderman.

In recent speeches, Mr. Reid has started to shoot back at Mr. Stirling's charges of poor administration and mismanagement. He describes them as "scurrilous innuendo" and stresses that Mr. Stirling has no experience in administration.

Mr. Stirling, a United Church minister and unsuccessful New Democrat candidate in the 1965 federal election, replies that advancing through the ranks of civic government turns people into political prisoners.

Mr. Reid piled up an impressive 43,991 votes in 1964 to upset Miss Whitton and the late Frank Ryan — a radio station owner and Miss Whitton's brother-in-law.

Other candidates for mayor are John Kroeker, 37, who jumped into the campaign in the last two weeks, touting himself as the "best available candidate" and A. Lucien Dube.

Welfare Education Difficult

OTTAWA (CP) — Education for social work is hard to plan because schools don't know what kinds of graduates are needed, speakers told the Conference on Manpower Needs in the Field of Social Welfare.

About 150 senior welfare officials are attending the conference, sponsored by the Association of Universities and Colleges. The three-day meeting ends today.

Professor John Morgan of the University of Toronto school of social work said "people in the welfare field were shouting for staff, but they don't know what they want and what they want doesn't exist."

Social workers were in "short supply," though no systematic survey had determined how many were needed.

Professor Shaun Govenlock of the University of Manitoba school of social work said in an address that the shortage of workers was "massive." There was an "almost total absence of data" for determining the kinds of workers the welfare establishment needed.

He said if undergraduate schools of social work were started at Canadian universities they might graduate about 200 students in 1970-71, with 78 going directly into employment.
