Selling Its Salt Springs.

While political parties, newspapers and publicists are urging municipal or Government ownership or control of many public utilities, the State of New York is rapidly closing out its only commercial enterprise, the ownership of the Onondaga Salt Springs Reservation at Syracuse. On September 12, 1898, the Onondaga Indians sold to the State of New York a strip of land extending around Onondaga Lake, comprising some twenty thousand acres, on condition that "it shall remain forever for the common benefit of the people of the State of New York and the Onondagas for the purpose of making salt." The State maintained its salt-making enterprise until 1874, when the Legislature passed a law allowing such lands to be appraised and sold which did not conflict with the business of manufacturing salt made from brine furnished by the State from the springs. So great was the pressure on the State by individuals demanding all the remaining salt lands that in 1898 a law was passed directing that the realty and personally in the surface rights and salt springs be sold, and that the office of State Superintendent of Salt Springs should cease on that day when all the property of the State should have been disposed of. On the passage of this law State Superintendents' offices at Syracuse ceased, and the official has since maintained his office and the business of furnishing brine to manufacturers from the duties assessed on the salt manufactured, save that he receives a salary of $1,500 from the State. The Superintendent recently said that there are less than five acres of the property left now, and this will soon be disposed of. He added: "The State itself has not lost nor been unsuccessful in the conduct of the enterprise. On the contrary, from the duties assessed on salt the Erie Canal was largely constructed. It is private enterprise that has been hurt by State-ownership, and it is private enterprise that has been and is pushing the State out of business. How can private enterprise pay a duty of one cent a bushel of 56 pounds on salt manufactured from State brine when manufacturers elsewhere have no duties to pay? Herein is the vital question of Government-ownership exemplified. It crushes the enterprise of the citizen." And yet the poor struggling manufacturers of salt and mineral water in the State are making spirited bids for the property, and going to considerable expense to see that "the other fellow" does not get more than his right share. Almost as much money as the land is worth, if not more, has been spent in defeating projects to sell the entire property to this or that particular firm instead of selling it in sections. "It is understood," says a New York contemporary, "that the next Legislature will order a peremptory sale of what remains of the Salt Reservation, notwithstanding its solemn compact with the Indians, and the fact that the surviving Indians still demand and receive free salt from the State." The Indians, it is safe to say, will not be considered in the transaction: Uncle Sam's legislators have their own ideas about keeping agreements with the redmen.

The White Wyandottes.

The question is often asked by those about to go into the poultry business or to keep pure breeds instead of mongrels, "Which is the best general purpose fowl?" The reply of most practical poultrymen is likely to be either White Wyandottes or Barred Plymouth Rocks. Although the Rocks were a popular breed long before the White Wyandottes were known, the latter are more and more each year taking the precedence.

The whites are true sports from the Silver Laced Wyandottes, and the latter were originally "made" by crossing a silver spanned Hamburg-cock on a dark Brahma hen. It may be asked, "Why then are the whites better than the silver or other colored Wyandottes?" The answer is the mere fact that they are white gives a slight advantage when marketing fowls, and besides that, the practical poultrymen have taken them up, rather than the other Wyandottes, and bred them especially for practical purposes. Therefore we see the 213 egg strains of the whites advertised, but not of the other breeds of the same family.

It may be conceded that the Wyandottes on one or two points do not equal the Rocks; they weigh a pound less and they do not mature quite so quickly. But they lay more eggs, they are plumper and fuller on the breast, and are smaller boned. For broilers they rank as the best of the pure breeds and for crossing they are again first on the list. Crossed with White Leghorns they make the best broilers; crossed with light Brahmas, they make the best roasters in any market, and either cross makes excellent layers. They are docile, good fayers, good setters and withal a beautiful as well as a business breed.—B. H., in New York Tribune Farmer.

Some French Wit.

Says The Saturday Evening Post:—A happy example of French wit was the reply of Voltaire, when, having extolled Haller, he was told that he was very generous, since Haller had said the very contrary of him. "Perhaps both of us are mistaken," said the wit, after a short pause. "We doubt, however, if any French wit or repartee ever surpassed in delicacy the reply made by an East Indian servant of Lord Dufferin, when he was victor of India: "Well, what sort of sport has Lord—had?" said Dufferin one day to his "shikarry," or sporting servant, who had attended a young English Lord on a shooting excursion. "Oh," replied the scrupulously polite Hindoo, "the young Sahib shot divinely. But God was very merciful to the birds."

Most of the city (of London) police are expert swimmers, says The Daily Express, and one of them, P. C. Billson, who often has to keep his watchful eye on The Express office, holds the police championship of the United Kingdom. Their teams have secured the lifesaving championship, scientific swimming and water polo championships, of the City of London, and at water tug-of-war they have, as on land, no equals in the metropolis.

THE VICTORIAN NURSES.

MONTRÉAL, November 25.—Lady Minto, in an address before the Victorian Order of Nurses in this city to-day, expressed the hope that before the government-general's term of office expired, the sum of $100,000 would be raised in Canada for the purpose of carrying on and extending the work of the order. The interest of that sum would be sufficient to maintain a central board and leave a margin to be expended yearly in grants towards the erection of Cottage hospitals. It was now desired to erect a number of Cottage hospitals in the West, but there were no more nurses at the disposal of the order.

A Blood Maker And System Builder

Nerve Invigorator and System Builder, Composed of the Most Powerful Restoratives to be Found in Nature's Realm is

That the nervous system is dependent on the blood for its nourishment and life is best evidenced by the fact that about one-fifth of all the blood required for the sustenance of the human body is consumed in the brain and goes to create nerve force, the vital power which runs the machinery of the body.

Because it forms blood as no preparation was ever known to do, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is of incalculable value to the nervous system, as to the body generally.

Neuralgic headache, sleeplessness, languid, depressed feelings, debility of stomach and bowels, and consequent indigestion, dizzy spells, before the eyes nervousness, irritability and general bodily weakness are indications that the nerves are starved for lack of a sufficient supply of rich, red, life-sustaining blood.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food removes the symptoms, and cures nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and partial paralysis by its wonderful power as a blood maker.

Mrs. J. McLeod, Chestnut Street, Charlottetown, P. E. I., states: "For some time I have been troubled with attacks of nervous sick headache which were accompanied by indigestion. I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food some time ago, and have been greatly benefited by it. My digestion has been improved, my head aches have disappeared and I have gained a flesh and weight. I consider Dr. Chase's Nerve Food a splendid health builder.
