SALMON PROVE EXPERTS WRONG

VANCOUVER (CP) Some pampered salmon at the University of British Columbia are living to a ripe old age despite a scientife theory that they should be dead.

Scientists at the university have succeeded in maturing two varieties of commercial salmon, pinks and chums, in fresh water.

Dr. William Hoar, professor of zoology and fisheries, confesses: "I've been writing for 10 years or more that pinks and chums could not survive indefinitely in fresh water—now I have to eat my own words."

The fish, raised from eggs gathered in 1960, survived on a special diet of commercial trout food fed to them three times a day in open pools.

James Morrison suffered an injury to his eye while cutting wood some time ago, and underwent a successful operation in Moncton. Mr. Morrison is a painter by trade.

The first hockey battle in the new rink is slated for Monday night when our boys take on Souris Senior team of the new league. A bumper crowd is expected for the battle we have so long waited for. Many of us recall the rink days of half a century ago when this village had such "greats" as A. Murphy, C. McEwen, Ern Rossiter, Ralph Dingwell, Layton Coffin and Bill Ryan. Special trains with hand music from the city made this village ring with excitement. A few of the "greats" of that long, long ago team are still with us. But the late Bruce MacEwen and Lloyd Cox who served faithfully and well as timer and referee, are sorely missed from the rink of today. This new rink is the third for the village since the turn of the century.

Fast and fancy skaters have come and gone in this vicinity through the years, but Stannis Lapierre, who still resides here will tell you the record of his brother, the great John Lapierre, who skated from St. Andrews, to Charlottetown, eighteen miles in fifty five minutes, on his old home-made stock skates, more than sixty years ago. This record never has been broken.

The first of May seems quite a distance off, but fishermen have already started building traps for the new season. A smoke can be seen curling from pipes stuck out windows and roofs of out-buildings used for the purpose, while others do the work in their home basement. Several hardy folks remain at the shore all winter, in their winterized houses.

Farmers and those here, who have wood and lumber to haul, state this is one of the best winters for working in the woods. One old timer says it's the best winter ever for the business.

With the rabbit hunting season coming to a close this month, some hunters inform us no matter what Mr. Jenkins says its been a poor season. One expert gunner who always got his limit at the sport, informs us he never got one this season, despite his dogs and a lot of wandering.

A city hunter, Kelsey Burhoe, tells us this is the first season he has never got one rabbit, in his many years shooting, and Kelsey is no mean shot in the game world and we know if he doesn't get his limit there are certainly none around.

The bidding:

1♣	2♣	2♦	Pass
2♠	Pass	3♠	Pass
4♠

Opening lead — king of clubs.

The obligatory finesse is a play used by declarer to gain a trick which he would otherwise surely lose.

As an example, look at the North-South spade holdings in this hand. The normal way for declarer to manage this holding is to lead a low spade towards the queen in dummy.

Let's assume that the queen holds the trick, thus marking West with the ace. Declarer then returns a spade from dummy and East produces the ten or the jack.

It would be wrong for South now to put on the king because the king would lose to the ace and South would later have to lose another spade trick. Instead, South plays low, hoping that West was dealt the A-x originally and will be forced to play the ace on his partner's ten or jack. This is the finesse obligatory, and when the cards are well placed for the declarer, it gains him a trick.

The defense can sometimes apply a countermeasure to the obligatory finesse. Here is a hand of that type. South is declarer at four spades and West cashes the A-K of clubs and continues with the queen.

If South is allowed to go about his business uninterruptedly, he will, as we have seen, lose only a trump trick and thus make the contract.

But if the defense functions perfectly, South is defeated. When West leads the queen of clubs, East ruffs with the ten, even though it would appear to be routine to discard on his partner's high club.

Against this defense South is helpless. He is forced to overruff with the king — otherwise, he is down immediately—and lead a trump towards the queen.

This does him no good because West goes up with the ace and plays the ten of clubs. Dummy has to follow suit, whereupon East once again trumps his partner's high club—this time with the jack — and thus defeats the contract a trick.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
