ANNUAL MEETING BEGINS TODAY

Canadian Club May Take New Look At Flag Choice

"Eight years ago, in 1956, the Canadian Club decided that they would accept and back the Canadian Ensign as a national flag," said E. W. Morse, national director of the association, "but just what their feelings are now can be in no way determined. Perhaps this question will be brought up at the meeting this year. We certainly don't want to be classified with the IODE."

He was speaking last night at a press conference in the Charlottetown Hotel prior to the Canadian Club Association's annual meeting which gets under way this morning.

FIRST IN MARITIMES

This is the first time the annual meeting has been held so far east. Until this year the furthest east it had gone was Quebec City, according to A.G. Magee, chairman of the national executive, who was present with Mr. Morse and Dr. Wilder Penfield, Montreal, the eminent neurosurgeon and writer who is president of CC, at the conference.

"Judge Tweedy came down to our national meeting two years ago and delivered a high-pitched sales talk to us. At first members were a little askance at the idea of coming so far east, for they travel at their own expense, but we have as many delegates coming here from out of town as we have ever got in the past. Probably they decided that it was about time to come to the Island and see what it was all about."

PREPARING BRIEF

The Canadian Clubs Association are at present preparing a brief to place before the Royal Commission on biculturalism.

"Probably the reason that we were asked is that we have such a wide range of Canadians in our association, which covers all the provinces except Newfoundland. We found there was a surprising unanimity in views all across the country," said Mr. Morse. He was unable to give any information on the findings of the brief, saying that it must be kept secret until it appears before the commission.

When he was asked to outline what the Canadian Club is doing for the Centennial year, Mr. Magee replied that the national body is not going to determine and order what the individual clubs will do. "It will merely try to influence clubs to take

VALLEY GAP MAYOR HEADS UNIQUE TOWN

CALGARY (CP) — Mayor Philip Smith who represents the 25 residents of Three Valley Gap, B.C., may be able to tell his colleagues something about winning elections when he arrives at the 27th annual conference of the Federation of Mayors and Municipalities in Regina this week.

He polled 100 per cent of the votes cast in the civic election last week in the community 12 miles west of Revelstoke.

He said:

"I simply explained in a pre-election speech if I failed to win the election the three other candidates will simply be asked to come to the office and pick up their unemployment insurance books.

Mayor Smith, motel manager and paymaster in the one-man-owned centre added: "I suppose you could say the fact that I sign all the pay cheques for the town's residents had some influence on the vote."

He and companions Russ Bell and Jack Lower were interviewed on the way to the convention in a 1912 Overland touring car.

To qualify for the annual conference and get a little publicity, the mountain tourist stop needed a mayor as official representative for the community.

ALL GIVE VOTE

"An election was arranged . . . and in the best interests of democracy every live being was given a vote.

"We have 14 burros at Three Valley Gap. One man, a friend of mine, was allowed to cast proxy ballots on their behalf.

"As long as I'm mayor, and that'll be as long as I want to be, I'm going to work for the taxpayers.

"We haven't paid taxes there for 52 years that I know of and I'm going to try and keep it that way."

Mayor Smith said he is also devising an economic radial railway system for public transportation.

"We've constructed a narrow gauge railway around the perimeter of the settlement which consists of a motel, museum and service station, he said, "which will provide for all our transportation needs for the future."

POWERED BY BURROS

Burros draw the cars which carry 24 passengers each.

"They tried a radial railway system in Toronto, he said, "but they couldn't make it work. They didn't have cheap source of power like we have."

The delegation expects to arrive in Regina today and will take part in a downtown parade Wednesday.

Mayor Smith said he hasn't yet formulated any resolutions to present to the convention on behalf of his constituents.

"It's my first venture in public life," he said, "and I want to watch and learn before I make any serious decisions."

Blast In Pipe Kills Worker At Saint John

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — An explosion in an underground pipe Sunday killed Iotte W. Thompson, 42, and seriously injured Alphonse Lanteigne, 26, both of Nashwaaksis, N.B.

The pipe, five feet in diameter and 15 feet underground, is for water cooling at the East Saint John thermal plant of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission. The men, employed by Maritime Insulation Limited of Fredericton, were enamelling the inside of the pipe.

Lanteigne, suffering severe burns, remained in critical condition Sunday night. The explosio threw him into a water-filled pipe. Thompson's badly burned body was found about 125 feet from his helmet.

Representatives of the New Brunswick safety engineer's office at Fredericton are expected to enter the pipe today in an effort to determine what caused the blast. It was felt a mile away. A coroner's jury viewed the body and adjourned indefinitely.

Efficiency Expert Hired By Queen

LONDON (Reuters)—The latest move in the British Royal Family's efforts to curb the palace budget was made last week when efficiency expert Sir Basil Smallpiece was appointed adviser of the running of the royal household.

Officially, the 57-year-old former head of the British Overseas Airways Corporation will be part-time liaison chief between heads of departments.

But observers linked his twe-year appointment with indications that, unless strict economy is practised at Buckingham Palace, Queen Elizabeth will be forced to overspend the royal budget of £475,000.

This annual sum was fixed by law at the beginning of her reign in 1952.

But since then general costs, as well as the volume of administrative work, have risen enormously.

700 Lions Arrive In City

The lions are loose in Charlottetown. Or rather, the Lions, all 700 of them, have arrived here for the 35th annual convention of Multiple District 41, Lions International.

Probably this is the largest convention being held this summer in Charlottetown, which is hosting more than 100 of them.

At their opening dinner last night, an informal affair, more than 700 delegates and their wives crowded into the Recreation Centre dining room to be welcomed by Mayor Gaudet, Premier Shaw and Lieutenant-Governor MacDonald.

