Women Very Newsworthy In CP Year-End Review

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

Two of the most absorbing news stories of 1966 in Canada began with stubborn women working to upset the status quo.

One is the snowballing consumer - revolt against rising food prices.

The other is the Supreme Court of Canada review of the 1959 murder conviction of Steven Truscott.

Isabel LeBourdais' book, The Trial of Steven Truscott, appeared in March. An immediate best-seller, it prompted demands for a reopening of the case.

In April the federal government asked the court to make an unprecedented review, hearing new witnesses.

The hearings began in October and included the dramatic first-time testimony of Steven Truscott, now 21, who denied he had raped and slain Lynne Harper in a woodlot near Clinton, Ont., seven years before.

Final arguments are scheduled for late January, after which the court will decide whether Truscott was properly convicted, should have a new trial or be acquitted.

The consumer revolt began near the end of September at about the time the Senate-Commons committee on prices started. It continues despite some doubts about its effectiveness.

CO-OP OPENED

Groups organized to boycott retail food stores and pressure them into lowering prices have sprung up under such banners as the Calgary Consumers Food Protest Committee, the Toronto Women Against Soaring Prices and the Regina Food Suffragettes.

In Montreal the Organization of Freedom Fighters opened a co-operative store in November.

Mrs. J. L. O'Reilly of Toronto dramatized her protest by buying a turnip for $1.20 and sending it to Prime Minister Pearson. She later said the price of turnips at her local store had dropped.

Among those who doubt the lasting value of boycotts is Mrs. John O'Brien of St. John's, Nfld. She began as a boycotter but when Premier Smallwood said he would set up a provincial commission on prices she agreed to sit on it and drop the boycott.

The Prairie provinces set up a joint commission on prices in December with two women on it—Mary Batten of Saskatoon, the chairman, and Dr. Shirley Weber of Winnipeg.

A prominent boycott leader' Mrs. Lawrence Wilson of Manotick, Ont., called a December meeting of consumer group leaders. Twenty - two delegates representing 50 groups formed the Canadian Consumers' Protest Association to organize boycotts against products on a national basis. They started with breakfast cereals.

NOVELIST WINS PRIZE

Several women brought artistic honors to Canada during 1966, although the country's hold on the women themselves seems anything but secure.

Marie - Claire Blais, formerly of Quebec City and now living in Wellfleet, Mass., was awarded the Pri Medicis in Paris for her novel about a poor French-Canadian family, Une Saison dans la Vie d'Emmanuel (A Season in the Life of Emmanuel).

Ballerina Martine van Hamel won the firstp rize for dancers under 21 and a City of Varna scroll for the best artistic interpretation in any group at the third international ballet festival in Varna, Bulgaria. Miss van Hamel, a dancer with the National Ballet of Canada, is a daughter of the Dutch consul-general in Toronto.

Beryl Fox, formerly a CBC director and now working in the United States, won a variety of awards for The Mills of the Gods, an hour - long documentary filmed in Vietnam in 1965. One was a New York award as the Western world's best TV documentary.

One prominent woman who came back to Canada was Dr. Jean Sutherland Boggs who returned from California to become the first woman director of the National Gallery in Ottawa.

CHURCH ADMITS WOMEN

Those who seek a greater role for women in church affairs got a boost in June when the Presbyterian General Assembly voted to allow them to become elders and ministers. Almost immediately, Mrs. Norman McInnin was elected an elder in Arthur, Ont., but by the end of the year no woman had been ordained.

There were gains in the political arena. The Women's Liberal Federation persuaded the party to put two women vice - presidents on the national executive in October.

Charlotte Whitton, 70, a former Ottawa mayor, made a comeback when she was elected an alderman. Margaret Campbell and June Marks ran one-two in the Toronto board of control race. True Davidson was elected mayor of the new Toronto-area borough of East York, population 92,000, and Anne Jones topped the board of control race in Hamilton.

Mrs. M. J. Sabia of St. Catharines, Ont., herself an alderman and president of the Canadian Federation of University Women, asked for the backing of 35 national women's groups to form the Committee for Equality of Women in Canada.

n Canada.

THREE ENTER CABINET

Representatives of the committee presented a brief to the federal government in November asking a royal commission on the status of women in Canada but by the year's end nothing had been done about it.

