Construction Men Ask National Road System

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—A national roads system that could be incorporated into a national transportation policy is advocated in a resolution adopted by the annual meeting of the Canadian Construction Association.

The resolution, passed at Wednesday's final business session of the three-day gathering, asks that all levels of government co-operate in the development of such a plan.

It urges the federal government to convene a meeting of federal and provincial government representatives to discuss a federal-provincial roads program.

It suggests formation by such a meeting of an organization that would examine the needs and responsibilities of all governments in connection with road building; and the financial aspects for federal, provincial and municipal governments in the development of an integrated roads system.

IMPEDING OBJECTIVES

Lack of a co-ordinated roads policy, the CCA states, is impeding the realization of a wide range of national objectives.

The roads action was one of 25 resolutions and 15 policy statements adopted Wednesday.

Registering the association's strong objection to the last budget's imposition of the sales tax on construction materials and equipment, a resolution stresses "the urgency" of restoring previous exemptions. It describes the tax, in its construction application, as a tax on capital investment.

A further resolution asks that, where practicable, materials and equipment marked as Canadian-made be used in construction work.

Asked if this resolution is similar to United States proposals in regard to lumber, its sponsors said the American proposal would stipulate that foreign materials be marked as to country of origin, whereas the CA resolution does not ask for foreign identification.

In a general drive for better workmanship the association asks that provincial governments enact "compulsory tradesmen's qualification" legislation if they haven't already done so.

A policy statement on labor relations says:

"The continuing growth of the Canadian economy is dependent on maximum productivity, the training of competent craftsmen and co-operation between labor, management and governments.

A resolution says most labor relations legislation now in force fails to provide adequately for construction industry conditions and is in urgent need of revision.

A resolution on housing says main emphasis should continue to be laid on enabling more and more Canadians to own their own homes.

Donald H. Jupp, president of Pilkington Brothers (Canada) Ltd., Toronto, was elected president for the coming year, succeeding Thomas A. Somerville, vice-president of E. G. M. Cape and Co. Ltd., Toronto.

U.S. Committee Sees Soviet Fishing Threat

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia has amassed the world's largest fleet of modern fishing vessels, which have spread to every ocean and used strong-arm tactics to crowd out other fishermen, a Senate report has said.

The Senate commerce committee viewed this tremendous expansion as a peril to the U.S. fishing industry and a threat to the available supply of fish.

Soviet fishermen were accused of using rough tactics such as hit-and-run collisions, crowding out other fishermen with trawler flotillas, destroying pots and lines of other fishermen, using nets with tighter mesh than allowed under fishing treaties, ignoring fish conservations plans.

The document was compiled by Leon M. Herman, specialist in Soviet economics in the Library of Congress. He based it on Soviet publications translated in the library and at the University of Washington.

Senator Warren G. Magnuson, Washington state Democrat and committee chairman, said in a foreword to the report that Soviet fleets of 150 to 200 vessels, most of them new and larger than those of any other nation, are and have been fishing off the shores of New England and Alaska. Soviet fishing vessels also were operating out of ports in Cuba in the Gulf of Mexico and Soviet exploratory ships were cruising the length of the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

Highlights of the report include:

Russia's fishing catch nearly doubled from 2,100,000 tons in 1952 to 4,100,000 tons in 1962.

Russia is investing an average of $320,000,000 a year in her fishery industry, about 10 times the budget of the U.S. bureau of commercial fisheries.

By the end of 1965 Russia anticipates having more than 750 new large trawlers with facilities for canning and freezing aboard, each expected to catch 5,500 to 6,000 metric tons of fish a year.

The Soviet government has the equivalent of $130,000,000 in contracts with ship - building firms of other nations for factory ships and refrigerated vessels, while other ships are being built in its own yards.

Soviet goals are to increase the fish catch to 5,000,000 tons by 1965 and shortly afterward to surpass the annual fish catch of Japan, now the largest in the world, and to increase the freezing capacity of boats at sea to 900,000 tons.

The bidding:

Opening lead — three of spades.

There is no way of accounting for some of the peculiar things that happen at the table, even in the most exalted company. For example, take this hand played in the match between Italy and the United States in 1957.

The American North - South pair got to four notrump on the bidding shown. South made a light opening bid, and North, with a good hand, later raised him to four notrump in an effort to reach a slam.

The Italian West led a spade and declarer won the king with the ace. Hoping to steal the contract, South entered dummy with a heart and returned a low diamond. He planned to finesse the ten and hoped that when West took the trick with the jack or queen, he might find it difficult to lead another spade.

But the plan failed when East holding the Q-J of diamonds, put up the jack. Declarer took the king and gave up a diamond trick, but East-West then cashed four spades to defeat the contract two tricks.

When the hand was played at the second table, with an Italian pair North-South, the bidding went:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1♦
Pass	1 NT	Pass	3♦
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Again a spade was led and South took the king with the ace. But the Italian declarer, aware that he probably could not make nine tricks without an assist from the defense, returned the ten of spades, hoping that something favorable would develop.

And it did. East took the ten with the jack, and even though West had led the five of spades and next played the three, thus showing a five-car suit, East returned the five of diamonds.

This odd play gave declarer his ninth trick, and when West then discarded a club on the next diamond lead, South wound up making six notrump!

How about that?

Human Needs Exploited By Medical Ins.

TORONTO (CP)—The United Church of Canada said today Ontario's draft medical insurance plan appears to be designed to exploit human need for the benefit of financial interests.

Rev. J. R. Hord, secretary of the church's board of evangelism and social service, asked an inquiry committee studying medical insurance legislation of the plan would "help the econ omically. handicapped or is it geared to the profits of the in surance companies?"

"As a Christian church we believe that financial policies should be adjusted to meet human need," Mr. Hord told the government appointed committee in a statement preceding presentation of a formal brief.

"There are indications that the provisions of this proposed Ontario plan are using human need to serve financial ends."

Mr. Hord's statement paralleled criticism by the Ontario Federation of Labor, which also submitted a brief today at the final public hearing scheduled on Bill 163, the legislation that would provide for standard physician-care plans on a voluntary basis through private insurers.

The bill's intention to let private insurers set the premium rates to be charged for the standard plans represents "total capitulation to the demands that profit must be a paramount factor in the provision of medical care for the citizens of Ontario," the OFL said.

Both the OFL and United Church briefs, first published last week, called for a comprehensive medical care program covering all Ontario residents, with the profit - making features removed.
