BBG Turns Down Color TV Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The Board of Broadcast Governors said here it considers that color television should not be introduced into Canada at this time.

Subject to federal government approval, it also recommended that the publicly-owned CBC be permitted to establish a second French-language television station at Quebec City.

These were the major decisions in the first BBG announcement following its Jan. 15-18 public hearing here. A further announcement listing the board's recommendations on other applications will be issued later.

Not included Friday were decisions on CBC bids to establish a second television station at St. John's, Nfld., A French-language TV station at Timmins, Ont., and a radio station at Fredericton.

The board's statement said the board members reviewed evidence presented at the Jan. 15 hearing on color TV and came to the conclusion that the time had not yet arrived when the BBG could recommend that color TV begin in Canada.

"The board looks forward to the time when color may be introduced to Canadian TV but considers the time and conditions to be favorable to reasonable success," the statement said.

The board, announcing its recommendation for a CBC French-language TV station in Quebec City on channel 11, said:

"Having further reviewed the policy of the extension of the national service and on the basis of the evidence presented at the public hearing the board now is satisfied that it would be in the public interest to licence a CBC television station in Quebec City."

Last June the BBG reserved decision on the CBC's initial application for the Quebec station. This was followed by the resignation of board members Eugene Forsey and Guy Hudon.

The BBG again rejected an application to set up a second private French - language TV station at Quebec by a group headed by Jacques La Roche.

The board recommended also establishment of a CBC rebroadcasting station at Sheet Harbor, N.S., to receive programs from CBHT Halifax.

British Market Seen As Glittering Prize

By REFORD MacDOUGALL

MONTREAL (CP)—A multi-billion dollar British market beckons to Canadian businessmen now that the European Common Market talks have collapsed, says Cyril Culver, chairman of Britain's National Productivity Association.

"Canadian businessmen and industrialists now must focus on the enormous opportunities open to them in Britain," Mr. Culver said in an interview.

"Let them digest one fact in particular: Britain buys more than $2,500,000,000 worth of goods from Common Market countries. If this isn't a glittering prize for them, I don't know what is."

He called on business in the two countries "to get off their behinds" and think imaginatively about increasing trade.

Commenting on the effects of President de Gaulle's action in the Common Market negotiations, Mr. Culver said:

"He couldn't have done more for Britain and the Commonwealth. His action has united British labor and management in a way unknown since the war. Look at the note of unprecedented optimism in the London stock market during the last week."

"Also, perhaps Britain, Canada and the Commonwealth now are able to see the tremendous advantage in co-operation."

The National Productivity Association chairman is here trying to convince Canadian manufacturers of snow - clearing equipment that "immense opportunities" exist for them in Britain.

"Millions of dollars have been lost in the last few months in a winter described as the worst since 1881," he said.

"People here don't realize the dense population of England and how a snow storm, in tieing up transportation, can cause millions to be late for work.

"Had vision existed and snow removal equipment been purchased the loss of man hours to British business and industry could have been cut 10-fold."

Mr. Culver, who since 1957

Opening lead—king of clubs.

You have to train yourself not to make mechanical plays in bridge if you expect to go the best results.

Here is a hand that illustrates the point. It was played in a par bridge contest that is staged annually among representatives of the Department of State in various legations, embassies and other foreign offices all over the globe. Usually, close to 2,000 persons compete in these contests.

North-South were supposed to bid and make six diamonds to earn full par. The bidding shown is merely one sequence that might be used to arrive at the sound contract of six diamonds. Failure to reach a slam was punished with an under-par bidding score.

The directed opening lead was the king of clubs. Most of the contestants who became declarer at six diamonds met their Waterloo on the first trick. They played the ace of clubs, which East ruffed, and eventually lost a heart trick to go down one.

With proper play, they would have made the slam. All they had to do to assure twelve tricks was play a low club from dummy on the opening lead. This somewhat unusual play was clearly called for by the circumstances.

South can see twelve tricks as soon as dummy comes down. They consist of three high spades and a spade ruff, the ace of hearts, the ace of clubs, and six trump tricks. The only thing that South has to guard against is the loss of one of those winners.

Playing the ace of clubs at trick one jeopardizes the contract. True, the play will lose only if West has an eight- card suit, but that possibility is far from remote in the light of the bidding.

Even if it is granted that East is unlikely to trump the ace of clubs, there can still be no advantage to playing the ace. The duck guarantees the contract; the ace play jeopardizes it.

If West continues with the queen, dummy ducks again to assure the slam.

BEDEQUE

Mrs. Annie Lang, who was in the Prince County Hospital for treatment for several days, is now convalescing with relatives in Summerside.

Arthur Murray and Harold Leard, students at Mount Allison University, spent the weekend of Jan. 27 at their homes, the former here and the latter at Central Bedeque.

An old barn, a landmark here was blown down during the gale wind on Sunday, Jan 27. This building must be about 100 years old. At any rate it was due for demolition in thee near future. 't was owned by Hammond Bowness for several years.

The Bedeque-Borden Y.P.U. had an interesting evening Jan 30., when they entertained the older members of the United Church congregation. At first all engaged in games. This was followed by a hymn-sing then the regular program and coffee. The vice-president, Donald Bell presided. The secretary is Miss Gloria Stordy of the Borden group. This week being known as "Youth Week," Rev. R. M. Cameron delivered an impressive sermon Sunday morning suitable to the beginning of the special occasion.