The Senate lost one of its five women during the year as Marianna Jodoin of Montreal retired. The 84-year-old Mrs. Jodoin had been appointed the first French-speaking woman senator in 1953.

The only gains in provincial politics during the year were in British Columbia where four women wre elected compared with one in the previous legislature. Social Credlters Grace McCarthy, Pat Jordan and Isabel Dawson were named ministers without portfolio. Eileen Bailly of NDP sat in opposition.

Manitoba and Quebec each returned their women members in general elections.

Candlelight Service Held

A candlelight service was held in Dunstaffnage - Marshfield United Church, led by David Thompson. Intermediate and junior choirs entered the church and walked up the dimly lighted aisles singing "O h Come all ye Faithful". A program of scripture readings, exercises, and carols was given.

After white gifts were presented Mrs. Frank Lacey gave a reading followed by the hymn "Silent Night".

MAN-POWER COMES LAST

About 85,000,000 Americans ride bicycles but only one state, Wisconsin, has a special cross-state road for bicycles.

EAST BALTIC

On December 17th, a Mission Band party was held for the children in the church basement hall and was largely attended by teachers and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Conway, Elmira, have taken up residence in Souris. Mr. Conway conducts a rural mail route daily from the Souris Post Office.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Dugas, Souris, have taken up residence with members of their family in Charlottetown for the winter.

Mrs. Harold MacKenzie and two children, and Mrs. Clarence Dixon and two children, Fortune attended the Baby Band annual Christmas party at the East Point Baptist Church basement on December 14.

Dinner For The Family Is Ready In 45 Minutes

Rosamond's eyes sparkled as she told me about her beautiful wedding gifts, mostly of silver, which she planned to use at a Sunday night supper for her in-laws.

"I made a list of the silver pieces, and in addition to the complete set of dinner-for-12 in the new 'Silver Sands' pattern in its own hostess-chest, there are silver casseroles with glass liners to keep food hot; a complete silver coffee and tea service; serving plates and open serving dishes, trays — just everything.

Question On Her Mind

"I want to use them all at my 'thank - you Sunday night supper.' And from then on I hope to use them regularly all my life. Is that safe, or will the silver become worn and dull-looking?"

"Use it all you like, Rosamond," I said. "The best way to keep your silver shining is to use it. It is only through repeated use that silver acquires that shimmering patina every woman loves."

SPECIAL TO ALL BRIDES
SETTING THE TABLE

Whether the table is to be laid for service with or without a maid, the principles of table-setting are the same. The table should look orderly and well-balanced; accessories should be arranged for convenient use; all foods for the convenient use all foods for the first-course should be on the table before serving.

The "Cover" is the name given to the space each person is to occupy at the table; 16" to 20" of space is customary. If table-mats are to be used, center them exactly in each space.

The Silver: This, or other tableware up to the dessert course, is placed on the table at right angles 1" from the edge. The various implements are arranged in the order of use from outside toward the plate. The knives should be placed on the right side of each plate, cutting edges toward the plate. Forks (tines up) should be placed at the left side of the plate in the order of their use, from the outside toward the plate. Spoons (bowls up) are placed at the right of the knives from the outside toward the knives in their order of use.

Bread - and - Butter Service: Bread and butter plates are set at the left and above the forks. Bread-and-butter spreaders are placed on the right-hand side of the plates parallel with the forks giving an uncluttered line to the table-setting. Butter squares top the upper left-hand part of the bread - and - butter plates.

Salt and Pepper: Individual sets of salt and pepper are placed above each "cover" plate Small salt dishes with small salt spoons are more convenient than salt shakers. If salts and peppers are not individual, a set should be placed between each two settings.

Water and Wine Glasses: They should never be turned upside down. The water glass or goblet is placed above the tips of the knives. Wine glasses are clustered at the right side of the water goblet, or may radiate to the center of the table in their order of use.

Serving Utensils: Needed Serving tools such as serving spoons, or a carving set, are placed 1" from the edge of the table, at the right of the person who serves; serving dishes also are placed at the right.

Dessert Silver: The table is cleared after the main course of the meal. Crumbs are brushed with a napkin onto a plate. The correct silver for the dessert is placed on the table. Unless the dessert is in individual dishes, it is served by the hostess.

Tomorrow we will give Rosamund's menu and recipes that delighted her in-laws.
