INDIAN UNCLE LEAVES NEPHEW $1,000,000

(Canadian Press)

OCEANSIDE, Long Island, Sept. 5. Samuel Cocks, a house painter, is waiting with an expectancy which is partly a heritage from his Sioux mother and partly the wisdom born of eight rather turbulent years in the Marine Corps for further evidence that he has inherited $1,000,000.

A few days ago Mr. Cocks received a number of formidable appearing legal documents from a firm of lawyers in Butte, Mont., advising him that his uncle, Black Foot, an Indian had died and that Mr. Cocks was his sole heir. The lawyers said that a representative would be sent to Oceanside with $5,000 cash to betray the expenses of Mr. Cocks on a trip west to inspect his property and comply with legal formalities.

"The old man had a million all right," said Mr. Cocks without any great show of enthusiasm, "and he was old enough to die. But as to whether he is really dead and whether I really am his heir, all I know is what a bundle of papers say. They say he's dead and that his property is mine, I'll begin to believe it when I start counting the money."

His uncle, he said, lived in Montana, and had a sheep ranch there. He also, said Mr. Cocks, owned old land in Texas and considerable property in California. It was Mr. Cocks' judgement that his uncle's estate probably would exceed $1,000,000.

Mr. Cocks was a marine for eight years and was wounded five times. He was in Russia in 1917 and was a member of the escort of Grand Duke Michael. He has seen stranger things than a fortune going to a house painter, but while broad-minded in general, as to miracles he is somewhat skeptical of those which he does not see himself. He is married and has four children and lives in a small bungalow.

tell of the work of these organizations include Miss Hazel McCain superintendent of Quebec Women's Institutes, Miss Estelle La Blanc of the Cercles de Femmes, and Miss B. Philip of MacDonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue and Mrs. E. W. Pratt of Cookshire, president of the Quebec W. I.'s.

The Maritimes are represented only by Nova Scotia which has sent the good ship "W. I. N. S." or "Women's Institutes of Nova Scotia." Each graceful unfurled sail bears the name of one of the many activities, better laws, handicrafts, Canadianization, etc.

Perhaps fifty per cent. of the chic lies in the wearing of the costume and fifty per cent. in the costume itself. Separate fur scarfs are to be a factor of the fall mode. In the vogue illustrations above are seen in (1) a scarf of black breitschwanz worn with a coat dress crossed in front and with one end tucked un-

WIDE VARIETY SPICE OF ART EXHIBITION

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 5.—(Written for The Canadian Press by Jeanette Bietry Salinger)—The public opening of the Canadian Art Show at the National Exhibition marks an important milestone in the art life of the country. The whole Dominion is represented with six of the provinces the more prominent and much may be found to gratify artists and those who believe in the personality of Canadian art.

For the first time in its half-century history the art section of the C.N.E. has assembled a thousand works including paintings in oils and water colors, black and whites and sculpture.

Five of the rooms of the art pavilion have been hung with pictures which offer the most interesting panoramas of Canadian country and life. Giving relief to this display are some 32 pieces of sculpture by Quebec and Ontario artists which represent various phases of plastic development.

More than 1770 small pictures describe the express in an intimate manner what the more ambitious paintings have attempted on a larger scale. Four hundred and fifty prints represent the art of etching, wood engraving, lino cutting and lithography. Here, as in other sections of the exhibition, the entire Dominion is represented.

The artists who make the most important contribution to the prints' room are H. Eric Bergman of Manitoba, who has a strong group of wood blocks both in black and white and in color.

George Broomfield of Toronto, with his imaginative ghost trees and two other lino blocks; Rody Kenney Courtice, with her delightfully naive aquatints, pleasing though a trifle clumsy. Clarence Gasnon, Arline Genevex, Katherine Gray, Edwin Holgate, Ivan Nelson, all from the province of Quebec, all contribute refreshing works to the exhibition. W. J. Phillips, Winnipeg, has the largest group of prints. Some of Mr. Phillips' work is merely descriptive but all of it is characterized by a zest which is stimulating. He delves into humor and he enters the field of lyric and romance with his "White Wilderness" and "Dying Pines."

Mary Winch of Toronto, has a fine collection of flower studies in colored wood blocks and Wm. P. Deston of British Columbia, give valuable impressions of totem poles of the coast.

FRENCH-CANADIAN NOTE

The water colors which are shown in the Graphic Arts Building, together with photographic prints and a collection of photographs contributed by the Toronto Chapter of the Ontario Association of Architects, have been selected from the most important annual shows held throughout the country last year. Some of the best work in this medium is by Chas. Comfort of Toronto who has two delicate figure studies in this collection, Frank Carmichael and A. J. Casson both of whom are also Ontario artists and prominently known for their aquatints; Paul Caron of Quebec who brings a genuine note of French-Canadianism to the show with his colloquial style; Paul Alfred with his interesting tempera of a small hotel in a little Canadian town; F. H. Bridgen who has a poetical brush; F. H. McGillivray of Ottawa who contributes the most interesting stud-

ALL COMEDY BILL AT THE PRINCE EDWARD Will Cross Canada By Motorcar Soon

William Haines, who has provided many thrills as a football player, polo star, and in other fields of athletic endeavor, appears as a fast-riding cowboy in his latest comedy romance, "Way Out West," now playing at the Prince Edward Theatre.

He serves an hilarious apprenticeship learning to be a Westerner, and his adventures with bucking horses, cactus, cows and other things evolve much comedy. But when the love story begins, and he has actually learned to be a Westerner the thrills get fast and furious, and some very real drama is mixed with the whimsicalities of the tale.

Read Western riders mingle with comedians in the ensemble at the ranch. Cliff Edwards is irresistible as the ukulele-playing, singing cow puncher, with a love affair with Polly Moran, who appears as the ranch cook. On the other hand Buddy Roosevelt, Jack Pennick and Jay Wiseley, noted for roles in other Western pictures, provide thrills of horsemanship, and figure in the exciting battle Haines fights in the old pueblo.

The locales are especially interesting. New Mexico's ancient pueblos, homes of the Hopi Indians, are used for much of the action of the play, and a famous Western cattle ranch provides other locales. Leila Hyams plays the heroine, as the girl ranch boss and Charles B. Middleton plays her brother, foreman of the ranch. Francis X. Bushman, Jr., gives a clever performance as Haines' rival for the love of the girl.

The dramatic highlights include the fight between Haines and Bushman, the vivid gun battle in the pueblo, the comical routine wheel episode in the circus, with Vera Marsh as the dancing charmer, the hilarious lynching attempt, and the vivid rescue scene when Haines saves Miss Hyams from the result of a rattlesnake bite.

Haines proves himself an expert horseman, as he did in his polo picture, "The Smart Set," and amid the comedy are many interesting dramatic episodes and a very pretty love story. The picture is one that shows the comedian at his very best.

Doris: "Tell me Marge, is Basil a good driver?" Marge: "No, awful, he needs both hands to drive." A woman with a mission is seldom able to prepare a meal that is fit to eat.
