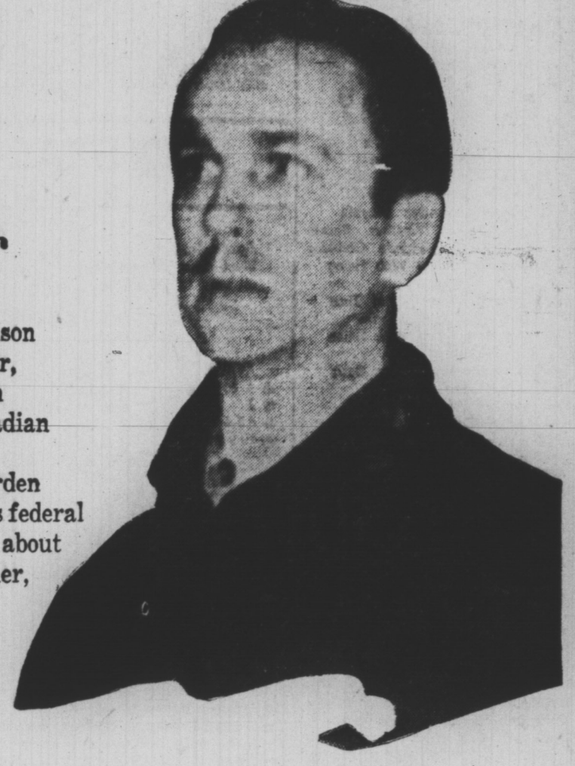
Kurt Meyer Was My Star Prisoner



It seemed like inviting trouble to imprison the notorious Nazi general, Kurt Meyer, in Dorchester Penitentiary, situated in the heart of the area where many Canadian victims of his war crimes had lived.
In the second of two articles by ex-Warden George T. Goad, who administered this federal penitentiary for over 30 years, he tells about Dorchester's most controversial prisoner, and how he was able to convince a dyed-in-the-wool Nazi that "a man is more than a number."

Dina Faces Her Fortune

Gossip in movieland says that Dina Merrill is "a girl who can out-Kelly Grace Kelly." Usually film fans seem to resent moneyed socialites who curry stardom. Weekend Magazine features the pictorial story of a lovely lady whose main problem is that she originated on the right side of the tracks, and happens to be heiress to $200 million.

Investment in Memories

Montrealer Jim Williams found that going around the world at 80 miles to the gallon was an adventurous way to take his doctor's advice and get away from it all. When this ex-pilot for TCA heard he was "grounded" due to diabetes, he promptly bought a motor-scooter built for two and a map and carried his lovely wife off on a 35,000-mile jaunt.

Our University Crisis

Why do so many of Canada's top-notch university professors switch over to industry? Dr. Colin B. Mackay, the youngest university president in Canadian history, analyzes the shocking plight of our colleges and gives the answer. According to Dr. Mackay, "the real bogey is the danger of our country losing its status as a nation" . . . unless universities meet their challenge.

Reigning King of Jolt

Marty Wood of Bowness, Alta., is riding high, wide and, so the girls say, incredibly handsome. The most dashing of a new crop of young bronc busters, Marty's greatest triumph came this year, when he became the fourth Canadian in the history of rodeo to win the coveted silver buckle of the World's Saddle-Bronc Champion. Meet Marty in Weekend.
