Queen's Visit Security Claimed 'Exaggerated'

QUEBEC (CP) — Authorities here say reports about security measures being taken for the visit here Oct. 10-11 of Queen Elizabeth are being greatly exaggerated.

Col. J. P. Martin, co-ordinator of plans for the visit, said in an interview "there has been an awful lot of loose talk about 4,000 to 5,000 men."

But a distinction wasn't being drawn in these reports between actual security forces—RCMP, Quebec provincial police, municipal police, and other forces—and troops who would play a "courtesy" role.

Troops would line the streets as the Queen passed, Col. Martin said, but this was "a matter of courtesy.

"This is done even in London. It's done anywhere."

RCMP Inspector J. A. Nadon, chairman of a police committee making security plans for the visit, said "we don't know ourselves" how many men will actually be involved in security work.

ALL ON COMMITTEE

RCMP, provincial and city police, railway and harbor police and representatives of the armed services were on the committee.

When the royal yacht Britania arrive Oct. 10, harbor police would naturally be on hand, city police would control movements through the city, while provincial police would be present when the Queen visited the Quebec legislature, and later Bois-de-Coulonges, residence of the lieutenant-governor.

Railway police would be present during a dinner given by the province at the Chateau Frontenac, a hotel owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway

The visit also involves the inauguration by the Queen of a memorial at The Citadel, headquarters of the Royal 22nd Regiment of which she is colonel-in-chief.

The Queen is to leave by air Oct. 11 from l'Ancienne-Lorette Airport for Ottawa.

Col. Martin said the program hasn't been fully worked out yet and Inspector Nadon said the police committee hasn't reached the stage where details have been decided.

Inspector Nadon said detectives from Scotland Yard usually accompany the royal party.

Constitution Urged Based On 2 Nations

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)— Daniel Johnson, leader of Quebec's opposition Union Nationale, called Sunday for a new Canadian constitution based on recognition of "the existence in Canada of two nations."

He told the annual conference of Quebec's French - language Junior Chambers of Commerce, under the present constitution, no union is possible "between the two Canadian nations so long as the principle of unification and uniformity is accepted."

He said the existence of two nations will have to be recognized before any solution to the country's present problems is possible.

RECOGNITION NEEDED

These nations, he went on, must be recognized as "having the liberties and means necessary to assure the normal development of man in his own surroundings."

That recognition granted, "it will then be easier to give institutional form to their relations and to establish at the top insituions for purposes of real co-operation."

Francois Aquin, president of the Quebec Liberal Federation, said Quebec "wants to possess in full the essential means of national life."

The province must control its fiscal and economic system, the power to draw up large - scale plans, the educational system, social security and the instruments of culture.

The 136 French - language chambers in Quebec will devote much of their time in the coming year to discussing the economic problems of the province if they act on a recommendation made Saturday.

The recommendation urged the chambers organize special courses and discussions on economic planning.

It also asked that the federation set up in 1965 a provincial seminar on economic problems and offer courses to federation members on management.

HISTORY RETURNS

SHELTON, England (CP) — This Bedfordshire village, which won first prize in this year's Best-kept Village competition, is to turn the clock back in a village market modelled on 17th century lines. Helpers will be dressed accordingly. The market is being held to raise money for parish church restorations.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
B L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Opening lead—ace of hearts.

It is easier to play the cards well when you see all 52 cards, but still there are hands difficult to play even when you have this advantage.

For example, take this deal where South was in six diamonds. The bidding is recorded as it took place. West led the ace and another heart, which declarer ruffed.

The contract would have been easy to make if the trumps had been divided 2-1. But when West showed out on the first trump lead, South had a real problem on his hands. He knew from the bidding that at most he could ruff only one spade in dummy without being overruffed by East.

Since one spade ruff would give him only eleven tricks, South had to find a way of producing a twelfth trick. West a hand was virtually an open book, since he had shown up with a doubleton heart and a void in diamonds.

Declarer solved the problem in neat fashion. After cashing the A-K Q of diamonds, he played a spade to the ace, producing this position:

South now made the key play of ruffing a heart. This apparently innocuous play forced West to make a crucial discard.

There was nothing West could do to stop the slam. If he discarded a spade, South could make twelve tricks by cashing the king of spades and ruffing a spade.

If West chose to discard a club instead, South could achieve the same result by cashing the A-K and ruffing a club. West was in bad shape either way. He was caught on the horns of a dilemma.