District 41 is made up of all the clubs in Maine, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, P.E.I., Newfoundland, and St. Pierre and Miquelon. Three countries are represented in the district, Canada, the U.S., and France, to give it its international flavour and name.

Nfld. Forest Fire Is Out Of Control

BADGER, Nfld. (CP) — A roaring forest fire, the worst of the year in the province was burning out of control along a four-mile front, only one mile west of this central Newfoundland community late Sunday.

A spokesman for the forestry service said that "as long as the winds hold there will be no danger to residents in the area."

The fire was being battled by two Canso water bombers in an attempt to halt it before it reaches stands of high timber a few miles away. By late Sunday it had burned several hundred acres of cut-over area.

HONG KONG (AP)—Dr. Lee Siegel says singer Judy Garland is suffering from pleurisy.

The Hollywood doctor said it was an aftermath of "a coma of unknown origin."

Miss Garland fell into a coma Thursday and was taken to a Hong Kong hospital. Hospital sources said her pulse nearly stopped but a Hong Kong doctor revived her after treating her for more than three hours.

Dr. Siegel, who flew in from Hollywood Sunday, described Miss Garland's present condition as fairly good.

Miss Garland and her travelling companion arrived in Hong Kong a week ago after a tour in Australia.

This was the first Atlantic area Road-E-O here and W.W. Shatford, regional supervisor for Imperial Oil, sponsors of the Championships, described it as "the finest I've attended, and that goes back quite a few years."

RACING BETS AMAZE POLICE

DETROIT (AP)—Police of suburban Dearborn Heights were amazed Saturday when they heard horse race bets being relayed via their police radio system.

The lawmen found dampness has caused a contact between the underground cable of their radio system and a telephone company cable. They said telephone calls placed by horse bettors thus found their way onto the police radio system.

Police traced the calls and raided a bar a few doors from the police station Saturday night. Five people were arrested for violating state gambling laws.

Corned Beef Is Given Blame

ABERDEEN, Scotland (Reuters)—Only five new confirmed typhoid cases were reported in this epidemic-stricken city Sunday, leading medical authorities to believe that a second wave of the disease might be on the wane.

Dr. Ian MacQueen, the city's medical health officer, said Sunday night he thought there was "every likelihood" the outbreak — Britain's worst since 1937 — would end fairly soon.

"But don't ask me to put a date on it," he added.

The five new cases brought the total of confirmed typhoid cases to 160, leaving another 49 suspected cases.

One person, an elderly woman pensioner suffering from two other illnesses, died in the epidemic.

The typhoid was traced to a can of corned beef, which some officials thought might have been part of a consignment of 13 - year - old South American meat released from British government stocks.

MacQueen told a press conference he believed a second wave of the disease, which began three days ago, emanated from one of three employees at a butcher's shop where the original source of infection had been traced.

All three employees caught the disease.

The medical officer said it had been more difficult than usual to form a picture of how the two waves were proceeding because both were coming from near the same source.

Earlier, he described Aberdeen as a "beleaguered city."

Travellers and vacationers have been advised to bypass the city for the next two weeks and schools will be closed next week.

This northeast Scotland city of 200,000 has had one of its quietest weekends in years as thousands of people remained at home.

Dance halls and bingo parlors were shut. Afternoon movie shows were cancelled.

Dr. MacQueen told reporters during the day that it was still too early to say that the peak of the current second wave of typhoid cases had passed.

"But at least the omens are not so entirely unfavorable," he added.

The health officer said Saturday he understood that Canada and Portugal had imposed an immunization requirement on persons from Britain because of the Aberdeen outbreak.

Leaders of Britain's Opposition Labor party have announced plans to question the government in Parliament at London next week about reports it was possible that contaminated meat from old government-held stock was responsible for the epidemic.

Paris Cathedral 800 Years Old

PARIS (AP)—The cathedral of Notre Dame, whose twin towers are a symbol of Paris to the world, celebrated its 800th birthday Sunday and thousands, including President Charles De Gaulle, were there to extend congratulations.

The old cathedral in the heart of the French capital was marking its eighth centenary with a solemn high mass, attended by the nation's highest authorities and diplomatic notables.

From Rome, Pope Paul sent personal greetings by radio, speaking from St. Louis of the French colony in the Italian capital.

Inside Notre Dame, packed with perhaps 2,000 persons, president De Gaulle and his wife led a tribute to the structure which dominates the Ile De La Cite, historic heart of this capital by the Seine.

Signs U.S. May Bear Down On Canadian Auto Imports

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The treasury department today gave formal notice it is considering whether a countervailing duty should be imposed on imports of Canadian automobiles and parts and invited public comment on the issue within 30 days.

In its notice, appearing in the the official Federal Register, the department said the question of whether special duties should be imposed arises from the tariff remission feature of the Canadian automotive incentive program. The issue is whether this remission is in effect a bestowal of public grants or bounties to help Canadians sell automobiles and parts in the U.S.

If the U.S. customs bureau, which operates under the treasury, determines the Canadian plan does involve bounties or grants, the U.S. law requires that an extra duty be imposed on imports of these items from Canada. This in effect would tend to curb shipments into the U.S. market. The amount of the extra duty would be at the discretion of the customs commissioner.

Both imports and exports of Canadian vehicles and parts have been increasing in recent months, following introduction of the Canadian program to eliminate tariffs on imports equivalent to the rise in exports above the flow during the 12-month period ending Oct. 31, 1962.

A number of U.S. parts manufacturers have complained that the Canadian scheme has taken markets away from them, crippling U.S. plant operations and throwing hundreds of U.S. employees out of work.

They have called for countervailing duties and have received support from several U.S. legislators.

However, it is understood the U.S. administration is split on the issue and the new request for public comment and views is no more than a holding action.
